BABY CARRIAGE FOR SALE.

Under the provisions of the navy appropriation act which recently received the approval of the president, seven new vessels are to be added to the navy. Of these two are to be cruisers of 3000 tons displacement, each to cost, exclusive of armament and any premium that may be offered on account of increased speed, not more than $1,100,000 each. One is to be a steel cruiser of 5000 tons displacement, to cost, exclusive of armament and premium for increased speed, $1,800,000; one an armored cruiser of 7500 tons, to cost, exclusive of armament, $3,500,000; and three gunboats or cruisers, neither of which shall exceed 2000 tons, nor $700,000 in cost, exclusive of armament and premium for increased speed.

The contracts for the construction of the three cruisers first named are to contain provisions to the effect that when completed and tested for speed the two 3000-ton cruisers shall exhibit a maximum of speed of at least nineteen knots per hour, and the 5000-ton and 7500-ton cruisers a maximum of at least twenty knots.

In the case of each of the vessels, for every quarter of a knot above the guarantee the contract price will be $50,000, and for every quarter of a knot below the speed guaranteed $50,000, is to be deducted.

In the case of the gunboats the secretary of the navy is authorized to make such provision for increased speed and premium as he may deem advisable. All vessels are to be constructed under the provisions of the act of Aug. 3d, 1886, as to materials, engines, boilers and machinery; "and said vessels shall be built in compliance with the terms of said act, save that in all their parts said vessels shall be of domestic manufacture."

If the secretary of the navy should be unable to contract at reasonable prices for their construction, he is authorized to build any or all of the vessels in such navy yards as he may designate.

In addition to these war vessels the act also provides for the construction and armament of one steel practice vessel of 800 tons for the use of the naval academy, to be built by contract at a cost of $275,000.

The sum of $3,500,000 is appropriated towards the construction and completion of the vessels described in the act, as well as those heretofore authorized, and for armor and armament of domestic manufacture the sum of $2,000,000 is appropriated. With the vessels authorized by the act just approved, provision has been made during the past few days for adding to the navy twenty-nine vessels, including five monitors and two torpedo boats.

Grover Cleveland has done more to advance the cause of free trade than any Prime Minister of England has done.—London Spectator.

The American election is infinitely more important to Englishmen than their own internal politics just at this juncture. * * * The main question at issue is English free trade against the continental system of protection.—London Times.

It is certain that the arguments which President Cleveland urges are those which Cobden used to employ forty-five years ago, and which any free trader could employ now.—London Times.

Our manufactures require the systematic and fostering care of the government. * * Equally important it is to provide at home a market for our raw materials.—James Monroe.

With President Cleveland, Great Britain knows where she is.—Glasgow Herald.

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * * and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

When our manufactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C. Calhoun.

Congress have repeatedly, and no without success, directed their attention to the encouragement of manufactures. The object is of too much consequence not to insure a continuance of their efforts in every way which shall appear eligible.—George Washington.

The issue of Protection is incalculably stronger and greater than any man, as it concerns the prosperity of the present and of the generations yet to come.—James G. Blaine.

When used according to directions, Ayer's Ague Cure is warranted to eradicate from the system fever and ague, intermittent, remittent, and bilious fevers, and all malarial diseases. Try it.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They say we can live under the free trade system of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

President Cleveland declines cautiously to dub himself a free trader, but he caters up a free trade position without disguise —London Saturday Review.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

We must now place our manufactures by the side of the agriculturist. * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

The owners of the baths along the river Elbe at Hamburg, have brought suits for damages against Capt. Fray of the German steamer City of Lincoln, from which vessel a number of crocodiles escaped a few days ago. The owners claim that they were obliged to close their baths in consequence.

The Biting Tongue.

Slander attacks us from behind. The bite is rarely felt unless it is malignant and persistent. Disease, too, often steals upon us through a vital channel. The air we breathe affects the lungs—if it be malarious it enters the blood, if it change too quickly in the temperature it produces disease of the throat, &c. Whether Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is taken to prevent or to remedy the various forms of disease produced by miasma, such as intermittent fever, dumb ague, ague cake or billious remittent, it is and ever has proved to be an effective and thorough remedy—one which does not only ameliorate the symptoms of the maladies of this type, but eradicates their cause. Dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, bladder and kidney troubles are among the humanity-afflicting troubles which it promptly relieves and ultimately removes.

Peach dealers are indignant over the poor railroad service afforded them between Delaware and Boston.

Aunt Rachael's Bitters.

The undeniable fact that these Bitters are composed in the main of Speer's Grape Juice, with Peruvian bark, snake root, etc., analyzed and recommended to invalids and the medical profession, by the best chemists in the United States, cannot fail in inspiring confidence in the use of these Malarial Bitters.

Archbishop Ryan of Philadelphia says he never advocated the persecution of heretics.

Found Dead.

Last evening a person giving the name of G. R. Thompson registered at Hunt's Hotel, and desired to be called in season to take the 12 P. M. train for Chicago. Being unable to awaken him, the room was entered by means of the ventilator over the dood, when the gentleman was found to be dead. He was advertising agent for Sulpher Bitters, which has an extensive sale. The coroner returned a verdict of death from heart disease. His body will be sent east immediately.—Cin. Commercial.

Fanny Boyington of Chicago, pretty and young, has run off with a coachman. The parents relent.

A Good Appetite

Is essential to good health; but at this season it is often lost, owing to the poverty or impurity of the blood, derangement of the digestive organs, and the weakening effect of the changing season. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a wonderful medicine for creating an appetite, toning the digestion, and giving strength to the whole system. Now is the time to take it. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Ignatius Donnelly has been nominated for governor of Minnesota by the United Labor party.

Disorders of the stomach, liver, and kidneys, can be cured by restoring the blood to a healthy condition, through the vitalizing and cleasing action of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is the safest, most powerful, and most highly concentrated alterative available to the public.

The official report of the world's harvest shows light crops in many countries of Europe.

Hay Fever.

I have suffered greatly from periodical returns of hay fever. Covert & Cheever, Druggists, suggested Ely's Cream Balm. I used it during a severe attack. I can cheerfully testify as to the immediate and continued relief obtained by its use. I heartily recommend it to those suffering from this or kindred complaints.—(Rev.) H. A. Smith, Clinton, Wis.

THE SHROUDED HEART.

I cannot win her, for our ways divide,
And we are far apart who once were near.
Through misty eyes I saw her go; hers clear,
Untroubled as a summer sky, dead-i
A mirror for my thoughts; the wat-side
On cloudy days outstretches deep and blank,
And doubles not the fern upon its bank.
So calm her face; and the drear world so wide.

Let be; hid somewhere in the dreaming cloud
That wreathes love's altar, though but smoldering,
Amid the chilly ash some embers burn,
Whose touch can wake her dead heart from its shroud,
And, like the turning of the magic ring,
Back to my side her wandering footsteps turn.

ELECTRICAL RESEARCHES.

Showing How Morse Utilized the Experiments of a Century.

It is the general belief that Professor S. F. B. Morse was the inventor of the electric telegraph. On the contrary, he was not the originator of the principle. Researches were made in Leipsic by Winkler in 1746, Watson in London and Le Monnier in Paris in 1747. These electricians used frictional electricity, and while no practical results came from their experiments the principle was clearly established. The earliest successful telegraph was that of Le Sage in Geneva in 1774. He constructed a machine with twenty-four wires and was able to transmit intelligence over short circuits. About this time Lomond, a Frenchman, also attained practical results, using a single wire much after the method of Le Sage. In 1798 Salva constructed a machine at Madrid from which he obtained satisfactory results by using and grouping a succession of electrical discharges by means of an electrical spark.

Cavallo in 1797 and Ronaldo in 1816 tried transmitting intelligence over long circuits by using impulses attained from the discharge of Leyden jars, which proved a failure. In the year 1808 Sommering began experimenting with the voltaic pile, and constructed a machine consisting of a series of voltameters, in which water was decomposed by the galvanic current. He proposed to give signals by the escape of gas from the glass tubes of the voltameter. The slowness of working this method was fatal to commercial utility.

Dr. J. Redman Coxe, of Philadelphia, about this period, invented a system of telegraphing by the decomposition of metallic salts, which was taken up later and practically worked out by Bain. In 1820 Oersted, of Copenhagen, discovered a system of electro-magnetism, and attempts were at once made to utilize it for telegraphing. His plan was afterward carried out by Ritchie and publicly exhibited by Alexander, of Edinburgh.

Baron Schilling, of Cronstadt, next executed models of electrical machines, but he died before his idea was practically carried out. Gauss and Weber, of Gottingen, made an attempt to carry out the baron's idea in 1833, but practically they made the machine one of their own. They erected a line and then associated themselves with Professor Stienheil, of Munich, who made it a writing telegraph by using a perforated tape, much after the manner of the present automatic systems. But in the early researches of Gauss and Weber are still embodied all the principles of the mirror galvanometer used in cable telegraphy. It is well to note that the researches of all these celebrated electricians were what called to the attention of Professor Morse the idea of developing the system which has made his name a household word, and has caused the inventions of all foreign inventors who preceded him to be thrown into the junk box or relegated to the musty shelves of continental museums. —New York Press.

Famous Old Men.

Beginning his 83d year, M. Ferdinand de Lesseps can look around and see but very few men of anything like equal eminence who are as old as he. The German emperor is 90; Dr. Dollinger is 88; Moltke and Bancroft the historian are each 87; Kossuth is 85, and Professor Owen is 83; but it is not easy to extend the list. Yet it is astonishing to note the large number of living great men who have passed the ordinary limit of human life. Of sovereigns, the pope is 87, and King William, of the Netherlands, is well on in his 71st year. Of statesmen, Mr. Gladstone is 79, Mr. Bright is 76, Prince Bismarck is 72, M. Jules Grevy is 74, M. Leon Say and M. Leroyer are each 71, Lord Selborne is 75 and Lord Granville is 72. Of generals, MacMahon is 79, Lebœf is 78 and Bazaine and Cialdine are each 76. Of poets, Lord Tennyson is 78, Mr. Browning is 75 and Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes is 78. Of musicians, M. Verdi is 73. Of engineers, Lord Armstrong is 77 and Sir John Hawkshaw is 76. Of painters, Messonier is 72; and finally, of showmen, Barnum is 77. Perhaps, however, M. Chevreul, who is fairly started upon his 102d year, ought not to be omitted.—London News.

Candles for China.

A correspondent of The British Mercantile Gazette, writing from Canton, calls attention to the important trade which might be done in candles with that country. The candles most in demand are of a red color, like ordinary sealing wax. A trial might be made with other colors, and blue would be suitable in funeral ceremonies.

The article could be produced at a low price, since the color is only on the surface—at least this is the case with Chinese candles. They ought to have a high melting point, so that they may not gutter when exposed to a current of air, or even in ordinary circumstances.

Transparent as well as opaque candles would be suitable. It would be as well to bear in mind that a slight strip of bamboo runs through the Chinese candles, the lower extremity of which is inserted into the socket of the candlestick.—Boston Budget.

A Singer's Advice.

Marie Roze addressed the pupils at the Royal Academy of Music at Liverpool a few days ago, after the mayor had presented certificates to those who had passed the examination for entrance, and said that no one better than an artist knew the value of early training, and that in looking into the past of her life she recalled with the greatest gratitude the efforts of those who first molded her voice.—Chicago News.

Lincoln and His Beard.

Shortly after his first election to the presidency he received a pleasant letter from a little girl living in a small town in the state of New York. The child told him that she had seen his picture, and it was her opinion, as she expressed it in her artless way, that he "would be a better looking man if he would let his beard grow." Mr. Lincoln passed that New York town on his way to Washington, and his first thought on reaching the place was about his little correspondent. In his brief speech to the people he made a pleasing reference to the child and her charming note. "This little lady," said he, "saw from the first that great improvement might be made in my personal appearance. You all see that I am not a very handsome man, and, to be honest with you, neither I nor any of my friends ever boasted very much about my personal beauty." He then passed his hand over his face and continued: "But I intend to follow that little girl's advice, and if she is present I would like to speak to her." The child came forward timidly, and was warmly greeted by the president-elect. He took her in his arms and kissed her affectionately, expressing the hope that he might have the pleasure of seeing his little friend again sometime.

Shortly after this Mr. Lincoln, for the first time in his life, allowed his beard to grow all over his face, with the exception of the upper lip; and this fashion he continued as long as he lived. In speaking of the incident which led him to sport a full beard he afterward remarked, reflectively: "How small a thing will sometimes change the whole aspect of our lives."—Ward H. Lamon.

Under Italian Skies.

We pass in sight of three seasons. Around us is the crisp air and golden sunshine of autumn. Beneath us hundreds of feet the rills of spring murmur their way toward the sea. Above us the frosts and snow of winter keep their cold and beautiful silence, except when they speak with the white tongue of an avalanche. Sometimes the delicate evergreen trees of an entire mountain side have been covered with rain that froze as it fell, and the whole gigantic hill flashes in a corrugated cloak of silver. Away beyond and above this a higher mountain will hold up its mighty drifts to fraternize with the white clouds. We are rushing along among mansions fit for the gods.

The people that we see at stations and in the coaches are becoming more and more stubby and swarthy. The guard of the train—a kind of conductor and brakeman in one—looks exactly like the tourist from Italy who wanders along our street at home in the early morning and explores the ash barrel with an iron hook. Women doing their washing in the roadside streams are small and ill-favored. These mountains seem to have borne dwarfs. A few soldiers in shabby uniforms look too small to participate in a grown up battle, and make us wonder at Magenta and Solferino. Beggars spring up out of the earth, undressed in the carefully arrayed rags of professional poverty. An old gray haired woman is plowing in a barren looking field with a pair of cows—the yoke twined about their horns. People talk to each other in a queer dialect of French and Italian, broken and ground together.—Will Carleton.

Shots by Skillful Archers.

In the days when the buffalo was found in vast herds on the western plains, there were Indians who, while riding at a gallop, could send an arrow through a buffalo's body. Remarkable as this shooting was, yet it did not equal that reached by the archers of ancient time.

Mr. Dixon, in his history of Gairlock, Scotland, says that the MacRaes of that district were such skillful archers that they could hit a man at the distance of 400 and even 500 yards. He instances the killing of a serving man at 500 yards and of two men killing several McLeods at 400.

Lest the reader should discount the distance of the range, the author mentions several wonderful shots made by Turks. In 1794 the Turkish ambassador shot an arrow, in a field near London, 415 yards against the wind and 482 yards with the wind.

The secretary of the ambassador, on hearing the expressions of surprise from the English gentlemen present, said the sultan had shot 500 yards. This was the greatest performance of modern days, but a pillar, standing on a plain near Constantinople, recorded shots ranging up to 800 yards.

Sir Robert Ainslie, British ambassador to the sublime porte, records that in 1798 he was present when the sultan shot an arrow 972 yards.—Youth's Companion.

Scandinavians in the United States.

A series of articles on different nationalities in the United States forms one of the unique features of the current volume of The Chautauquan. In a late number Albert Shaw discusses the Scandinavians, and gives the following in his valuable computation of statistics: More people have left Norway, Sweden and Denmark during the last seven years to make their homes in the United States than during the entire previous existence of our country. With one-fortieth of the whole population of Europe the Scandinavian countries furnish nearly one twenty-fourth of the aggregate European emigration of the United States during the six decades from 1820 to 1880. Since 1880 we have admitted in round numbers 4,000,000 European recruits to our shores, of whom about 500,000 have been Scandinavians. That is to say, we are during the current decade drawing 12 1-2 per cent. of our new foreign population from a group of kindred nations which have only 2 1-2 per cent. of the population of Europe.—Public Opinion.

Mrs. Langtry's Moonstone.

Mrs. Langtry is particularly partial to the moonstone, and owns one of the most beautiful of its kind known to connoisseurs. It is large and of oval shape, almost transparent, and flashes the colors of the opal under certain lights. Its beauty is enhanced by a setting of small diamonds, which brings out its transparency, and its owner asserts that she always succeeds best in her play when she wears this ornament, which is used as a pin amid lace ruffles.—Public Opinion.

Rockingham county, at the town hall, Exeter, Wednesday, Sept. 12th at 11:00 o'clock A. M.

Republican State Convention.

The republican convention to nominate the next governor of New Hampshire met in Phenix hall, Concord, at eleven o'clock Tuesday forenoon, Sept. 4th.

Hon. Martin A. Haynes of Lake Village was chosen president of the convention; and Edward G. Leach of Franklin, Joseph E. Porter of Dover, Hiram N. Allen of Belmont and Frank W. Hycks of Wolfeboro' secretaries. Hervey Kent of Exeter was the vice president for Rockingham county; B. F. Prescott of Epping represented the county on the committee on resolutions, and Warren Brown of Hampton Falls on the committee on credentials.

FIRST BALLOT.

Whole number of votes	628
Necessary for a choice	315
Solon A. Carter received	1
John A. Spalding	14
Albert S. Twitchell	28

Smith	27
Tuttle	269
Goodell	316

The chairman declared the sixth ballot void, ten more votes being cast than there were delegates entitled to seats in the convention. The seventh ballot was taken by counties, and David H. Goodell of Antrim was nominated.

The platform and nominees of the national republican convention were heartily endorsed.

Naval Intelligence.

The Brooklyn, which sailed from Yokohama for New York on Aug. 4th, was towed into Nagasaki on the 14th with her after crank shaft broken and forward shaft cracked. Has been ordered home under sail.

The Swatara sailed for the South Atlantic station Aug. 18th.

The Yellow Fever.

Thirty-seven new cases of yellow fever at Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 3d; two deaths, making the total to that date thirty-six, out of 295 cases.

The schooner Thackera was off the capes of the Delaware on the 3d inst, with yellow fever on board, and two men dead.

When hens are shedding feathers they often stop laying and grow fat. Most people consider fat a sign of health. The fattening of moulting hens however, as with some people produces debility rather than health. Many of the worst cases of roupe are contracted, while the hens are moulting.

The food of moulting hens, if largely vegetable is fattorming, and not required for growing feathers. Therefore corn-fed hens get very fat. They need more nitrogen and phosphate elements in their food when moulting, which if not supplied they stop laying, because the growing feathers have used all, and left no nitrogenous matter to form eggs. At this season, killing old hens and relying on young pullets is a great mistake; where people have a few hens and late pullets. Because, if properly fed the hens will have their new plumage and lay well all winter; while the pullets unless specially treated may not commence laying until spring, when high prices for eggs have fallen one-half. Again, an old hen's egg will hatch a more vigorous chicken than a pullett's egg.

John R. Jones, Suffield, Conn, a breeder of prize winning mottled Javas, says: "I find Sheridan's Condition Powder fed once daily in the food, very valuable for moulting hens. I have used it for two years for exhibition birds. It assists in growing new feathers, makes the combs a bright red, and gives a rich gloss to the plumage. It will also make hens lay and the eggs hatch well. I find when other egg-foods are used in quantities to force egg production the eggs do not hatch."

The above is the experience of many people in using Sheridan's Powder. If fed to young pullets now as directed, they will begin to lay before six months old. Commence at once using Sheridan's Powder. It helps old hens through moulting, and gets the pullets in laying trim before the season of high prices. Eggs will sell very high this fall and winter. Therefore be ready to get all you can.

I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom House St., Boston, Mass., sole makers of Sheridan's Condition Powder to make hens lay, will send to any address for one two-cent stamp, testimontals with full information how to make a few hens pay well; also how to obtain Sheridan's powder.

New Hampshire Items.

The 13th annual fair at Cold Spring park, Rochester, will be held Sept. 25th to 28th, inclusive. Trials of speed each day, $2000 in purses; entries close Sept. 11th, and must be addressed to A. W. Hayes, tseasurer, Rochester, N. H.

At Manchester, Aug 31st, James Hilton, superintendent of Smyth's Machine works, was killed by having an eight-ton boiler fall against him.

Frank West Rollings, author of "The Ring in the Cliff," is a talented young banker in Concord, and the son of one of the most prominent citizens of the state.

The election of the wife of Senator Blair to be a trustee of the New Hampshire Normal school is said to be the first instance of a woman being chosen to such a position in a state institution.

The New Hampshire Grange fair will be held at Tilton on the 12th, 13th and 14th insts.

News and Notes.

Judge Terry in Jail.

At San Francisco, Monday, Sarah Althea Sharon, the divorced wife of the late Senator William Sharon, and her husband, Judge Terry, created a serious disturbance in the state supreme court, and were sent to jail, the judge for six months and Mrs. Terry for thirty days. Judge Field was reading an opinion as to the validity of Mrs. Terry's certificate of marriage to Sharon, the cause being to revive an old circuit court decree declaring the alleged contract a forgery, when Mrs. Terry interrupted him twice, declaring that he had been bought. Marshal Franks attempted to remove her from the room, when she broke out into oaths and other vulgar language, while Judge Terry struck the officer, nearly flooring him. Terry afterward drew a dirk knife, but he and his wife were overpowered and removed. In Mrs. Terry's satchel was found a loaded bulldog revolver.

To Save Life

Frequently requires prompt action ... hour's delay waiting for the doctor ... be attended with serious consequences, especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Bragdon, of Palestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

UNITED STATES COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

Thomas Garvey of Dover was brought before United States Commissioner Hackett on Tuesday, upon a complaint made by the collector of internal revenue, charging the respondent with being a retail dealer in liquor without payment of the special tax. Garvey was without counsel, and contended that he had witnesses in Dover who could, if he had an opportunity to produce them, disprove the charge. The commissioner gave him until Wednesday morning to produce his evidence. The district attorney appeared for the government.

POLICE COURT---BATCHELDER J.

TUESDAY, Sept. 4th.

Hon. Marcellus Bufford officiated today, in the absence of Judge Batchelder at Concord. One drunk was allowed to go on probation. "Black Jack" Russell, the demented fisherman, was sent to Brentwood for thirty days, and ordered to pay costs, on a charge of vagrancy.

MUSIC HALL.

Tickets for "A Postage Stamp," the sparkling comedy to be presented in Music hall on Friday evening, are now on sale at Goodrich's.

WARD THREE DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS.

The democratic caucus of ward three was held Tuesday evening, Sept. 4th, and delegates elected as follows to the several conventions:

State. Frank Jones, Timothy F. Cronin.

Councillor, Ira G. Eastman, Josiah H. Morrison.

Congressional, Michael F. Canty, Simon H. Mills.

Senatorial, Daniel J. Ayers, Edward Sheridan.

County, Daniel I. Waldron, John W. Moran.

BASE BALL.

The following was the score by innings at Lowell on the 3d inst., when the home club beat the Portsmouths in a New England league championship game:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11

John Barry, released from the Electric base ball club here, has joined a similar club at Gardiner, Me.

The Portsmouth club beat the Lowells on the South street grounds Tuesday afternoon, by the score of two to one.

PERSONAL.

We learn that Mr. Stephen Decatur will occupy the house of Capt. C. C. Carpenter in Middle street the coming winter.

Miss Annie M. Stickney of this city, who has for two months been visiting her sister, Mrs. Albert J. Bacon, at Hyannis, Mass., arrived home on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. E. C. Stickney of Lynn, Mass., arrived in this city Tuesday evening on a visit to Mrs. J. H. Stickney of Rogers street.

Miss Mabel Bennett of State street is at Salem, Mass., to take the post-graduate course at the State Normal school. Miss Nellie C. Mooers is also attending that school.

Miss A. Maude Woodward has resigned the position of primary school teacher in this city, to accept a similar position in North Attleboro,' Mass., at a higher salary.

Mrs. Amelie Rives-Chanler, who is to write a play called Ethelwold, is at Newport, R. I. She comes to Portsmouth for a season, and then goes to Rockeby, on rope.

Mrs. John W. Young, of Washington street, has gone to Echo lake, East Wakefield, this state, for a visit of several weeks.

Miss May Dennett of Somerville, Mass., granddaughter of the late Col. Nathaniel Dennett of this city, is visiting Miss Carrie Kinnear of Water street.

DEMOCRATIC DELEGATES.

HAMPTON. State, Joseph B. Burns, George A. Chase; congressional, Abbot L. Young, Melzar W. Dunbar; councillor, Abbot L. Young, Curtis DeLancey; senatorial, Fred E. Sanborn, John W. Dearborn; county, Frank J. Sanborn, Curtis DeLancey.

GREENLAND. State, Alexander Junkins, Edwin A. Peterson; congressional, Wm. H. Packer, Lorenzo D. Duntley; councillor, Nathan Berry, Charles Foss; senatorial, Daniel W. Shea, George A. Coleman; county, John Hatch, Charles W. Marden.

C. W. Taylor, the furnace expert, is setting a large Magee Boston Heater furnace in the house of Capt. I. H. Washburne on Vaughan street.

Considerable quantities of new hay were brought to the Parade on Tuesday, and sold at $16.50 per ton.

Coal has gone up another half-dollar on a ton in this city. If it makes a similar rise every month, it will be pretty well up by the time the snow flies.

The Times of the 4th inst. speaks of United States Marshal "Barnard." The political editor, however, on that day was absent making his first trip to the Isles of Shoals.

The space left by the submerged portion of the wharf near the rear of Eldredge's brewery stores on Bow street has been fenced off, to prevent accidents.

The Wentworth house at Newcastle is closed for the season.

A big cast-iron cog wheel for the hoisting engine of the schooner T. A. Lambert, now discharging 2500 tons of coal at the Portsmouth coal-pockets—the largest cargo of coal ever brought to this port by any vessel—arrived in this city by train from Bath, Me., on the 3d inst.

There is a decided interest in the question who shall be the nominee of the democratic convention in senatorial district No. 24.

The Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York paid, during the week ending Aug. 23d, death claims amounting to $127,929.35, and endowments amounting to $57,979,-55; total, $185,909, a daily average of $30,984.83.

The Times says that the failure of the French spoliation bill causes sore disappointment among the claimants in this city, etc. Some of these claimants, however, will vote the democratic ticket just the same in November. Like true members of the party they bow to the order of the chief, that the surplus, which is to be used to help free trade in its raid upon American industries, must not be reduced.

For a new reservoir for fire department purposes, the board of mayor and aldermen have authorized the committee on fire department to take steps to purchase a piece of land on Richards avenue.

The practice-ship Constellation arrived at the naval academy, Annapolis, Md., Aug. 29th. It was announced that after landing the officers and cadets at the academy she would go to Norfolk, Va., and take on board (from the receiving-ship Franklin) the crew of the Jamestown, after which she was under orders to come to this station and take on board the naval apprentices from the Portsmouth and Saratoga, now undergoing repairs at this yard. The Jamestown, at the Norfolk navy yard for repairs, has been ordered out of commission, and on the completion of her repairs will be turned over to the state of Pennsylvania to be used as a schoolship at Philadelphia. A letter from Annapolis, in one of the service newspapers last week, said the Constellation, at the end of her service as a training ship, would be stationed at this navy yard as a receiving ship; but no hint was given as to the disposition of the receiving ship Constitution, now here.

Mr. Alden Gilchrist, whose farm is on the Beach Ridge road, York, was on the Parade, Tuesday, with a load of hay. He has harvested this year 300 tons, well cured.

The survivors of Company H, 27th Maine regiment, will hold a reunion at North Parsonsfield on Sept. 18th. The regimental reunion will be held at Kittery on the 12th inst.

Manning P. Tobey of Kittery, who recently completed his theological studies at Bates college, has been settled as pastor of the Congregational church at Village, Ossipee, N. H.

The Davis shoe factory at West Kennebunk has shut down, and the plant will be moved to Richmond, Va. Between 200 and 300 operatives will be thrown out of work by this change.

The democrats of Kittery had a rally Tuesday evening. The South Berwick Cadet band furnished music for the occasion, and went home on a freight train from this city, stopping on the Parade long enough to play several tunes on their way from the Mystic's landing to the railroad station.

The loss sustained by Mr. Solomon Staples by the recent burning of his new barn in Eliot is estimated to be $1000. The new crop of hay was all in, and the farming implements were nearly all destroyed. From the frequency of such fires of late in Eliot, York and Kittery it is more than suspected that there is a firebug around in York county, and measures will be taken for his apprehension.

A mass meeting of York county democrats is being arranged to take place at Sanford on Friday evening, Sept. 7th. Hon. M. V. Gannon of Nebraska will be the principal speaker. Democratic clubs from Springvale, Alfred, Acton, North Berwick, Kennebunk, Goodwin Mills, Lebanon Centre, South Waterboro, Saco and Biddeford are expected to be present.

ELIOT ITEMS.

ELIOT, ME., Sept. 3d.

Samuel Dixon arrived home last Saturday from the west, having been absent six weeks from his family here on a visit to his daughter at Omaha, Neb., and his son at Minneapolis, Minn.

Mr. A. R. Crosby and wife of Cambridgeport, Mass., are guests of their brother, J. W. Nowell, postmaster at South Eliot.

Mrs. D. W. Parshley died on Thursday last, Aug. 30th, at the residence of her sister, Mrs. Ira L. Paul, after a long illness. Funeral services were held at the house on Saturday, and the remains were taken to Portsmouth. Mrs. Parshley leaves a husband. Their home was in Strafford, N. H., and they were on a visit here when she was taken sick, and never returned to her home.

The republicans of Eliot on Saturday night nominated Timothy Dame, Esq., as candidate for representative to the legislature. The democrats held their caucus the same evening, and nominated George E. Ireland. The election occurs Monday, Sept. 10th.

Julia A. Knight arrived at the home of her parents on Saturday from Manchester, where she had been for the previous three months with her sister, Mrs. P. E. Rogers, who has been very sick.

Wm. W. Knight on Saturday, the 1st inst., moved into the house of Mr. C. H. Staples.

Dr. E. H. Dixon will occupy the office of Dr. Blaisdell of Portsmouth for two weeks, while Dr. Blaisdell is away on a vacation. All those wishing the professional services of Dr. Dixon during that time will please call at Dr. Blaisdell's office on Market street, Portsmouth.

Dr. J. L. M. Willis has purchased a number of acres of land near the river from J. H. Rogers, for the purpose of erecting a cottage for the accommodation of summer boarders. And we hope a larger and more pretentious building will soon be erected, as there is no reason why the Eliot shore of the noble Piscataqua should not become a famed watering place, with its unequalled facilities for boating, fishing and bathing, its pure air and excellent fresh water, its proximity to Portsmouth, and its magnificent river views.

Rev. James Lade and family are expected to arrive home from their visit to England this week, so that Mr. Lade will on Sunday next occupy his pulpit in the Congregational church. HARRY.

Texas Instructing Massachusetts.

The mission of Mr. Mills from the state of Texas, great as it is, with its as yet undeveloped mineral resources and immense water power suited to manufactures of all sorts, to the people of the little New England state of Massachusetts, so experienced in labor questions and manufacturing, to lecture them upon the tariff and the benefits of free trade, is [illegible] It must be very edifying [illegible] people of the state which Mr. Mills represents, to hear of such things. The state from which he comes is well adapted to sheep raising, introduced by the late George W. Kendall, a native of Amherst, New Hampshire, and and an employe of the New York Tribune, afterward of the New Orleans Picayune. The manufactures at the fine water power of New Braeufels and San Marcos were the conception of a gentleman from Connecticut. Since the abolition of slavery the people of the south are much interested in whatever tends to the advancement of labor. Much has been said erroneously in regard to the grade of the wools raised in the United States; instead of being of coarse quality, it is of the finer sorts; there is need now of the coarser sheep.

The population of the state of Texas, coming from all the states of the Union, never were noted until now for their laboring propensities. The climate was not such as to induce extra exertion. As Davy Crockett said, it was "good for men, but h—— on women and horses."

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating

Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. PAGE, Watertown, Mass.

A Cup of Sanford's Ginger.

SANFORD'S GINGER, compounded of Imported Ginger, Choice Aromatics, and the best of French Brandy, is a most grateful stimulant to the stomach, specially promoting digestion and assimilation of food, and hence fortifies the system against prostrating influences and summer ills.

It instantly relieves cramps and pains, speedily checks all forms of summer ills, prevents indigestion, destroys disease germs in water drunk, restores the circulation and digestion when suspended by a chill,—a frequent cause of stomach troubles,—breaks up colds and fevers, and wards off malarial, contagious and epidemic influences. Never travel without SANFORD'S GINGER. Avoid cheap and dangerous imitations.

A DISTRESSING COUGH.

How many, especially during the Fall and Winter months, are troubled with a Cough, sometimes dry and hacking, sometimes loose causing the sufferer to raise a large amount of offensive matter; this can soon be cured by using Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs.

Cured her Cough.

MRS. JEREMIAH CLARK, Lowell, Mass., says: "Twelve years ago I first took a bottle of your Throat and Lung Specific. I had been troubled with a very bad Cough for months. A 50-cent bottle cured my Cough. Since then I have not been without it. I can heartily recommend it to any one who has a bad cough."

Saved his Life.

CHAS. A. WAITT, says: "No language can express the value I attach to your Specific. I believe it saved my life."

We would cite other testimonials did we think it necessary, but a trial bottle will convince you that it is all we represent. Give it a trial.

BABY CARRIAGE FOR SALE.

The London Standard, hitherto one of the warmest admirers of President Cleveland and his free trade message, in a blood-curdling editorial on the rejection of the fishery treaty and the president's retaliation message says:

"It will be well for the president and government of the United States to remember that Canada is a dependency of Great Britain, and that if the necessity should unfortunately arise she has behind her guns and English ironclads. If our American cousins fail to understand this allusion; if, in deference to the tone of coarse brutality which seems to be a distinguishing feature of their domestic politics, they invite us to reply to their insults in a strain they will comprehend, perhaps we may be allowed to remind them of the Trent affair. "The Standard further says: "If we have to deal with a nation of filibusters, let us at least know it. We will tell our American cousins frankly that we have not advanced so far toward ideas of Christianity that we are prepared to turn our cheek to the transatlantic smiter."

If the Cleveland-Bayard treaty was such an advantageous contract for the United States as its promoters and advocates maintained, why in the world has the blusterer across the herring pond reason to be so wrathful at its rejection by the republican senate? We do not think he will do any serious harm. He might try ice on his head; or soak it in vinegar.

When we consider the patronage of this great office, [the presidency,] the allurements of power, the temptation to retain place once gained, and more than all, the availability a party finds in an incumbent whom a horde of office holders, with a zeal born of benefits and fostered by the hope of favors yet to come, stand ready to aid with money and trained political service, we recognize in the eligibility of the president for re-election a most serious danger to that calm, deliberate and intelligent political action, which must characterize a government by the people.—Grover Cleveland.

Grover Cleveland has done more to advance the cause of free trade than any Prime Minister of England has done.—London Spectator.

The American election is infinitely more important to Englishmen than their own internal politics just at this juncture. * * * The main question at issue is English free trade against the continental system of protection.—London Times.

It is certain that the arguments which President Cleveland urges are those which Cobden used to employ forty-five years ago, and which any free trader could employ now.—London Times.

Our manufactures require the systematic and fostering care of the government. * * Equally important it is to provide at home a market for our raw materials.—James Monroe.

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

When our manfactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C. Calhoun.

Congress have repeatedly, and no without success, directed their attention to the encouragement of manufactures. The object is of too much consequence not to insure a continuance of their efforts in every way which shall appear eligible.—George Washington.

The issue of Protection is incalculably stronger and greater than any man, as it concerns the prosperity of the present and of the generations yet to come.—James G. Blaine.

When used according to directions, Ayer's Ague Cure is warranted to eradicate from the system fever and ague, intermittent, remittent, and bilious fevers, and all malarial diseases. Try it.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

To the Delicate and Malarious.

The most incredulous are convinced of the virtues of Aunt Rachael's Malarial Bitters upon a trial of them. Their base is Speer's port wine, with herbs and roots so favorably known to the medical profession and the community at large as the best cure for malaria. They are all that can be desired by the most feeble victims of malaria.

For sale by druggists and the Aunt Rachael Pad Co., Passaic, N. J.

Sarah K. Bolton, in her new volume, "Some Successful Women," tells the life-story of such women as Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer, Marion Harland and Juliet Corson.

Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interest of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

President Cleveland declines cautiously to dub himself a free trader, but he enters upon free trade position without disguise.—London Saturday Review.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

The Biting Tongue.

Slander attacks us from behind. The bite is rarely felt unless it is malignant and persistent. Disease, too, often steals upon us through a vital channel. The air we breathe affects the lungs—if it be malarious it enters the blood, if it change too quickly in the temperature it produces disease of the throat, &c. Whether Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is taken to prevent or to remedy the various forms of disease produced by miasma, such as intermittent fever, dumb ague, ague cake or billious remittent, it is and ever has proved to be an effective and thorough remedy—one which does not only ameliorate the symptoms of the maladies of this type, but eradicates their cause. Dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, bladder and kidney troubles are among the humanity-afflicting troubles which it promptly relieves and ultimately removes.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union, of Rochester, N. Y., is waging a zealous warfare against Sunday desecration in that city.

Aunt Rachael's Bitters.

The undeniable fact that these Bitters are composed in the main of Speer's Grape Juice, with Peruvian bark, snake root, etc., analyzed and recommended to invalids and the medical profession, by the best chemists in the United States, cannot fail in inspiring confidence in the use of these Malarial Bitters.

Mrs. Mary B. Clay has been made chairman of the wheat pool for the protection of the farmers in the neighborhood of Madison county, Kentucky.

Found Dead.

Last evening a person giving the name of G. R. Thompson registered at Hunt's Hotel, and desired to be called in season to take the 12 P. M. train for Chicago. Being unable to awaken him, the room was entered by means of the ventilator over the dood, when the gentleman was found to be dead. He was advertising agent for Sulpher Bitters, which has an extensive sale. The coroner returned a verdict of death from heart disease. His body will be sent east immediately.—Cin. Commercial.

The death is announced of Mrs. Lizzie Clark Swift, the famous hospital nurse of the second army corps in the Virginia campaigns of 1863 and 1864.

A Good Appetite

Is essential to good health; but at this season it is often lost, owing to the poverty or impurity of the blood, derangement of the digestive organs, and the weakening effect of the changing season. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a wonderful medicine for creating an appetite, toning the digestion, and giving strength to the whole system. Now is the time to take it. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla.

The charitable Mrs. Townsend has made another gift to Bellevue hospital, in the form of a two-story brick building to cost $10,000, and to be erected at once. This new structure is intended for a reading-room and chapel for convalescent patients of both sexes.

Disorders of the stomach, liver, and kidneys, can be cured by restoring the blood to a healthy condition, through the vitalizing and cleasing action of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is the safest, most powerful, and most highly concentrated alterative available to the public.

We must now place our manufactures by the side of the agriculturist. * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

Hay Fever.

I have suffered greatly from periodical returns of hay fever. Covert & Cheever, Druggists, suggested Ely's Cream Balm. I used it during a severe attack. I can cheerfully testify as to the immediate and continued relief obtained by its use. I heartily recommend it to those suffering from this or kindred complaints.—(Rev.) H. A. Smith, Clinton, Wis.

Great damage is reported to cotton in Arkansas by a heavy rain last week; also in Mississippi. At Hot Springs, Ark., thirteen persons, mostly colored, were drowned.

Why Adamson's Balsam is so Perfect a Medicine. Because it is a scientifically ordered compound, of great potency, the product of years of study, observation and experience in the treatment of throat and lung diseases.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles.

SYMPTOMS — Moisture; intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue numgs form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. SWAYNE'S OINTMENT stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases the tumors. All druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia. odjo29

The Population of Portsmouth

Is about 10,000, and we would say at least one-half are troubled with some affection of the throat and lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all our readers not to neglect the opportunity to call on their druggist get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Trial size free. Large bottles 50c. and $1. Sold by all druggists. sep22

She Tried and Knows.

A leading chemist of New York says: "No plasters of such merit as the Ath-lo-pho-ros Plasters have ever before been produced." They are a novelty because they are not made simply to sell cheap, they are the best that science, skill and money can produce, and will do what is claimed for them. For sprains, aches, weakness, lameness, etc., they are unequaled.

Fulton St., Sanitary, C. Nov. 21, '87.
"The Athlophoros Plaster acted like magic. It is the best I ever tried and I have used many kinds. Our druggists said "plasters are all about the same" but I don't think so now. I sprained my arm and shoulder in July, and it has been painful since, but it does not pain me at all now. Mrs. WILLIS MOORE.

Don't Kill the Old Hens.

When hens are shedding feathers they often stop laying and grow fat. Most people consider fat a sign of health. The fattening of moulting hens however, as with some people produces debility rather than health. Many of the worst cases of roupe are contracted, while the hens are moulting.

The food of moulting hens, if largely vegetable is fattorning, and not required for growing feathers. Therefore cornfed hens get very fat. They need more nitrogen and phosphate elements in their food when moulting, which if not supplied they stop laying, because the growing feathers have used all, and left no nitrogenous matter to form eggs. At this season, killing old hens and relying on young pullets is a great mistake; where people have a few hens and late pullets. Because, if properly fed the hens will have their new plumage and lay well all winter; while the pullets unless specially treated may not commence laying until spring, when high prices for eggs have fallen one-half. Again, an old hen's egg will hatch a more vigorous chicken than a pullett's egg.

John R. Jones, Suffield, Conn, a breeder of prize winning mottled Javas, says: "I find Sheridan's Condition Powder fed once daily in the food, very valuable for moulting hens. I have used it for two years for exhibition birds. It assists in growing new feathers, makes the combs a bright red, and gives a rich gloss to the plumage. It will also make hens lay and the eggs hatch well. I find when other egg-foods are used in quantities to force egg production the eggs do not hatch."

The above is the experience of many people in using Sheridan's Powder. If fed to young pullets now as directed, they will begin to lay before six months old. Commence at once using Sheridan's Powder. It helps old hens through moulting, and gets the pullets in laying trim before the season of high prices. Eggs will sell very high this fall and winter. Therefore be ready to get all you can.

I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom House St., Boston, Mass., sole makers of Sheridan's Condition Powder to make hens lay, will send to any address for one two-cent stamp, testimontals with full information how to make a few hens pay well; also how to obtain Sheridan's powder.

Found Dead.

Last evening a person giving the name of G. R. Thompson registered at Hunt's Hotel, and desired to be called in season to take the 12 P. M. train for Chicago. Being unable to awaken him, the room was entered by means of the ventilator over the dood, when the gentleman was found to be dead. He was advertising agent for Sulpher Bitters, which has an extensive sale. The coroner returned a verdict of death from heart disease. His body will be sent east immediately.—Cin. Commercial.

The pension agent at Chicago is Mrs. Marian Mulligan, widow of Colonel Mulligan, who was killed at Winchester, Va., in 1864. For three years she has administered the affairs of her responsible office with remarkable success, and in that time nearly $25,000,000 has passed through her hands.

POACHERS OF ENGLAND.

Who They Are and How They Ply Their Nefarious Avocation.

Just as a liar may be something else besides a liar, so a poacher may be, and usually is, something else besides a poacher. Very commonly he calls himself a farm laborer. Short and intermittent "jobs" are what he likes best, and he often changes his master. He will engage himself to a farmer in order to gain the right of going upon certain land, and then, after a careful survey, he will set gins where he thinks proper. To be ordered to work in a field next to a covert is what he likes best, and when his master's back is turned he notices the hares' runs in the fence that divides the field from the wood. At night he returns to the scene of his observations and sets a loose purse net over each run. He then goes into the covert and walks through the side of it next to the fence, when the chances are that at least a hare or two will become entangled in his nets. The "innocent laborer" type of poacher sometimes carries a ferret and a rabbit net in his dinner basket, and seats himself on a hedge bank honeycombed with burrows to take his midday meal, with a result which can easily be imagined.

Cattle drovers and butchers' men often do a great deal of poaching. They are fond of keeping greyhounds, and they train one dog to range while the other sneaks about in readiness to run into any hare or rabbit that may be turned to him. Sometimes they carry their greyhounds in a light spring cart, and when they see hares feeding in a field by the roadside they stop and send their dogs over the fence. These greyhounds are taught to hunt by scent as well as by sight. A still more favorite dog among poachers of this sort is a lurcher, although many fear to keep one, because his very existence is enough to stamp his owner as a man of doubtful character. Properly speaking, a lurcher is the result of a cross between a greyhound and a colly; but he is not always a first cross, and he frequently inherits a strain of some other breed. He is a desperate and deadly enemy to hares and rabbits, and he generally unites an excellent nose and great speed with surprising sagacity and cunning. Of all things it is most important in a poacher's dog that he should never give tongue. We can remember the time when lurchers' tails used to be cut to give their owners an excuse for pretending that they were sheep dogs. In these days, however, sheep dogs are usually allowed to keep their tails, so there is no object in docking a lurcher.

Colliers are much given to poaching in some districts. Their favorite dog is produced by crossing a very small greyhound with a bull terrier or spaniel. Sunday is their great day for poaching. During the hours of divine service they go for walks in little parties of three or four, along public foot paths, and allow their dogs to range in the fields and to draw the hedgerows. As every magistrate has good reason for knowing a large number of petty poaching cases depend upon the question whether the culprit was or was not upon what he calls the "futtpath" at the time the offense was committed. A rat catcher and a mole catcher have many opportunities of poaching, and owners of shootings and gamekeepers would do well to keep a sharp eye upon persons following those callings. Perhaps the worst of all kinds of poachers are poaching gamekeepers. A keeper who hints at anything like sharp practice with regard to a neighbor's boundaries is never to be trusted about his own master's interests. We remember a keeper who was employed on an outlying shooting some miles from home. The man had always a good show of birds and sent a regular supply for the table, but it turned out that he was one of the greatest poachers in the county, and that he had killed and sold the neighbor's game, if not his master's, in considerable quantities.—Saturday Review.

Sewing Machine Kinks.

It is astonishing that makers of sewing machines do not put on a device to raise the foot with the knee, similar to a swell to an organ. It could be easily and simply arranged by connecting the knee lever with the presser bar by means of a cord (or say fine wire cord) about as follows:

Fasten the cord to presser bar guide, quilter screw head or the thread cutter, thence up over pulley lever or supporter, attached for that purpose at rear of the face plate, thence to similar device at rear of arm above its base, thence down through the table in a sheave pulley near the top end of right leg, thence across to a lever about twelve inches long, set in a sloping position near the left leg of the sewing machine.

The rear or upper end of the lever should be attached to the under side of table, so the front or lower end will rest against the operator's knee. Thus by a little practice the operator will soon learn to use such a device, and have the use of the right hand where it is much needed at the wheel and to help guide the sewing. It will do away with this everlasting grabbing back to the foot lifter twice for every stop.

Let us figure a little on this matter. Say that 5,000,000 of machines are in use in this country, the waste motions in reaching to lifters amount to several hundred million motions per day that might be utilized to better advantage, and the time lost each day would perhaps amount to thirty years to one individual. Please notice that figures don't lie, and twenty or thirty cents on each machine would save so much.—Sewing Machine News.

New Occupation for Invalids.

A new occupation recommended for semi-invalids by a Philadelphia writer is the making of artificial flies for fishing purposes. The tools required are a small pair of sharp scissors, a pair of spring plyers, a long pin, and a small piece of cobbler's wax. The materials are breast and tail feathers of fowls and game, with silver and gold tinsels, a little fine sewing silk of all colors, some Berlin wool, stained gut, and hooks of various sizes.—Chicago Times.

IN THE BETHESDA MISSION.

Baby Boys and Girls in Chicago's "Day Nursery"—Little Ones at Dinner.

There is one bright spot in the very heart of the "levee" district. It is the Bethesda Day Nursery. It is in a wretched neighborhood—a district where dissipation and sin and sorrow and poverty abound. The population is a horrid mixture, including the worst colored element and the most vile characters of the levee white population. The streets are frequented by bad characters by day, and are the scene of brawls and fights by night. Dives and dens and gambling resorts, and doubtful lodging places, make the place one to be avoided by all respectable people. It is in the very heart of this place that the Women's Christian Temperance union is carrying on its most effective local mission work.

But its most flourishing department is the Bethesda day nursery. The work of this branch is presided over by Mrs. William Sevant, who seems to be peculiarly adapted for charitable work. The nursery was opened in November, 1886, and from that date it has been the home of the babe from the little thing 2 weeks old to the child of 7. There the little ones live and chatter and coo and crow, and cry and laugh and eat and drink during the day time, while their widowed or deserted mothers are out scrubbing or washing, striving to earn a livelihood for her family. Mrs. Sevant has been very successful in her work, but, of course, does not receive the liberal donations in aid of the little ones that she desires. She has secured as matron Mrs. M. B. Smith, who has the immediate care of the nursery. It is located on the second and third floors of the building, immediately above the mission chapel, and is fitted up with a view to the comfort of the babies. Mothers who are striving to earn an honest living and who are obliged to work out by the day, may carry their little ones to the nursery in the morning and call for them again at night when they return from the hard day's toil to their miserable homes. They are asked to pay each day ten cents, if they can; five cents if they cannot afford ten; two cents if they can spare it, and nothing if they have naught to give.

The reporter was taken into the nursery the other afternoon, in the midst of the twenty-three babies, and the sight that met his astonished gaze cannot well be described. It may be said at the outset that the nursery clothes and feeds these little ones, as well as furnishes them a day home. Hence they were all clean and neatly clad. The youngest was three weeks old. It was tugging away at a well filled bottle for dear life, and had an extensive growth of black hair. Its eyes were jet black and piercing, and there was a smile upon its fat little face.

In the "crib room" babies were sleeping and cooing and crying and laughing and rolling upon the floor. It was a queer sight. To see the babies in the dining room is worth the walk to the nursery. There are three long, narrow tables. One is about twelve inches high from the floor, and the little chairs that surround it give the scene an old fashioned appearance. The other two are a little higher, but the "high chair" business has been abolished. Twenty babies at dinner! Well, it is worth seeing. It takes four nurses to pick up spoons. And the baby food. It is delicious, which is evidenced by the keen appetites of the babies. They are a friendly lot at the table, and are allowed considerable latitude. Johnny dips his spoon, for instance, into Eddie's dish. As an appreciation of this Eddie lands a left hand full of bread and milk just under Johnny's left eye. Spoons are thrown aside and a hair pull tug of war sets in, which is lovingly terminated by the gentle hands of the nurse. Such is happy baby life at the Bethesda nursery. —Chicago Herald.

Stealing from Actors.

Actors often suffer from thieves while on the road. It is not their valuables—diamonds, cash and the like movables—which disappear as often as their professional appurtenances, which have less monetary value, but whose loss often causes distressing inconvenience. Eugene O'Rourke sings a pretty and pleasing song, "Papa, Sweet Mamma and Me." One day while the company was staying in one of the interior Michigan towns the entire orchestra score disappeared, having been appropriated by a local leader whose stock of fresh music had run low and who wanted to get a new number for his repertory cheaply. As there was not a second copy of the orchestra score and the song could not be sung without an accompaniment, "Papa, Sweet Mamma and Me" had to retire until the work of orchestration could again be done.

"I can tell of stranger things than that," said an old time actor. "You have no idea of the rapacity of the thieves who rob traveling professionals, nor of their persistency. I knew a leader who had a violin which he prized very highly and watched zealously—even slept with it under his pillow. Well, sir, a fellow up in Muskegon, I think it was, took a notion to have that violin. He followed the company from town to town, and after a week's cat at a rat hole watching, he got an opportunity and sneaked it. Why, they steal our cuffs, collar buttons, old shoes if they can't find mates, make up boxes, stage clothes—anything they can lay hands on."—Detroit Free Press.

An Ingenious Invention.

A very ingenious and useful invention, which has just been patented, in the "Criado illuminator," which is intended for use by dentists and surgeons for the purpose of examining teeth and the throat. The instrument consists of a tube of hard rubber about the thickness of a lead pencil and six inches long. At one end is a funnel shaped opening, into which is screwed a miniature Edison incandescent lump of one candle power, and having on its under side a flat, spoon-shaped piece of silver for compressing the tongue during the examination.—New York Press.

Egg of the Ostrich.

An ostrich egg weighs about three and a half pounds, or the equivalent of thirty fowls' eggs. The flavor is less delicate than that of the eggs of domestic fowls, but they are perfectly eatable. A singular fact is that the eggs will keep fresh and eatable for two or three months.—Chicago Times.

PEND'S HILL, TEXAS, June 20, 1888—The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: One of my children was troubled with rheumatism and boils for about two years. We gave her various kinds of medicine, but without profit, and began to despair of curing her at all. I was persuaded to try your Swift's Specific. After she had used several bottles the diseases all disappeared, and she is now a hale, hearty and healthy girl twelve years old. Another child has just become afflicted in the same way, and I am using the S. S. S. and anticipate a prompt and permanent cure. N. C. WAGGONER.

RICH HILL, MO., July 7, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: Our little girl when but three weeks old broke out with eczema. We tried the prescriptions from several good doctors, but without any special benefit. We tried S. S. S., and by the time one bottle was gone, her head began to heal, and by the time she had taken six bottles she was completely cured. Now she has a full and heavy head of hair—a robust, hearty child. I feel it but my duty to make this statement. Respectfully, H. T. SNOW.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., June 27, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: In 1886 I contracted blood poison, and at once sought a physician, who treated me for several months, by his advice I went to Crab Orchard Springs, Ky., where his course of treatment was carefully observed. I recovered, as I thought, but the next spring pimples began to appear on my face and body. These gradually increased to sores and running ulcers. I was advised to try S. S. S., and immediately after taking it I commenced to improve, slowly at first, but more rapidly afterwards, and soon nothing remained to tell of my trouble. My blood is now thoroughly cleansed, and my system free from taint, and I owe my present condition—a perfect cure—to your medicine. I cheerfully give this statement that others who have suffered as I have may reap the same benefit. HARDY M. BURT, 24 West Ninth St.

HOWES, LA., May 25, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: About two years ago my general health gave way entirely. I was so debilitated that I almost despaired of ever feeling well again. All that the physicians done for me brought no permanent relief. Friends insisted that I should give S. S. S. a fair trial, although I thought it would be throwing away money. After taking a thorough course, my health and strength returned, and I must say that S. S. S. alone cured me, as I discarded all others while using it, and I cordially and most heartily recommend it for general debility, it certainly is a specific. W. F. BURGESS, J. P.

HOUSTON, LA.—I know Mr. W. F. Bridges, and will say that his statement is correct. JOSEPH SHELTON, Druggist.

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other.

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." MRS. ELLA A. GOFF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

FOR PRESIDENT,

BENJAMIN HARRISON

OF INDIANA.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,

LEVI P. MORTON

OF NEW YORK.

Vermont Heard From!

Vermont's state election occurred on the 4th inst., and on the afternoon of the 5th the republican majority, estimated on the returns from 123 towns, was placed at about 28,000. The state senate-elect is unanimously republican, and the party has made large gains in members of the house. The majority is the largest ever given in the state for any candidate for governor, and this in spite of the fact that the democratic machine politicians have had things their own way with the civil service reform president, so far as the offices in Vermont are concerned. Free trade and retaliation bluster are effective agencies in Vermont—to make the voters vote the other way.

The Conventions.

The selection of Mr. Goodell as the republican candidate for governor, is a judicious one. The other candidates for nomination were all good men and true. Unfortunately for the people of this state, a railroad question which caused a protracted legislative session last year, and which has caused more real bad blood than did almost any of the old political contests for which in years long since elapsed our state was noted, has entered in the political arena of our state. Entered, did we say? It has been thrust in by those who seek to control not only the legislative but the executive branch of our state government. To this untoward cause is due the fact that a variety of names were suggested in connection with the nomination for governor. Candidates were advocated and their claims were opposed, not upon personal or political grounds, but almost solely in regard to their affiliation with one side or the other of the railway contest. Happily, Mr. Goodell is free from all entangling alliances in this respect. He will have, as abundantly as could any man, the confidence of every one in his impartial conduct in the position he will be chosen to fill.

As we write this the telegraph informs us that Hon. Alonzo Nute of Farmington has been nominated on the first ballot as our candidate for representative to Congress from the first district. The choice of the convention is admirable. Mr. Nute has served in the legislature, was in the army during a portion of the war, and is a gentleman of superior qualifications for the office to which he will be elected. He not only is a representative man of the great industrial feature of New England which has given Farmington such a position as a busy and prosperous town, but he is more. He has the capacity to judge what are the interests of our labor-performing classes, to whom we owe nearly all that New Newland is to-day. He possesses, too, that practical knowledge of men and measures which will render him of signal service to his constituents. With no flourish of trumpets, with no pretensions to accomplish everything, Mr. Nute, if chosen our representative, will be found by his associates at Washington to possess very many attributes which go to make up the useful man in the halls of national legislation. Above all, he is high minded, honorable, clean and of good report, at home and throughout the state. Mr. Nute has not sought office. His name has in former years been frequently mentioned in connection with this nomination. This nomination now comes with a spontaneity which augurs the success of the result in November.

The conventions have done well. Let the republicans remember that Goodell and Nute, while men above reproach in public or private life, represent the great republican idea of protection to our industries, without which New England would become a mere dwelling place for those who could afford to remain, while our busy centres of manufactures would languish and ultimately succumb to the results of the ill-advised projects of the democracy, many of whose voters have no heart in supporting the platform they are compelled to adopt. Let there be no faltering in the republican ranks with such candidates as are thus named for our support.

Editing By Headlines.

The Manchester Union of the 5th inst. did some excellent political "editing by headlines." Over its brief report of the result of the Vermont election the day before, it said: "And Vermont, Too!" "Decided increase in the democratic vote over 1884." "Republicans probably carry the state, however." "The republican ticket manages to pull through." In the report itself it was acknowledged that the republican majority for governor was 26,000 to 28,000, an immense net republican gain over the vote of 1884; that the republican congressmen were "re-elected by handsomely increased majorities;" that "there are in Franklin county, making the state senate solidly republican;" that "there are also large gains in the house, of republicans;" and that in Barlington, in a hot contest for representative, "the republicans succeeded for the first time in four years in electing their candidate, giving Hon. Henry Ballard a majority of 1950." It would seem that with a majority of 28,000 in a state whose total vote at the last previous election was but 57,052, the "probability" of the republicans having carried the state was quite strong, and that the ticket might "manage to pull through."

Republican Congressional Conventions.

The republican congressional convention of the first district, at Manchester on the 5th inst., on the first ballot nominated Alonzo Nute of Farmington, who had 204 votes to 96 for Cyrus A. Sulloway.

The second district convention was held in Concord on the 5th. On the first ballot 328 votes were thrown, making 165 necessary for a choice; Ira Colby had 16, Daniel Barnard 134, Orren C. Moore 178. Mr. Moore's nomination was made unanimous.

Only a Bluff.

A Washington correspondent writes that "England has been given to understand by President Cleveland's administration that the recent message to Congress on the fisheries question was only a bluff, and that John Bull need have no fear that any further retaliation laws will be enforced, or, in fact, that the American market for English goods will be impaired in any way. It is stated that a communication has been sent by the British legation in Washington to the foreign office in London, explaining the president's message, and stating that the administration moves now going on here are for political effect only. This explains the tone of the English authorities as indicated in late cablegrams and through the newspapers. They state that there is no reason to believe that American officials intend to apply the retaliatory act, or bring about any disruption between the United States and Canada. The administration is 'working' the British political and commercial clubs for campaign contributions, and it is not intended that anything shall be done to cut off that source of financial supply."

New Hampshire Items.

A Portsmouth gentleman who was at the Weirs last week reports that the number of persons present at the Grand Army encampment there was between 15,000 and 20,000. Upon being interrogated as to their preferences for president they almost universally declared themselves in favor of Harrison.

Three men were killed and five injured at Woodville, Sept. 4th, by a landslide. They were working on the highway.

Dennis Bresnehan, aged fifty years, of Manchester, placed his couch on the roof of a four-story tenement block, and went to sleep within two feet of the edge of the roof. At an early hour the next morning, police officers found his dead body on the sidewalk in a pool of blood.

The Next Governor.

Hon. David H. Goodell was born in Hillsboro' May 6th, 1834. He is a son of Jesse R. and Olive (Atwood) Goodell, and in 1841 the family removed to the adjoining town of Antrim. The son was fitted for college at Francestown academy, where he was graduated in 1852, and the same year entered Brown university. There he took high rank as a scholar, but during the sophomore year his health failed him and he was compelled to return to his home. After improving in strength he was for a while a teacher in various academies. Soon after the Antrim Shovel company was organized he became its secretary and treasurer, and in 1858 he was appointed its general agent. In 1864 he began to manufacture apple parers in a small way, which was the foundation of what is now the extensive and successful Goodell Cutlery company, which employs 150 persons and pays more than $50,000 annually for labor. Mr. Goodell was a representative to the legislature in 1876, 1877 and 1878, and in 1882 was chosen a member of the executive council. He was for years an active member of the state board of agriculture, and is a charter member of the grange at Antrim. Mr. Goodell married Miss Hannah J. Plummer of Goffstown, and has two children. The family are members of the Baptist church.

Plain, simple foods do not clog or cloy the stomach, but leave body and mind in trim for active, unjiring work, and pre-eminent among these stand the grain foods, whose healthfulness is universally admitted. Hygienic [illegible] recommend oatmeal for [illegible] nutritious qualities, [illegible] hitherto encountered [illegible] housekeeper in cooking [illegible] thoroughly and making palatable have always prevented its becoming universally popular. These two difficulties have been completely overcome by the Quaker Mill company, of Ravenna, Ohio, in the preparation know as Quaker Rolled White Oats, which are quickly and easily cooked, while the superior and peculiar drying processes used by them, retain in the manufactured product all the natural sweetness and flavor of the grain. These excellences are being thoroughly appreciated by the public, and have secured for the "Quaker" brand the unrivalled popularity which it justly enjoys. Being healthful, delicious, and so easily cooked, the Quaker Rolled White Oats have become a favorite breakfast dish, and are known everywhere as the best article of the kind in the market.

There is a movement being made in Saco to establish a branch of the British American society in that city. It is said that there are already enough interested in the movement to start a branch lodge, with a charter membership of fifty Any Protestant American citizen, who was born on British soil, will be eligible to membership.

To Save Life

Frequently requires prompt action. hour's delay waiting for the doctor may be attended with serious consequences, especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Bragdon, of Palestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

REPUBLICAN RALLY—EXCURSION.

An excursion train will be run from this city to South Berwick to-day, to carry those who wish to hear Blaine, Gen. Adam E. King of Maryland and Hon. R. E. Frazier of Michigan talk American politics; the train will leave Portsmouth at 12:45 P. M. Across the river the train will leave Kittery Point at 11:15 A. M.; Navy Yard, 11:20; Kittery, 11:25. Train will return at the close of the addresses.

UNITED STATES COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

In case United States vs. Thomas Garvey, of Dover, charged with being a retail dealer in liquor without having paid the special tax, further evidence was heard on Wednesday, 5th inst., before United States Commissioner Hackett. The commissioner held that one sale did not constitute the respondent a dealer, and if he had been a dealer doubtless other sales, if made, could have been proved. The commissioner stated that from the evidence he did not feel warranted in subjecting the government to the expense of witnesses, etc., when the result would probably be an acquittal, even if an indictment was found by the grand jury. In was not a case where it would be justifiable to hold the respondent to answer further, and he was discharged. Frink for United States; Dodge for respondent.

MUSIC HALL.

To-morrow evening, in Music hall, the comedy "A Postage Stamp" will be presented. It is said to be one of the most mirth-provoking pieces produced of late years. See advertisement.

The great Madison Square theatre success, "Jim, the Penman," will be played in Music hall Saturday evening. Tickets now on sale at Goodrich's.

OBITUARY.

Augustus T. Perkins, eldest son of Winslow T. Perkins, station agent in this city for the Boston & Maine railroad, died at his father's home on Fourth street, Dover, Sept. 4th, at the age of thirty years. The deceased was a victim of consumption, and had been a long sufferer. He was one of the most popular young men in Dover, being identified with many causes of charity, and freely using his time and money in their behalf. The deceased was a graduate of the Dover high school, and had been for many years in the employ of the Boston & Maine railroad. He was a prominent member of the Boston & Maine Relief association.

Mrs. Sally P. Smith, late the oldest person in Newmarket, departed this life on Sunday, Aug. 26th, at the ripe old age of ninety-three years, one month and seven days. The deceased was born in South Newmarket, July 19th, 1795, and was the daughter of Joseph and Betsy (Hill) Smith. Her father died Jan. 7th, 1846, at the age of eighty years, and her mother Sept. 5th, 1865, aged ninety-three years. Mrs. Smith was the third of fourteen children, four boys and ten girls, of whom two only are now living. When the deceased was three years of age her parents moved to Danville, Vt., and they subsequently resided in Derby, Vt., Canada, and Lee, this state, removing to Newmarket when the subject of this sketch was a young girl, and she has resided for nearly seventy-five years in the old garrison house at Newmarket neck, the frame of which is supposed to be 200 years old. Mrs. Smith was the last survivor of the twenty founders of Methodism in Newmarket, having been a member of that church for eighty-three years.

PERSONAL.

S. R. Niles, Esq., and wife, of Boston, passed through this city on Monday of this week on the way to Jackson, this state. They were joined in this city by Mr. Edward G. Niles and wife, who have been stopping at York Harbor, and have also gone to Jackson.

Mrs. M. O. Downes of Kennebunkport is visiting Mrs. F. W. Miller and sisters at Lincoln Hill cottage.

Mr. Loring Jones of Brooklyn, N. Y., has recently joined his family at their summer residence on Richards avenue.

Rev. James DeNormandie of Boston Highlands was in this city on Wednesday.

Buchanan Moulton and wife, of Cambridgeport, Mass., formerly residents of this city, are this week visiting at Mr. John H. Walton's, on Rock street.

Hon. Marcellus Eldredge and family arrived home from Chatham, Mass., Tuesday evening of this week.

Mr. Adolph Nelson of New York, formerly of this city, is in Portsmouth this week.

We had the pleasure on Wednesday, the 5th inst., of receiving a call from our old and valued friend John Wentworth, Esq., of North Kittery. We meet every five or ten years or so, and we—the editorial "we"—do not see that he has changed any since the time, a long length of period ago, when we jointly for a reasonable compensation, rendered invaluable services to the government at the navy yard. By the way, the only dispute we ever had was over the name of the yard; he maintained, with the government, that its name was the "Kittery navy yard;" we insisted that if it was not to be called by what would be an expressive and proper title, "Piscataqua navy yard, "it should bear the name of Portsmouth navy yard; of course he was right, but we have never yet admitted it, and never will. Being a working republican, he was not feeling badly over the Vermont election, and expressed entire confidence in the Pine Tree state giving a good account of her devotion to American interests on the 10th inst.

BASE BALL.

The New England league will continue until Sept. 29th.

The Portsmouth club defeated the Manchesters on their own grounds, Sept. 5th, the score being nine to eight.

The Kittery base ball club will play a game with the Nonpareils of this city at the South street grounds on Saturday afternoon, for the benefit of the Cottage Hospital; game called at three o'clock; admission, gentlemen fifteen cents, ladies free.

SUPREME COURT AT DOVER.

Before the supreme court at Dover on Wednesday, the 5th inst., a case was tried to recover damages for injuries received by a child, Elsie May Philpot, being run over by a bicycle ridden by Lenwood E. Hanson.

The trial of the Barker will case in this court is assigned for the first case at the February term.

A Raymond excursion of fifty persons arrived at the Oceanic from Boston on Sept. 5th, for a two days' visit. The Oceanic will close Saturday, Sept. 8th, after the most successful season in its history, and with nearly every room engaged for next year.

The eight o'clock A. M. trip of the steamer Oceanic to the Isles of Shoals is discontinued. Only one more Sunday trip is to be made—the last opportunity this season for a Sunday visit to the islands; fare for the round trip, fifty cents.

In consequence of the large amount of travel over the Portsmouth bridge, of escaping criminals between the states of Maine and New Hampshire, and of frequent accidents occurring there, it is suggested by some that a telephone be established between the police station and the toll house. Mr. McIntire, the popular and attentive gate keeper, notices everything that transpires there, and information from him might sometimes be very desirable.

Dr. Kay Martin, from Scribner & Sons' publishing house, New York, is now in this city canvassing for the Encyclopedia Britannica. Those who are in want of a first-class encyclopedia had better improve this opportunity, as Dr. Martin is at present offering special inducements for securing this work now. The 24th and last volume is now ready, and subscribers will not have to wait an indefinite time before receiving these volumes.

The steamer Oceanic brought in from the Shoals on Wednesday morning of this week a large number of the company visiting the hotels, and a considerable portion of the help employed. The summer tourists regret leaving here at this delightful season of the year, but they are obliged to return on account of the press of business at their usual places of avocation.

Work was commenced this week at removing the plank sidewalk on Miller avenue, and replacing it with a gravel walk.

Our neighbor the Times had not heard of any election in Vermont, up to Wednesday evening.

The striking of the fire-alarm shortly after midnight, on Tuesday night of this week, was caused by the breaking of a wire. Supt. Tratton repaired the break before six o'clock next morning.

Miss Nettie Eldredge, daughter of Mr. H. Fisher Eldredge, gave a lawn party on Wednesday afternoon of this week to the young ladies of the tennis club of which she is a member, the event marking the close of the season. The party was given on the grounds of Mr. Eldredge's residence on Miller avenue; refreshments were served under a canopy on the lawn, the Salem Cadet band and orchestra furnished music, and there was a fine illumination and brilliant display of fireworks in the evening.

The steamer Oceanic has been taking bales of pressed hay to the Shoals for some days this week, for the use of the live stock kept on the islands.

Miss L. H. Anderson will reopen her school on Summer street Monday, Sept. 10th.

Mr. Floron Barri, formerly of this city, now of Boston, was very glad on Tuesday forenoon, the 4th inst., to have the fire department respond so promptly and extinguish a fire in a shed adjoining his stable and barn on Saratoga street in that city. The danger was very serious for a time, but the damage was not great.

AFFAIRS IN KITERY.

KITTERY POINT, ME., Sept. 4th.

A son of Rev. S. Wakely, pastor of the Freewill Baptist church, is sick with typhoid fever; may he speedily recover.

The schooner Grace K. Green, of Portsmouth, arrived in Boston last Wednesday. Capt. Seaward came home Thursday, and returned on Monday accompanied by his wife and two children.

Mrs. Lorenzo Fletcher and family went to Boston last Thursday to pass a few days with her husband, the first mate of the schooner Grace K. Green.

Capt. J. R. Amee and son started for Salem, Mass., last Wednesday, in a small sail boat, arrived there all right, and returned by rail the latter part of the week.

Mrs. David W. Turck returned to Malden, Mass., last Saturday, after a pleasant visit home and to Boon island.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Aldrich and Mr. and Mrs. John H. Pruett of Malden arrived here last Saturday night on a short vacation.

The schooner Mary Willey, Capt. Williams, sailed last Sunday morning for Portland, where she will load with flour and grain for Bangor.

While coming up the street the other morning we saw two young ladies hoisting the democratic campaign flag. It was a very pretty sight, the large flag gently fluttering in the breeze as it was hoisted, the bright colors of the stars and stripes being repeated in the dress of the young ladies.

Mr. C. W. Raynes returned to his home in Willimantic, Conn., last Monday; his family will remain here a few weeks longer.

Mrs. Alonzo Springer, of Boston, returned home last Monday after a short visit here.

Mr. Daniel Seaward and Mr. Moses Randall are plastering Mr. G. S. Wasson's house, and Mr. W. H. Riley, the builder, is at work on a new house for Mr. Chas. Call.

The condition of the highway near Barter's creek bridge has been greatly improved, and the bridge is now being repaired.

A party of workmen arrived at Boon island last Monday to repair the dwelling house; it will be all cleaned out inside, two new rooms made, replaced throughout, and be left in first-class order. A much needed improvement.

UNCLE MOSES.

KITTERY POINT, ME., Sept. 4th.

The republicans of Kittery are wide awake to the issues of the political campaign, and if the whole state will do as well in proportion, the result of the vote at the state election will convince Mr. Cleveland that his grand back-action handspring on the fishery question is well understood by the New England voters as being a mere piece of campaign buncombe. Protection vs. free trade is the blow as hard as he may, to blind us to that fact.

A coasting vessel which came into the lower harbor last Friday and anchored off Fort McClary, had hardly got her sails down before one of her crew jumped overboard. He was picked up by a boat from another vessel and taken ashore. He was much stove up about the face and head, and said the captain and another man had beaten him with a hammer, and otherwise misused him. Five years in state prison would be about the thing for them.

The old schooner that was run down and sunk by a fishing schooner off Straw's point, Rye, is still there, with her topmast about five feet out at high tide. If some loaded vessel was to come along there and hit right on top of the mast, she would go down like a stone. The obstruction should be removed.

JAMBO.

The president, teller and solicitor of a bank at Roseland, Ill., have gone off with the entire assets. They left the building, which was rented, and some of the books.

Farmers of American industry.

The Army and Navy Journal says: There are only thirty-three mates in the navy, but their rights should be as sacredly considered as though there were as many thousands. This is the judgement of the naval committee of the senate, who have presented a strong report in favor of the passage of the bill construing the law regulating the pay and retirement of warrant officers so as to include the mates. The committee say: "It is difficult to understand why longevity pay was not given to the mates in the act of 1870, when the pay was fixed for all naval officers and longevity pay given to all others. The mates were a small corps, and it was then understood that no more appointments were to be made to that grade, and it is probable that they did not assert their rights in the usual way. Certain it is that they were overlooked and neglected, and their pay has remained unchanged and inadequate in all these years. There is every reason why the pay of the mates should be equal to that of warrant officers. They take precedence of the warrant officers in line of duty, their duties are equal, or of a higher order, their uniform is the same, their mess bills the same." All of the mates have been in the service more than twenty years, except nine who have served more than eighteen years. A majority have served more than twenty-five years. Five of them are on sea duty and receive $85 a month; several are on waiting orders or leave and get $41.60 a month, and most of them are on shore duty and receive $58.25 per month. Out of this pay must come their clothing, mess bills, etc. The naval regulations define their duties to be such as their commanding officers may consider that they may be capable of performing, and from long experience in the service they are most frequently called upon to perform the same duties as those prescribed for lieutenants, and have performed the duties of commanding, executive and deck officers for many years. At the present time Mate James A. Smith is commanding the Fish Hawk, Mate C. H. Cleveland is the executive officer, and Mate J. M. Creighton is deck officer on board the same vessel. Most of these officers are well advanced in years, and have families depending on them for support. Some few have served forty years as enlisted men and officers. Nearly all served during the late war, and some were in service during the Mexican war. Their case certainly calls for prompt action upon the bill which has received the approval of the senate committee to which it was referred.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

To the Delicate and Malarious.

The most incredulous are convinced of the virtues of Aunt Rachael's Malaria Bitters upon a trial of them. Their basis is Speer's port wine, with herbs and roots so favorably known to the medical profession and the community at large as the best cure for malaria. They are all that can be desired by the most feeble victims of malaria.

For sale by druggists and the Aunt Rachael Pad Co., Passaic, N. J.

President Cleveland declines cautiously to dub himself a free trader, but he caters up a free trade position without disguise —London Saturday Review.

It is certain that the arguments which President Cleveland urges are those which Cobden used to employ forty-five years ago, and which any free trader could employ now.—London Times.

An extensive domestic market for the surplus produce of the soil is of the first consequence. It is, of all things, that which most effectually conduces to a flourishing state of agriculture.—Alexander Hamilton.

When used according to directions, Ayer's Ague Cure is warranted to eradicate from the system fever and ague, intermittent, remittent, and billious fevers, and all malarial diseases. Try it.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

When our manufactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C. Calhoun.

Congress have repeatedly, and no without success, directed their attention to the encouragement of manufactures. The object is of too much consequence not to insure a continuance of their efforts in every way which shall appear eligible.—George Washington.

The issue of Protection is incalculably stronger and greater than any man, as it concerns the prosperity of the present and of the generations yet to come.—James G. Blaine.

When we consider the patronage of this great office, [the presidency,] the allurements of power, the temptation to retain place once gained, and more than all, the availability a party finds in an incumbent whom a horde of office holders, with a zeal born of benefits and fostered by the hope of favors yet to come, stand ready to aid with money and trained political service, we recognize in the eligibility of the president for re-election a most serious danger to that calm, deliberate and intelligent political action, which must characterize a government by the people.—Grover Cleveland.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

The Biting Tongue.

Slander attacks us from behind. The bite is rarely felt unless it is malignant and persistent. Disease, too, often steals upon us through a vital channel. The air we breathe affects the lungs—if it be malarious it enters the blood, if it change too quickly in the temperature it produces disease of the throat, &c. Whether Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is taken to prevent or to remedy the various forms of disease produced by miasma, such as intermittent fever, dumb ague, ague cake or billious remittent, it is and ever has proved to be an effective and thorough remedy—one which does not only ameliorate the symptoms of the maladies of this type, but eradicates their cause. Dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, bladder and kidney troubles are among the humanity-afflicting troubles which it promptly relieves and ultimately removes.

The schooner Margaret Mather, which arrived at Gloucester on the 1st inst., from Grand bank, brought home Francis Mitchell, Robert Campbell, Albert Parsons and Cyrus DeCost, belonging to the crew of the schooner Abbie I. Deering of Portland, who got astray on Bank Quero. After being two days in dories they were picked up by the Margaret Mather.

A Good Appetite

Is essential to good health; but at this season it is often lost, owing to the poverty or impurity of the blood, derangement of the digestive organs, and the weakening effect of the changing season. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a wonderful medicine for creating an appetite, toning the digestion, and giving strength to the whole system. Now is the time to take it. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Hon. Jacob B. Ham, first mayor of Lewiston, Me., died Sept. 2d, aged sixty-four years.

Disorders of the stomach, liver, and kidneys, can be cured by restoring the blood to a healthy condition, through the vitalizing and cleansing action of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is the safest, most powerful, and most highly concentrated alterative available to the public.

We must now place our manufactures by the side of the agriculturist. * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

G. B. Pattee, an Ottawa, Ont., lumberman, recently bought the Patrick silver mine in Arizona. It has proved to be a regular bonanza. Mr. Pattee returned from the mine on Monday. He says four tons of the ore sold at Nogales for $1800 showing almost $500 a ton. He expects to take a safe million dollars a year out of the mine.

Aunt Rachael's Bitters.

The undeniable fact that these Bitters are composed in the main of Speer's Grape Juice, with Peruvian bark, snake root, etc., analyzed and recommended to invalids and the medical profession, by the best chemists in the United States, cannot fail in inspiring confidence in the use of these Malarial Bitters.

Grover Cleveland has done more to advance the cause of free trade than any Prime Ministor of England has done.—London Spectator.

Hay Fever.

I have suffered greatly from periodical returns of hay fever. Covert & Cheever, Druggists, suggested Ely's Cream Balm. I used it during a severe attack. I can cheerfully testify as to the immediate and continued relief obtained by its use. I heartily recommend it to those suffering from this or kindred complaints.—(Rev.) H. A. Smith, Clinton, Wis.

Our manufactures require the systematic and fostering care of the government. * * Equally important it is to provide at home a market for our raw materials.—James Monroe.

My Wife Said

To me last night: How much do you suppose we have paid out for doctors and medicine in the last year? I told her I did not know. To doctors I have paid nothing, and five dollars' worth of Sulpher Bitters has kept health in our family.

L. Andrews, 12 Bowdoin st., Boston.

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

Why Adamson's Balsam is so Perfect a Medicine. Because it is a scientifically ordered compound, of great potency, the product of years of study, observation and experience in the treatment of throat and lung diseases.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles.

SYMPTOMS — Moisture; intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. The Population of Portsmouth

Is about 10,000, and we would say at least one-half are troubled with some affection of the throat and lungs, as their complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all our readers not to neglect the opportunity to call on their druggist get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Trial size free. Large bottles 50c. and $1. Sold by all druggists. sep22

OH! MY HEAD.

The pain from Neuralgia and its companion disease Rheumatism is excruciating. Thousands who could be quickly cured are needlessly suffering. Athlophoros will do for others what it did for the following parties:

Williamsport, Ind., Oct. 8, 1887.

Having been afflicted with neuralgia for the past four years, and trying almost everything, but in vain, I finally heard of Athlophoros. After taking one bottle I found it to be helping me, and after taking four bottles of Athlophoros and one of Pills, I found that I was entirely well. I think the medicine is positively a sure cure.

ORANGEY B. REDDICK.

Mt. Carmel, Ill., Dec 28, 1887.

I have used Athlophoros in my family and find it to be the greatest medicine for neuralgia in existence and having had its fangs fastened upon me for almost 30 years I know whereof I speak. MRS. JULIA CHILTON.

Don't Kill the Old Hens.

When hens are shedding feathers they often stop laying and grow fat. Most people consider fat a sign of health. The fattening of moulting hens however, as with some people produces debility rather than health. Many of the worst cases of roupe are contracted, while the hens are moulting.

The food of moulting hens, if largely vegetable is fattorming, and not required for growing feathers. Therefore cornfed hens get very fat. They need more nitrogen and phosphate elements in their food when moulting, which if not supplied they stop laying, because the growing feathers have used all, and left no nitrogenous matter to form eggs. At this season, killing old hens and relying on young pullets is a great mistake; where people have a few hens and late pullets. Because, if properly fed the hens will have their new plumage and lay well all winter; while the pullets unless specially treated may not commence laying until spring, when high prices for eggs have fallen one-half. Again, an old hen's egg will hatch a more vigorous chicken than a pullett's egg.

John R. Jones, Suffield, Conn, a breeder of prize winning mottled Javas, says: "I find Sheridan's Condition Powder fed once daily in the food, very valuable for moulting hens. I have used it for two years for exhibition birds. It assists in growing new feathers, makes the combs a bright red, and gives a rich gloss to the plumage. It will also make hens lay and the eggs hatch well. I find when other egg-foods are used in quantities to force egg production the eggs do not hatch."

The above is the experience of many people in using Sheridan's Powder. If fed to young pullets now as directed, they will begin to lay before six months old. Commence at once using Sheridan's Powder. It helps old hens through moulting, and gets the pullets in laying trim before the season of high prices. Eggs will sell very high this fall and winter. Therefore be ready to get all you can.

I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom House St., Boston, Mass., sole makers of Sheridan's Condition Powder to make hens lay, will send to any address for one two-cent stamp, testimonials with full information how to make a few hens pay well; also how to obtain Sheridan's powder.

Found Dead.

Last evening a person giving the name of G. R. Thompson registered at Hunt's Hotel, and desired to be called in season to take the 12 P. M. train for Chicago. Being unable to awaken him, the room was entered by means of the ventilator over the dood, when the gentleman was found to be dead. He was advertising agent for Sulpher Bitters, which has an extensive sale. The coroner returned a verdict of death from heart disease. His body will be sent east immediately.—Cin. Commercial.

A Broker's First Fright.

"I have frequently been caught short on the market and seen myself within an ace of being ruined," said a New street broker to a reporter; "but I was really scared only once in my life, and that was during my first day in the street. My father got me a place in the office of an old friend of his, where I enjoyed the full confidence of my employer. I had been working only a few hours when he handed me ten crisp $100 bills and told me to deposit them in an uptown bank. I put the bills in my coat pocket until I had finished writing up my books and then took a car going up town. When I entered the bank and put my hand in my pocket the bills were gone. I can't describe my feelings, for the simple reason that I hadn't any. I felt myself turned to stone. Both in mind and body I was stupefied. When I had collected myself a little I went out of the bank with the expressed intention of throwing myself into the river. I knew not where I went or what I was doing, but I found that I had returned to the office.

The broker was out when I got back. I was too numb to be agitated, and no one noticed there was anything the matter with me as I put on my office coat and began poring over the set of books. It was not until I saw the broker coming in the door that I began to fully realize my position. I ran my hand wildly through my hair in a vain attempt to calm myself, and then absent mindedly put it in my pocket. The first thing I felt was the roll of bills. I had changed my coat and forgotten all about it. The broker chided me for not going to the bank, but he never knew why the money wasn't deposited until the next day."—New York Evening Sun.

In Central California.

Heretofore the eastern tourist has been accustomed to hear only of southern California and its so-called semi-tropical climate, while scarcely anything has been said of the merits of the climate in central California. To such an extent has this puffing of one portion of the state to the detriment of another section been carried that many of the eastern tourists now visiting the counties adjacent to the bay seem to be surprised that fruits of many kinds are grown outdoors until Christmas. Particularly is this so in regard to grapes. Some surprise has been expressed that the fine grapes on exhibition at the rooms of the state board of trade should be found outside of Los Angeles and San Diego counties, whereas the fact is that the best grapes grown anywhere in California are produced outside of southern California, and those grown in Sonoma, Napa, Santa Clara and along the eastern foothills of the Sacramento valley have never been surpassed anywhere.

Another fact worthy of becoming known is that there ripen in Butte county, 600 miles north of Los Angeles, and at Los Gatos, in the Santa Clara valley, some fifty miles south of San Francisco, the first orange crops of this season. They are of fine quality and nearly two months earlier than the Riverside crops. In Santa Clara county some of the finest white Verdel, Tokay and black Ferrara grapes get ripe and ready for the table at Christmas. In this same county strawberries and raspberries can also be had up to the holidays.—San Francisco Alta.

Something About Dyspepsia.

Chronic dyspepsia is a functional, not an organic, disorder. If the eye could look within the stomach, in the latter case, it would see no explanation of the trouble, as in the case of organic diseases.

At least five kinds of fluids co-operate in the digestive process: saliva, gastric juice, bile, pancreatic fluid and intestinal secretions. Indigestion, therefore, does not necessarily have its seat in the stomach.

Two forms of it are specially recognized —gastric (that of the stomach) and intestinal. Each form has two prominent varieties: one in which the food is really digested, while the person has a great sense of discomfort; the other, in which the food is not duly digested, while the person has comparatively little suffering. In the first variety there is an abnormal excitability of the nerves of sensation. This is known as nervous dyspepsia.

The more common causes of dyspepsia are excesses in eating, neglect of physical exercise, protracted anxiety, change from an active to a sedentary life, insufficient sleep, luxurious living.

No treatment can here be described suited to individual cases. The chief thing is to find out and remove the cause. An overworked stomach should be relieved by giving it only the work which it can do easily, and by furnishing to it only that which is easily digested. Everything should be done to improve the general health. Change of locality and general surroundings is often a help. —Youth's Companion.

Color in Dress in New York.

When we come to the question of color in dress, as it appears relatively to the decorative tendencies of the New York street, we must look for its mainspring, in some degree, to American social conditions. American women, as a rule, make more display of magnificence in the street than the women of any other nation. To them the street means a show, a parade, in which they play an important part. In adopting the modern English esthetic idea of color in dress, American women have applied it extensively to street costumes. The use of brilliant reds in street gowns and hats having spread throughout Europe is now nationalized on American soil, and adds cheerfulness to life and landscape. The approaching change in the costumes of men is likely to result in a freer use of color. The English movement against the monotony of male attire is finding followers in this country, and already many men are beginning to appear in public in colors that were until recently tabooed.—The Art Review.

Clock Bird of Africa.

A missionary in Africa was astonished while walking in a wood to hear a clock strike, though no human habitation was within miles of the place. He discovered that the noise proceeded from a bird known as the clock bird and called by the Spanish the campanero. The bird gives a note every few minutes which is identical with the sound of a striking clock.—Chicago Times.

One Way to Woo Slumber.

Who is there who has not at times carried the excitement of composition too far into the quiet night, and then, when prudence sent him to bed, found sleep a shy visitant? The momentum of his brain work cannot easily be checked; the blood which has been called there for thought making remains there, or, more truly, continues to flow thither; the vaso motor nerves, whose duty it is to regulate the blood current by expanding or contracting the blood vessels, are too tired to work automatically, and they must be helped. Exercise that will distribute the blood through the body and so relieve the brain, is now plainly indicated, and it will surprise the brain weary and sleepless man the first time he tries the following exercise to see how quickly the coveted sleep comes to him.

This is not a doctor's prescription, but only an example of a simple exercise applied to a definite end. With the clothes removed lie on the floor, back down, placing the arms up with the hands clasped behind the neck, and fastening the feet down to the floor in any convenient way, rise to a sitting posture and back, repeating the motion a dozen times, but not in a hurried manner. If this is very easy, load your hands with a light dumbbell or other weight.—William T. Brigham in The Writer.

Benjamin Franklin's Bequest.

In 1890 will end the term of 100 years during which the cities of Boston and Philadelphia have each enjoyed the revenue from a bequest of $5,000 made by Benjamin Franklin. The money was to be loaned out to young married artificers, and the trust has been executed, although the lapse of the century requires a new disposition of the funds. It is significant that while in Boston the $5,000 has grown to nearly $328,000, in Philadelphia the $5,000 has become only $70,000, and that in both cases the amount is less than Franklin estimated it should be. But, as the natural philosophers of Franklin's day generally fell short of the sage in ingenuity, so too the successive boards of trustees have been far from equal to him in business ability. It is interesting to note, however, that the two funds still exist, and that part of the Boston reserve goes in the purchase of a public recreation ground to be known as Franklin Park.—Electrical World.

The Sport of Seal Killing.

A gentleman stood in front of a furrier's store contemplating the seal garments that filled the windows.

"I never see a seal coat," he said, "that I am not reminded of a heart-breaking day I passed among the seal killers."

Then he told of joining an expedition, when he was a young man, and going out for the sport of seal killing. They knocked the pretty creatures on the head. The seals are so tame, affectionate and fearless, that when the hunters landed and came among them they crowded round them like dogs, making their little, friendly bark and fawning upon the murderous hands that proceeded to stretch them bloody corpses upon the beach. The man related how sick at heart he got; how he tried to get away from this massacre of the innocents, and to this day a sealskin coat recalled his wretched experience as a murdering criminal among the seals.—New York Cor. Chicago Herald.

A Steam Catamaran.

A novel craft is being built in Montreal. It is a steam catamaran, each of the cigar shaped hulls being of steel, sixty-five feet long, and built in two compartments, one being for water ballast and the other for coal oil, which will be used for fuel. Two vertical engines will furnish the power to two propellers, which are so arranged that they will lift themselves out of the way when the hulls strike floating ice or other obstacles. The boat can be taken apart and packed on a ship, and is intended for whale and walrus hunting in the Artic regions. It will carry a gatling gun and a powerful electric battery.—Cleveland Leader.

Coffee Not Injurious.

"It is nonsense," said a chemist, "to say that coffee is injurious on account of the cafeine in it. Cafeine is an alkaloid, which, taken in larger doses, would produce nervous troubles and other serious consequences, but is present in coffee in such infinitesimal quantities that it is perfectly harmless; on the contrary, it is to cafeine that coffee owes its tonic properties. If coffee is injurious it works very slowly, for thousands of people who use it to excess live to a good old age. They say Voltaire drank forty-eight glasses of it a day."—Philadelphia Times.

The Tomb of Byron.

The church of Hucknal Torkard, Notts, England, in which is the tomb of Byron, is being rebuilt, but it is said that not a stone of Byron's tomb will be disturbed, and the block of marble sent for the purpose by the king of Greece, and embellished with a laurel wreath wrought in brass by Mr. Richard Belt, which marked the poet's grave, as well as the tablet to his memory, and the mural monument in memory of his daughter, Lady Lovelace, will, after the restoration, occupy the same positions relatively to the grave as now.—New York Sun.

Writing Upon Glass.

The new pencil introduced by Faber for writing upon glass, porcelain and metals in red, white and blue are made by melting together spermaceti, four parts; tallow, three parts, and wax, two parts, and coloring the mixture with white lead, red lead or Prussian blue as desired. These pencils are convenient in the laboratory, and save the trouble of labeling.—Boston Transcript.

Hospital for Hair Diseases.

A London association is endeavoring to establish a hospital for the treatment of hair diseases, with a staff of trichologists and periodical lectures and demonstrations. Bald heads, such as the coming man is supposed to possess, will be remedied as much as possible.—Chicago Times.

Marble Turned to Lime.

The marble slabs which form the roof of Girard college, in Philadelphia, have turned into lime through the action of the sulphurous smoke of the anthracite coal burned in the building.—New York Evening World.

Our Warlike President.

Under the heading "Canada is more calm," the Boston Globe says:

As the time passes on it grows more evident that Canada will not capture any more American fishermen or try to stir up further ill-feeling. The Dominion government was playing a big game of "bluff." While the United States would submit to abuse Canada carried things with a high hand. She captured American fishermen on slight pretence and refused even the satisfaction of an explanation. When the Bayard-Chamberlain treaty was rejected, Canada made loud threats of renewing her petty annoyances, and would no doubt have made things uncomfortable for the fishermen had not President Cleveland brought out his timely and vigorous message. The result has been just what President Cleveland and most Americans expected. Canada has modified her threats and all at once assumed a conciliatory policy. She no longer threatens to capture the fishermen, but according to the talk of her statesmen, is willing to leave the whole question out to arbitration. It is well. We should have no trouble with Canada. She will capture no more of our vessels, and will be very cautious how she gives us offence. For the first time in years there is in the White House a president who has the courage to assert his country's rights; and from his past conduct it is certain that he will stand by what he has said.

If the foregoing was not, as Artemas Ward would say, "wrote sarkastikal," but was really intended to influence the voters along the seacoast, it is not only a magnificent specimen of political "bounce," bat an insult to the intelligence of the New England fishermen.

For years the Canadian officials seized our fishing vessels on the most frivolous pretences, or none at all; not only denied to our fishermen the commercial privileges which were freely granted to Canadian fishermen on our part, but even the common rights of humanity; and hauled down and insulted the American flag ad lib. There was probably already power in the hands of the president to retaliate, but a year and a half ago Congress gave him special power to respond to any further Canadian aggressions.

What did the patriot hero Cleveland and his administration do in the premises? The Canadian outrages continued, but there was no retaliation. The administration proclaimed aloud that the Canadian demands were moderate and well founded; and negotiated a treaty that gave Canada all she demanded, in return for something which the American people did not ask for and did not want. The treaty was kicked out by the republican senate.

And then came Cleveland's howl for ber-r-lud — his buncombe message denouncing the "insolent demands" and "intolerable aggressions" of Canada, (demands and aggressions that were all right until the Cleveland-Bayard surrender of American rights was repudiated,) and demanding that he be given further power of retaliation, to supplement that which had been given him and which he had never used or intended to use. There was not the slightest necessity—except of a political nature—for any message on the subject from Cleveland at the time. During the pendency of the give-away treaty the Canadian aggressions ceased, and the fishing season was practically ended when the rejection of the treaty took place; hence there was no liability of a renewal of the fishery outrages until some time after the next administation comes in at Washington, and no need of any haste in the matter.

Considering all this, it is plainly evident that President Cleveland's startling flop on the fishery question, and his assumption of the role of bully of Great Britain, were not due to any desire of protecting the fishermen in their rights, but in hope of securing their votes for Grover Cleveland. It was the dodge of a cheap politican, not the act of a statesman, and it has fallen very, very flat.

Democratic Conventions.

The democratic state convention of New Hampshire was held in Concord on the 6th inst., and Charles H. Amsden of Penacook was nominated as their candidate for governor on the first ballot, he having 481 votes out of 553, the nomination being then made unanimous.

The democratic congressional convention of the second district was held immediately after the republican convention in Haverhill was nominated without a contest.

New Hampshire Items.

Stephen Gerrish, an old resident of Franklin, hung himself on the 5th inst.

The republicans of Concord raised ten Harrison and Morton flags on the evening of the 4th inst.

The Rollins chapel at Dartmouth college was badly damaged by fire, water and smoke on the night of the 4th inst.

Charles H. Smith, whose recent death in Jacksonville, Fla., from yellow fever, has been reported, was formerly a merchant in Nashua.

Lewis W. Nute, the well known shoe manufacturer of Dover, died at his home in Milton, this state, Sept. 5th.

The Yellow Fever.

There were fifty-five new cases of yellow fever, and five deaths, at Jacksonsonville on the 5th inst.; total cases to date, 388; of deaths, forty-two. One case of the fever was reported the same day at Manatee, and another at Palmetto, Fla.

The Light of Victory.

In the democratic state convention of Massachusetts, held at Springfield on the 5th inst., Hon. John M. Murphy of Boston, in presenting Hon. Wm. E. Russell as a candidate for the nomination for governor, said: "We are here to-day with the sunlight of victory shining in our faces." He probably referred to the light from the overwhelming republican victory in Vermont the preceding day, which so dazzled the eyes of the delegates as to make their convention a very solemn affair.

Lincoln League.

There will be a convention of delegates from the republican clubs of this state to form a State Lincoln League, auxiliary to the National League, at Phenix hall, Concord, Tuesday, Sept. 11th, at eleven o'clock A. M. Each club organized under the State League constitution will be entitled to three delegates.

A general ratification of the national and state tickets will take place at two o'clock P. M., when speeches will be made by Hon. Nathan Goff, republican candidate for governor of West Virginia, Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, Hon. O. C. Moore of Nashua, Hon. J. H Gallinger of Concord, Hon. Chas. H. Burns of Wilton, Hon. C. A. Sulloway of Manchester, Hon. Daniel Hall of Dover, Hon. H. W. Greene of Hopkinton, and others.

Round trip tickets at the rate of one and a half cents a mile, no rate to exceed $2.00, will be on sale at stations upon all divisions of the Boston & Maine railroad, White Mountains division Boston & Lowell railroad, and Concord railroad. Tickets good going Sept. 10th and 11th, and returning 11th and 12th.

Every one of England's great self-governing colonies has adopted the American system of protection. After more than forty years of propagandism such as only the vigorous Anglo-Saxon nature is capable of, not a single civilized country in the world has adopted England's free trade ideas. Even her own colonial children, whom she has reared and nurtured, have, as soon as they have started out to manage their own affairs, repudiated her policy.

The Albany Times (democratic) prints the face of the president's cheque to Calvin S. Bruce, chairman of the democratic national committee, for $10,000, with the naive remark that "it will be observed that he has most courageously refrained from considering any but the most material necessities of his canvass," and adds that "when the president wrote his first letter of acceptance he hadn't had the experience he has acquired since."

A new number of "The Season" is at hand—brilliant as usual. The Season is a first-class ladies' fashion magazine, each number containing about 170 illustrations of the newest Paris fashions and the most elegant designs in fancy work, embroidery, crochet and needle-work; plain sewing and lace work; lace stitch on muslin, cambric and tulle, etc.; Irish point laces, darning on tulle, filagree on linen, etc.; a variety of designs in rug-work, tatting netting, knotting and frame-work; pillow lace; paper, wool and feather flowers; mossic patterns and fancy work in all its branches; three large colored plates; two historical or national costume pictures; a pattern sheet with about twenty flat paper patterns; a richly illustrated review of novelties; initial letters, monograms and alphabets, etc. The information given is clear, plain, comprehensive and practical. Price, each monthly part, thirty cents Of all newsdealers; or, the International News company, New York.

William M. Williams, one of the Shelburne Falls, Mass., bank burglars who escaped from Franklin jail and was recaptured in Boston, was sentenced to three years in the state prison.

Silvestre Garcia Bango, a wealthy sugar planter and mayor of Matanzas, Cuba, has been kidnapped, and is held in $20,000 ransom. When the news was received in Matanzas all was confusion. Troops were sent in every direction to hunt him up.

It is Absurd

For people to expect a cure for Indigestion, unless they refrain from eating what is unwholesome; but if anything will sharpen the appetite and give tone to the digestive organs, it is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Thousands all over the land testify to the merits of this medicine.

Mrs. Sarah Burroughs, of 248 Eighth street, South Boston, writes: "My husband has taken Ayer's Sarsaparilla, for Dyspepsia and torpid liver, and has been greatly benefited."

A Confirmed Dyspeptic.

C. Canterbury, of 141 Franklin st., Boston, Mass., writes, that, suffering for years from Indigestion, he was at last induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla and, by its use, was entirely cured.

Mrs. Joseph Aubin, of High street, Holyoke, Mass., suffered for over a year from Dyspepsia, so that she could not eat substantial food, became very weak, and was unable to care for her family. Neither the medicines prescribed by physicians, nor any of the remedies advertised for the cure of Dyspepsia, helped her, until she commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. "Three bottles of this medicine," she writes, "cured me."

REPUBLICAN RALLY.

A great throng of people assembled at South Berwick on Thursday afternoon, the 5th inst., when Blaine of Maine, Hon. R. E. Frazer of Michigan and Gen. Adam E. King of Baltimore spoke on the political issues of the presidential campaign. The number present was estimated at anywhere from five to ten thousand. A special train of four cars, packed to overflowing, went from this city, returning after the addresses.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

The agitating committee of the proposed Young Men's Christian Association met on the evening of the 5th inst. in the chapel of the Middle street Baptist society, and committees were appointed, with power to appoint sub-committees whose duties should be to properly canvass the different societies, soliciting lodging and breakfast for the 200 or more delegates who are expected to attend the convention; also a committee to superintend a collation which will be given in one of the chapels, a committee of arrangements for forming a chorus choir, etc. The convention will last four days, the first meeting being a welcome meeting on Thursday evening, Sept. 20th. Most of the meetings will be held in the Middle street Baptist church. Delegates will be met at the railroad station, and will receive every attention.

STILL THEY COME.

Mr. Andrew R. Webber of York, and wife, were in this city on Thursday, the 6th inst. Mr. Webber has this season transported over the York beaches to the hotels and boarding houses there, over 600 tons of ice of his own cutting, and is still supplying the hotels with material which he buys. He has all his life been a most vehement democrat of the Jackson type, but in consequence of the action of the administration on the fishery question, he declares himself an out and out republican, he having been a fisherman formerly, cruising off the Provincial coasts.

BASE BALL.

The Portsmouth club played two games at Worcester, Mass., Sept. 6th; the forenoon game was won by the Worcesters, three to two, and the afternoon game by the same club, seven to three. There were no national league games played on the 6th.

Game on the South street grounds this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, between the Portsmouths and Manchesters.

The Kittery base ball club will play a game with the Nonpareils of this city at the South street grounds on Saturday afternoon, for the benefit of the Cottage Hospital; game called at three o'clock; admission, gentlemen fifteen cents, ladies free.

MUSIC HALL.

"A Postage Stamp" at Music hall this evening; not such a postage stamp as, under the present administration of the post-office department, enables you to have your letters carried to the wrong place when they are carried at all, but a much more comical affair. Tickets at Goodrich's; advertisement in another column.

"Jim, the Penman," which is to be performed in Music hall to-morrow evening, was played in Bangor last week, and the Whig of that city thus spoke of it:

Seldom, if ever, have our people had the pleasure of witnessing a better theatrical performance, or one that was presented in a more careful and effective manner than that of last evening, when a large and delighted audience was splendidly entertained by "Jim, the Penman." For over two hours, which seemed hardly half that time, the audience sat without a moment's loss of interest, and at times spell bound at the dramatic situations. The play abounds in scenes which are intense in their effect, and from the beginning the feelings of the auditors are enlisted in the unravelling of the plot. * * The enjoyment and appreciation of the audience was well shown in the unstinted applause which was bestowed upon the most efficient parts of the performance, and frequently so great was the interest that the intense silence was most painful. At the end of each act the curtain had to be raised to satisfy the demands of the audience. The company to whose hands the play is intrusted is an exceedingly strong and well balanced one, and each member is an artiste, who looks to more than a faithful subservience to the demands of the lines. There is hardly a character that could be improved upon, and surely the right men and the right women are in the right places. Nothing is omitted to make up, acting or elocution in make the whole a grand success.

Tickets at Goodrich's; see advertisement.

PERSONAL.

Alfred Hall, Esq., of Brooklyn, N. Y., is visiting at Mr. Samuel Hall's on Sagamore road.

Prof. Barrett Wendell, who returned from Europe this week, arrived at Newcastle on Wednesday.

Dr. James R. May reached home on Thursday from his visit to Isle an Haut.

Mr. Frank Graves and wife, of South Boston, who have been visiting relatives in this city for a week or more, returned home last Thursday afternoon.

Mr. William Parks of Montreal, who has been visiting in this city several days, started Thursday afternoon on his return, intending to make a short stay at Old Orchard, Me., on the way.

Mrs. John Knowlton of Hartford, Conn., formerly of this city, is visiting at Mr. John P. Cooper's in Newcastle.

Rev. William L. Gage and wife, of Hartford, Conn., who are passing a few weeks at Kittery Point, were in this city on Taursday. Mr. and Mrs. Gage, who are so pleasantly remembered by many of our former residents, seem to have been dealt gently with by Father Time since their departure from Portsmouth.

There was a heavy frost on low grounds in this vicinity on the night of Wednesday, the 5th inst., no doubt doing much injury to vegetables.

The Methodist church is to be lighted by the Portsmouth Electric Light Co.; four new chandeliers are now being put in the church for that purpose.

There is to be another excursion from Manchester to York beach on the 19th inst.

One room in the State street school house and one in the Spalding schoolhouse have been closed, on account of the opening of the parochial school.

Miss Alice M. Marston has been transferred from the Spalding school to the Bartlett school, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss A. Maude Woodward. Miss Sanderson, of the high school class of '84, has been appointed teacher in the Spalding school.

We learn that the Dover Clothing Co. have made arrangements with Mr. J. C. Carr of this city to handle a line of gentlemen's fine boots and shoes in connection with their business. Mr. Carr has for a long time had quite a trade with Dover, especially in fine goods for ladies' and gentlemen's wear, he being enabled to furnish them with a class of goods unsurpassed in New England. The Carr house has for the past fifty years had the reputation—well earned, too—of furnishing the most reliable goods in this line, since years ago Mr. James M. Carr died, but the present proprietor, Mr. J. C. Carr, is fully competent to sustain the reputation of the store, having learned the trade when a boy at that same stand, and being thoroughly conversant with foot wear.

In the case of Philpot vs. Hanson in the supreme court at Dover, to recover damages for injuries received by Elsie May Philpot, a child, by being knocked down and run over by a bicycle ridden by Lenwood E. Hanson of South Berwick, the jury after being out three and one-half hours brought in a verdict of $500 for the plaintiff.

The baggage cars on the Eastern division of the Boston & Maine railroad all had strips of white and black crape affixed on the 5th inst., in memory of the late Augustus T. Perkins of Dover, formerly a baggage master on the line.

The veterans of the First Maine Cavalry, with ladies, had their annual reunion on the 5th inst. at Bar Harbor, Mt. Desert. Among those present was Bro. Joseph R. Curtis of the Penny Post, who served all through the war in that regiment, and Mrs. Curtis.

The discourtesy of a watchman at the navy yard, said to be acting under orders, came near costing the lives of several persons belonging to a yacht this week. She had either lost or dragged her anchor at night, and sailed for the government wharves, where she was refused permission to make fast. Being unacquainted with the swift current of the river, she attempted to run down the Portsmouth bridge. The outcries of her company brought to her relief boatmen from the river shores, and they were speedily rescued. ELIOT NECK.

Hon. George W. Nesmith, LL. D., of Franklin, nominated by the republicans for presidential elector, is eighty-eight years old, and was graduated at Dartmouth in 1820. He was an elector in 1840, and voted for Harrison. Of the other candidates on the electoral ticket, Charles D. McDuffie of Manchester is agent of the Manchester Mills; Colonel Charles S. Whitehouse resides in Rochester, and has filled many public positions; Frank A. Cofran is proprietor of the Twin Mountain house at Carroll, and an active and influential citizen. The electoral ticket is a strong one, and cannot fail to give entire satisfaation to the party.

Mr. Arthur Cushing of Boston, formerly for some time station agent at Sawyer's Mills, Dover, was married in Dover on the 5th inst. to Miss Jennie Wilkinson, daughter of Mr. Joseph Wilkinson of Sawyer's Mills.

The democratic papers proclaim that at a democratic flag-raising and love feast in Sutton, this state, on the 4th inst.,—the day of the Vermont election,—"among those in attendance was Walter Channing Harriman, son of the late Ex-Governor Walter Harriman and recently the republican solicitor for Rockingham county, who announces his intention to vote for President Cleveland."

The two or three hundred employes thrown out of work by the transfer of the Dover Shoe Manufacturing Co.'s business from West Kennebunk to Richmond, Va., where state prison help will be employed, will seek engagements in this city, Dover and other places. The removal of this business and so many people is a serious blow to that section, and a movement is on foot to build a new shoe-shop in Kennebunk near the Western division station of the Boston & Maine railroad, for Lynn people, who agree to make eighty cases per day. Over $15,000 is pledged toward the $25,000 necessary.

There has been quite an importation of French Canadians into Kennebunk this summer, to work in the mill. The cotton mill there will run all its machinery the coming fall and winter, employing seventy-five hands.

The political prohibitionists of Maine had a mass meeting at Old Orchard on the 4th inst. About 3,000 people attended, and were addressed by Volney B. Cushing, prohibition candidate for governor of Maine, Gen. Clinton B. Fiske of New Jersey, prohibition candidate for president, Miss Frances E. Willard, of the W. C. T. U., and others.

Over 10,000 people attended the republican rally at Old Orchard on the 5th inst., when Hon. Thomas B. Reed, Hon. James G. Blaine and Henry Cabot Lodge were the speakers.

There is in Saco a lodge of Orangemen, which was instituted July 4th, and which has since then had regular meetings. The existence of the lodge is not generally known, yet it has a good-sized membership, and some of the foremost men in the city are interest in the movement.

S. Morris Wain of Philadelphia and Charles Livingston Strong of New York, two wealthy young men who were on a hunting trip in Wyoming territory, have been found dead on the plains ten miles from Rock Springs. They are believed to have been murdered while asleep, by their guide.

In a row between three drunken men at Port Bergen, N. J., Michael Hurley was literally disembowelled.

A DISTRESSING COUGH.

How many, especially during the Fall and Winter months, are troubled with a Cough, sometimes dry and hacking, sometimes loose causing the sufferer to raise a large amount of offensive matter; this can soon be cured by using Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs.

Cured her Cough.

MRS. JEREMIAH CLARK, Lowell, Mass., says: "Twelve years ago I first took a bottle of your Throat and Lung Specific. I had been troubled with a very bad Cough for months. A go-cent bottle cured my Cough. Since then I have not been without it. I can heartily recommend it to any one who has a bad cough."

Saved his Life.

CHAS. A. WAITT, says: "No language can express the value I attach to your Specific. I believe it saved my life."

We would cite other testimonials did we think it necessary, but a trial bottle will convince you that it is all we represent. Give it a trial.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

"We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We are for home trade, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained, its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

The Biting Tongue.

Slander attacks us from behind. The bite is rarely felt unless it is malignant and persistent. Disease, too, often steals upon us through a vital channel. The air we breathe affects the lungs—if it be malarious it enters the blood, if it change too quickly in the temperature it produces disease of the throat, &c. Whether Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is taken to prevent or to remedy the various forms of disease produced by miasma, such as intermittent fever, chills and ague, ague cake or bilious remittent, it is and ever has proved to be an effective and thorough remedy—one which does not only ameliorate the symptoms of the maladies of this type, but eradicates their cause. Dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, bladder and kidney troubles are among the humanity-afflicting troubles which it promptly relieves and ultimately removes.

In a political fight at Clarendon, Ark., Sept. 3d, three men were killed and the sheriff wounded.

A Good Appetite

Is essential to good health; but at this season it is often lost, owing to the poverty or impurity of the blood, derangement of the digestive organs, and the weakening effect of the changing season. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a wonderful medicine for creating an appetite, toning the digestion, and giving strength to the whole system. Now is the time to take it. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla.

At Lodi, Ohio, Sept. 1st., a young girl watching a base ball game was struck behind the ear by a foul ball, and at Republic, Ohio, the same day, the catcher of a local club was struck over the heart by a ball; and both were instantly killed.

Disorders of the stomach, liver, and kidneys, can be cured by restoring the blood to a healthy condition, through the vitalizing and cleansing action of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is the safest, most powerful, and most highly concentrated alterative available to the public.

Aunt Rachael's Bitters.

The undeniable fact that these Bitters are composed in the main of Speer's Grape Juice, with Peruvian bark, snake root, etc., analyzed and recommended to invalids and the medical profession, by the best chemists in the United States, cannot fail in inspiring confidence in the use of these Malarial Bitters.

Hay Fever.

I have suffered greatly from periodical returns of hay fever. Covert & Cheever, Druggists, suggested Ely's Cream Balm. I used it during a severe attack. I can cheerfully testify as to the immediate and continued relief obtained by its use. I heartily recommend it to those suffering from this or kindred complaints.—(Rev.) H. A. Smith, Clinton, Wis.

If James L. Babcock of Chicago doesn't get married within five years, it will not be for want of an inducement. A Michigan uncle has left him by will $1,000,000 if he takes unto himself a wife within that period. If he hardens his heart to feminine graces, he is to be cut off with a beggarly $10,000. Many a graybeard would accept this young fellow's position without a whimper.

My Wife Said

To me last night: How much do you suppose we have paid out for doctors and medicine in the last year? I told her die not know. To doctors I have paid nothing, and five dollars' worth of Sulpher Bitters has kept health in our family.

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

Don't Kill the Old Hens.

When hens are shedding feathers they often stop laying and grow fat. Most people consider fat a sign of health. The fattening of moulting hens however, as with some people produces debility rather than health. Many of the worst cases of roupe are contracted, while the hens are moulting.

The food of moulting hens, if largely vegetable is fattorming, and not required for growing feathers. Therefore corn-fed hens get very fat. They need more nitrogen and phosphate elements in their food when moulting, which if not supplied they stop laying, because the growing feathers have used all, and left no nitrogenous matter to form eggs. At this season, killing old hens and relying on young pullets is a great mistake; where people have a few hens and late pullets. Because, if properly fed the hens will have their new plumage and lay well all winter; while the pullets unless specially treated may not commence laying until spring, when high prices for eggs have fallen one-half. Again, an old hen's egg will hatch a more vigorous chicken than a pullett's egg.

John R. Jones, Suffield, Conn, a breeder of prize winning mottled Javas, says: "I find Sheridan's Condition Powder fed once daily in the food, very valuable for moulting hens. I have used it for two years for exhibition birds. It assists in growing new feathers, makes the combs a bright red, and gives a rich gloss to the plumage. It will also make hens lay and the eggs hatch well. I find when other egg-foods are used in quantities to force egg production the eggs do not hatch."

The above is the experience of many people in using Sheridan's Powder. If fed to young pullets now as directed, they will begin to lay before six months old. Commence at once using Sheridan's Powder. It helps old hens through moulting, and gets the pullets in laying trim before the season of high prices. Eggs will sell very high this fall and winter. Therefore be ready to get all you can.

I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom House St., Boston, Mass., sole makers of Sheridan's Condition Powder to make hens lay, will send to any address for one two-cent stamp, testimontals with full information how to make a few hens pay well; also how to obtain Sheridan's powder.

He was advertising agent for Sulpher Bitters, which has an extensive sale. The coroner returned a verdict of death from heart disease. His body will be sent east immediately.—Cin. Commercial.

HOW A DIME IS COINED.

An Interesting Process That the Public Knows Little About.

There are many things to be seen at the United States mint on Fifth street. It is not generally known that this is the largest institution of the kind in the world; yet it is a fact, and in its facilities for the rapid and perfect coinage of money the San Francisco mint is conceded to be much superior to the Royal mint of London, which is generally supposed to be the largest and most complete mint on earth.

A reporter called the other day, and through the courtesy of Coiner James M. Gorham was permitted to witness the manner in which dollars and dimes are turned out by the bushel.

Just at present there is a lively demand all over the country for silver dimes, and hundreds of thousands of dollars of them are being shipped to New York, Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis and other eastern cities. Two of the money presses are, and have been for some time, running exclusively on this coin. The demand is so great that these machines are not even stopped on Sundays, and will be run on that day.

The process of dime making is an interesting one. The silver bullion is first melted and run into two-pound bars. These in turn are run through immense rollers and flattened out to the thickness of the coin. These silver strips are then passed through a machine which cuts them into the proper size for the presses, the strips first having been treated with a kind of tallow to prevent their being scratched in their passage through the cutters. The silver pieces are then put into the feeders of the printing presses, and are fed to the die by automatic machinery at the rate of 100 per minute, 48,000 dimes being turned out in a regular working day of eight hours. As the smooth pieces are passed between the ponderous printing dies they receive the lettered and figured impression in a manner similar to that of a paper pressed upon a form of type; at the same time the piece is expanded in a slight degree, and the small corrugations are put into its rim. The machine drops the completed coin into a receiver, and it is ready for the counter's hands.

The instrument used by the counter is not a complicated machine by any means, as one might suppose. It is a simple copper covered tray, having raised ridges running across its surface at a distance apart the exact width of a dime. From the receiver the money is dumped on to this board or tray, and as it is shaken rapidly by the counter the pieces settle down into the spaces between the ridges. All these spaces being filled, the surplus coin is brushed back into the receiver, and the counter has exactly 1,250 silver dimes, or $125, on this tray, which number is required to fill the spaces. The tray is then emptied into boxes, and the money is ready for shipment.

The dime does not pass through the weigher's hands, as does the coin of a larger denomination. One and one-half grains is allowed for variation or "tolerance" in all silver coins from $1 down, and the deviation from the standard in the case of the ten cent pieces is so trifling that the trouble and expense of weighing coins of this denomination is dispensed with.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Beverages of Venezuela.

The beverages mostly in use in the cities are French wine or imported German and American bottle beer. Owing to the heavy import duties imposed upon every article, beer is very expensive. I paid sometimes for a small bottle of Milwaukee lager, Vienna Dreher or "Cumbatsheer" (Kulmbacher) six to eight reals, equal to as many dimes. The lower class are very fond of aguardiente, manufactured from sugar cane; carrato, or hervido, a sort of fire water, manufactured from Indian corn or guarapo; but these strong drinks are usually taken in small quantities, and intoxicated persons are rarely seen in Venezuela. Fruit waters and Naranjada are also drunk a good deal, but the most popular drink with many is "aqua de papelon," which was first introduced to my knowledge on the coffee hacienda of the Austrian consul. He might tell a curious tale of its after effects, but I trust in his discretion. "Aqua de papelon" is simply water, sweetened with native sugar. In order to promote the making of pure white sugar the importation of this article into Venezuela is entirely forbidden, and the sugar in general use is called papelon, being the product of cane, containing all the syrup or molasses.—E. De Hesse Wartegg in New York Sun.

Presidents' Horses.

Zach Taylor rode at Washington the horse he had used in the Mexican war. Its name was "Old Whitey," and it followed the funeral car of the dead president to his grave. Franklin Pierce used to gallop about the streets of Washington at midnight on a blind horse during his presidency. He rode twice daily and his coachman, who still lives here, tells me that he kept eight horses in the White House stables. This coachman says Buchanan had one set of harness which cost $800. Its buckles were heavily plated with silver, and it had fifty-six solid silver "Bs" in different places upon it. Buchanan, however, never rode on horseback, but his niece, Harriet Lane, was accustomed to gallop with the other society girls of that day over the hills about Washington.—Chicago Times.

Variations in Lung Capacity.

From many observations on healthy men, Dr. Theodoroff, of St. Petersburg, learns that the vital capacity of the lungs increases from morning till evening, decreasing again during the night. After each meal, too, there is a special increase, followed by a slight decrease; the vital capacity being at its highest shortly after dinner, and at its lowest after getting up in the morning. The force of inspiration and expiration follows nearly the same law.—Arkansaw Traveler.

A Curious Clay.

Workmen who were digging a ditch in Montgomery county, Indiana, struck a stratum of earth resembling white clay, which turned black on being exposed to the air. Pieces of it thrown into the fire were found to burn fiercely.

HOW PIES ARE MADE.

The Amount Devoured by Pastry Loving New Yorkers—Some Startling Figures.

A great revolution has gone on in the manufacture and compounding of pie. No more the housewife carefully measures out "a cup of milk, a spoonful of saleratus, a lump of butter, pinch of salt, three tablespoonfuls of sugar, four sliced apples and a little pure lard." Today the dough is kneaded by steam and the ovens are vast and hot breathed caverns. In the great kitchen of the modern pie factory are numbers of immense copper kettles surmounting brick ovens, and fat male cooks stir the savory masses within. On little tables around the room are dozens of wooden tubs holding the linings for thousands of pies. Then the busy bakers take the dough, and before the oven door with deft and rapid touches press it into the shape of the embryo pie, into a pan and a line of pies is soon passing into the oven's mouth with wonderful celerity. The ordinary ovens used will hold about 360 small pies and the temperature required is graduated with remarkable skill.

New York, of course, produces and eats more pies than any city in the world, although its per capita consumption is eclipsed by Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia. There are eight or ten large factories dealing exclusively in pies, and between 500 and 600 bakers also make them. The largest factory is on Sullivan street, and its output of pie is something awful to contemplate, and when one thinks of the number of churches and schools the money spent for pie would build, it is a question if the people should not stop and ask, "Whither is this awful habit carrying us?" In a year or two the pie habit may rank with the curse of drink and evils of tobacco as a never failing fountain from which debating societies and lyceums can draw topics to argue on.

One of the foremen in the factory on Sullivan street said:

"In our establishment we turn out every kind of pie so far discovered, but there are certain kinds that are staple. These are apple, mince, lemon, grape, raisin, plum, gooseberry, whortleberry, strawberry, peach, raspberry, pineapple, pumpkin and custard. Apple, mince, lemon, pumpkin and custard are the favorites. All our material is the finest in the market, and we buy it in large quantities, always keeping our orders ahead."

"In a single day we use about 100 dozen eggs, 850 pounds of lard, 12 barrels of flour, 600 quarts of milk, 2,500 quarts of fruit, and turn out about 7,000 pies, or about 50,000 a week and 2,600,000 a year. The output from the large concerns in the city will amount to 35,000 pies daily, and the bakers will turn out about 40,000 more, or 75,000 a day, 525,000 a week and 27,300,000 per year, an average of about sixteen pies per capita. These pies cut into quarters the usual sizes outside of boarding houses would make 109,200,000 pieces. At an average of five cents—as some of the cheap restaurants charge only three cents, and tonier ones ten cents—this would make New York's annual pie bill $5,460,000, or more than we pay for public schools, or the fire and police departments, or send to the heathen. New York produces about one-thirtieth of the pie crop of the United States."

This last remark aroused a statistical vein in the reporter, and he figured until his brain was dizzy, and these are some of the results: In the United States there are eaten every day 2,250,000 pies; each week, 16,750,000; each year, 819,000,000, at a cost of $163,800,000, an amount greater than the internal revenue, and more than enough to pay the interest on the national debt and pensions. If the pies eaten daily were heaped one on top of another they would form a pie tower 193,000 feet, or nearly thirty-seven miles high; if laid out in line they would reach from New York to Boston. With the pie products of a year a tower 13,468 miles high could be erected, and stretched out they would cover a line 80,180 miles long, or sufficient to girdle the earth three times and let a Chinaman in Pekin chew at the last pie. These pies before eaten would weigh in a year 803,000 tons. Pie is a great institution, as these figures show.—New York Journal.

A Safety Lamp Needed.

Three thousand dollars is offered by Mr. Ellis Lever of England as a prize to the inventor of a miner's safety lamp, and it has set to work the wits of the ingenious. Sir Frederick Abel will lecture on the subject during the present month in England, and probably will exhibit specimens of lamps which the Swan & Edison company are manufacturing for a large colliery in England. Electricity, it is said, is most likely to solve the question and take the money prize first and lots of profit after.—New York Sun.

A Peculiar Locomotive.

A peculiar locomotive has just been manufactured in Boston, and will be tested on the Boston and Lowell railroad. It has but one driving wheel on each side, and these, instead of being perfectly round, have a periphery composed of a series of plain facets connected with each other by very obtuse angles. It is claimed that the flat surfaces will give greater adhesion to the track and make the engine more powerful than any heretofore constructed.—New York Press.

A Misleading Premonition.

A negro woman of Pulaski, Tenn., told her friends that she would surely die at 7 o'clock on a certain evening. So about fifty of them gathered around her bed and shouted and prayed and sung in an ecstasy of religious fervor as the hour drew near for the soul to take its flight. But it didn't do it. On the contrary, the woman went into an apparent trance, from which she arouses occasionally to eat a square meal.—New York Sun.

Cost of Rare Orchids.

European flower collectors have visited all the countries in South America in search of rare orchids, and during six months of the present year $8,659 was paid for these curious plants in one town in Venezuela.—Chicago Times.

A DISTRESSING COUGH.

How many, especially during the Fall and Winter months, are troubled with a Cough, sometimes dry and hacking, sometimes loose causing the sufferer to raise a large amount of offensive matter; this can soon be cured by using Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs.

Cured her Cough.

Mrs. Jeremiah Clark, Lowell, Mass., says: "Twelve years ago I first took a bottle of your Throat and Lung Specific. I had been troubled with a very bad Cough for months. A 50-cent bottle cured my Cough. Since then I have not been without it. I can heartily recommend it to any one who has a bad cough."

Saved his Life.

Chas. A. Watt, says: "No language can express the value I attach to your Specific. I believe it saved my life."

We would cite other testimonials did we think it necessary, but a trial bottle will convince you that it is all we represent. Give it a trial.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

FOR THE BLOOD

TRADE MARK

Peebles Mill, Texas, June 20, 1888—The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: One of my children was troubled with rheumatism and boils for about two years. We gave her various kinds of medicine, but without profit, and began to despair of curing her at all. I was persuaded to try your Swift's Specific. After she had used several bottles the diseases all disappeared, and she is now a fine, hearty and healthy girl twelve years old. Another child has just become afflicted in the same way, and I am using the S. S. S. and anticipate a prompt and permanent cure. M. C. Waggoner.

Rock Hill, Mo., July 7, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: Our little girl when but three weeks old broke out with eczema. We tried the prescriptions from several good doctors, but without any special benefit. We tried S. S. S., and by the time one bottle was gone her head began to heal, and by the time she had taken six bottles she was completely cured. Now she has a full and heavy head of hair—a robust, hearty child. I feel it but my duty to make this statement. Respectfully, H. T. Shore.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 27, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: In 1886 I contracted blood poison, and at once sought a physician, who treated me for several months. By his advice I went to Crab Orchard Springs, Ky., where his course of treatment was carefully observed. I recovered, as I thought, but the next spring pimples began to appear on my face and body. These gradually increased to sores and running ulcers. I was advised to try S. S. S., and immediately after taking it I commenced to improve, slowly at first, but more rapidly afterwards, and soon nothing remained to tell of my trouble. My blood is now thoroughly cleansed, and my system free from taint, and I owe my present condition—a perfect cure—to your medicine. I cheerfully give this statement that others who have suffered as I have may reap the same benefit. Harry M. Duncan, 34 West Ninth St.

Homer, La., May 25, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: About two years ago my general health gave way entirely. I was so debilitated that I almost despaired of ever feeling well again. All that the physicians done for me brought no permanent relief. Friends insisted that I should give S. S. S. a fair trial, although I thought it would be throwing away money. After taking a thorough course, my health and strength returned, and I must say that S. S. S. alone cured me, as I discarded all others while using it. As a tonic I can most heartily recommend it; for general debility, it certainly is a specific. W. F. Burrows, J. P.

Homer, La.—I know Mr. W. F. Bridges, and will say that his statement is correct. Joseph Shelton, Druggist.

Democracy and Temperance.

The "personal liberty league" of New Hampshire, another name for the saloon interest, before the late state conventions of the two great parties had a meeting in Manchester, and arranged to make a demand on each convention for a declaration looking to the modification of the prohibitory law and the absolute repeal of the "nuisance act" which has been found so effective in its actual workings. The republican convention responded by inserting in the platform a strong temperance plank. The democratic convention declared in favor of the repeal of the prohibitory law, in terms as follows:

We believe it to be the duty of the state to restrain and diminish as far a possible the vice of intemperance by such laws as the public sentiment of the community will promptly and willingly sustain. Experience has shown that prohibitory laws cannot be enforced and that the attempt to enforce them only drives the evils they seek to exterminate into more obscure and dangerous ways. We, therefore, believe that the sale of intoxicating liquors should be regulated and controlled by such a license law as has been found practicable in other states.

And yet the third party prohibitionists will work hard in this state to defeat the republican party, under the pretense of desiring to advance the cause of prohibition, when should they succeed, the direct result would be the removal of many if not all of the present restrictions on the liquor traffic.

Judge Thurman Taken Suddenly Ill.

When Grover Cleveland was elected president of the United States, an earnest movement was made by the friends and admirers of Allen G. Thurman to have him appointed to a cabinet position, but it failed, as his advanced age, then about seventy-four years, and consequent feebleness, were regarded by Mr. Cleveland as an insuperable objection to his being placed in so responsible a position.

But when Cleveland was renominated, it was considered by the party managers to be necessary to associate with him on the ticket, as candidate for vice president, some persom who would give it strength with the old liners, and the Old Roman who four years before was too feeble to fill a cabinet position, was tacked on behind Cleveland as a candidate for the vice presidency; and ever since then the democrats have been utilizing Thurman's bandanna to hide the shortcomings of the head of the ticket.

Thursday evening, the 6th inst., Mr. Thurman was announced to address a mass meeting in Madison Square garden, New York; the meeting was of course a vast one, and Mr. Thurman was there. What occurred then is thus related in the Manchester Union:

As the Old Roman stepped forward to the speaker's stand and stood erect there, wiping the perspiration from his face with the famous bandanna, the wildest excitement followed. Every one having a seat stood upon it, bandannas and flags were waved, and the crowd cheered and cheered again, drowning the strains of the band. The cheering continued for fully five minutes, and then with a voice so feeble that only those within a few feet of him could tell, except by the motion of his lips, that he was speaking, Mr. Thurman said:

"Mr Chairman, ladies and gentlemen: It has been said by republican papers since I was nominated for the vice presidency that Allen G. Thurman is an old, frail, decrepit, broken-down man. I do not know as I should reply to this, although I well know that I am in no condition to-night to speak to an immense audience, such as this is. However, I want to speak, and in spite of my illness I am almost induced to make the attempt. I beg leave, however, to withdraw, and thank you for your kind reception."

A hush fell upon the assemblage as all saw that the hero of the evening was trying to speak to them, but was unable to do so. Colonel Brice and Mr. Flower stepped forward, and each taking Judge Thurman by the arm assisted him back from the speaker's stand. He was almost fainting, and for a few minutes was too sick to be removed from the building. When he had recovered sufficiently he was lifted to his carriage and driven back to his hotel.

At a late hour it was stated by Col. Brice that the attack was only a slight one of cholera morbus, and that Mr. Thurman would be all right in a short time. The people of the country, results that his illness may turn out to be as trivial as is represented.

The Yellow Fever.

There were forty-six new cases of yellow fever, and ten deaths, in Jacksonville on the 6th—the worst day's report yet. Some of the deaths were for want of skilled nurses. The local doctors are almost broken down. There is now great distress in the city, and the officers have sent out an appeal for pecuniary aid.

New Hampshire Items.

An eighty-one year old widow of Chester, N. H., Mrs. Sarah Heald, mowed and stored in her barn this summer one half a ton of hay. Besides this it is stoutly averred that she has cut her own firewood for the last five years, and that her barn is the best kept in the neighborhood.

Mrs. Polly Austin, widow of the late Benjamin Austin, celebrated her 85th birthday the 4th inst. at her home in Rochester, where she has resided the past few years after a residence of about fifty years in Great Falls. While living in Rochester she has pieced together eleven log-cabin quilts, most of them containing 1700 pieces, and besides these eight other quilts, and sewed up the long seams in twenty sheets and twenty pairs of pillow cases, and the sewing is of the finest description.

There was a family tragedy at Newport, R. I., Thursday, Sept. 5th. About 6:30 A. M., before the rest of the family was up, Anthony Mahar and his wife arose, and almost immediately Mahar picked up his revolver and opened fire on himself and wife. Six shots were fired, one of which took effect in Mrs. Mahar's head and another in her neck, two in the side of his head and one in the centre of his forehead. The sixth shot probably failed to take effect, as the bullet could not be found. The shooting aroused the children, who summoned assistance and medical aid was called. The weapon was a twenty-two calibre and the wounds are therefor small. Mahar is more seriously hurt than his wife, but is believed they both will recover. No cause is definitely known for the deed, but is probably due to jealous or despondency.

A romance of the rebellion has been developed at New York. When Mrs. Sarah Moore was pretty Miss Sarah Miller of Gettysburg, Penn., a young confederate with his arm shot off was brought into her father's house. He recovered under Miss Sarah's care, and when he went away carried away with him a lock of his nurse's hair. Nothing more was heard of him until one day last week, when Mrs. Moore received a letter from New Orleans, stating that she had been made the legatee of Henry C. Willet, who had died a month before. With the letter was a plain gold locket containing the lock of hair given to the young rebel way back in 1863. Mr. Willet's estate is valued at $15,000.

A citizen of North Adams, Mass., named Arti Gerry, has three times escaped drowning, after sinking the fatal third time on each occasion. He has also been run over by a loaded wagon, swallowed forty grains of laudanum, burned the house over his head and plunged into a bath-tub full of boiling water. He is only five years old.

The waters of Long Island Sound in the neighborhood of Black Rock have been invaded by the Aquenuckaquewauk club of Danbury, Conn., which is looking for black fish.

In digging a well near Goldsboro, N. C., the diggers came upon traces of an extinct volcano, and at once reported it to the State geologist, who will pronounce upon it authoritatively in a few days.

To Save Life

Frequently requires prompt action. An hour's delay waiting for the doctor may be attended with serious consequences, especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Bragdon, of Palestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

crimination, and be exercised by all who take medicine. The proprietors of Hood's Sarsaparilla solicit a careful comparison of this medicine with other blood purifiers and medicines, being confident that the peculiar merits of Hood's Sarsaparilla are so apparent that the people will unhesitatingly prefer it to any other preparation. Hood's Sarsaparilla is not a mixture of molasses and a few inert roots and herbs, but it is a peculiar concentrated extract of the best alterative and blood-purifying remedies of the vegetable kingdom. The enormous sales of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the wonderful cures effected, prove even more than has been claimed for this medicine. If you are sick the best medicine is none too good. Therefore, take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Pyle's Pearline.

Because then the wash is largest, the work most oppressive, and the articles to be washed most delicate. PEARLINE is as harmless as pure castile soap. It does away with most of the rubbing—hence it does away with those portions of the washing which ruin both your health and your clothes, and relieves this hardest of women's work of most of its drudgery. PEARLINE is the latest improvement in the way of soap, and, until something better is discovered, it behooves every woman who has to do with washing or cleaning, to supply herself or her servants with this wonderful cleanser, which, although yet in its infancy, is used by millions of families.

THE WEATHER.

For New England to-day:—

Slightly warmer, fair weather, winds southerly and easterly.

A REFORM NEEDED.

The accommodations at the railway station in this city are lamentably deficient. The business has so increased since the construction of the building that with the greater frequency of trains there is danger threatening passengers every day. On Thursday last, for example, the train due from the east at 10:55 A. M. was late; when it came in, the train which should leave at 10:55 for the east started, and hardly had it cleared the track when passengers began to alight from the up-train. Just as a large number of persons had left the cars, the train for York beach came in from a siding west of the station, scattering the passengers and nearly running over not a few who were crossing the track.

The misfortune is, that so many trains are allowed to enter and stand in the station at the same time, while the York trains move in a most unexpected and inopportune manner. The wonder is, that some one is not injured at the station every day. The evil might perhaps be remedied to some extent, if the train for York could be kept on a side track east of the station, and enter after the train for Boston has left, instead of coming from the western part of the grounds. The lack of room is of course apparent, and the most careful watchfulness should be displayed in moving these trains.

A complaint is made that with trains for Boston, Portland, Dover, the White mountains and York beach, five distinct trains, all departing within a short time of each other, there is neither announcement of the departure, or signs or cards indicating destination of trains. Passengers familiar with the movements of trains may be certain as to which train they must board, but the great number of travellers in the summer season are unacquainted with the movements and designations of these various trains.

The railroad could profitably learn a lesson from other lines, the New York, New Haven & Hartford for example, or indeed very many roads, where with trains simultaneously starting for different points, announcements are seasonably made, as at Dover for instance, or cards are attached to cars, as at Concord and on many of the roads leading from Boston. It requires a pretty clear head when several trains are in the station or are leaving so frequently, for an inexperienced traveller to be certain than he or she is on the right train. There should be a person to attend to this duty, which is commonly left for the conductors to perform, while with heavy trains these officials have enough to do without looking after outward-bound passengers.

ANOTHER "ORDER."

Portsmouth is to have one more secret society, the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks. At a meeting of its promoters, held at the Rockingham house last Thursday evening, the following officers were chosen: Exalted Ruler, True W. Priest; esteemed leading knight, S. Plumer Jones; esteemed loyal knight, John F. Magraw; esteemed lecturing knight, Arthur G. Brewster; treasurer, William J. Moat; secretary, Frank J. Seymour; trustees, William G. Wiggin, Willard J. Sampson, True L. Norris; tyler, Edward E. Green. The new lodge will be No. 97, and the institution will occur at an early date.

BAKED POTATO MINE.

Workmen engaged in digging a drain at the foot of State street on the 6th inst., when some distance below the surface came upon the remains of what was evidently once a cellar wall, and in an angle found a lot of lumps of charcoal, which on close examination could easily be identified as having once been potatoes. It is supposed that the wall once supported one of the nearly 300 buildings destroyed by the great fire on Dec. 22d and 23d, 1813, and that the potatoes were part of the winter stock of the family occupying the house, and were roasted by the disastrous conflagation of three-quarters of a century ago.

DOUBT.

"Sept. 5th, Dog days end." That is what the almanacs say, and we are not inclined to dispute it. On the night of Wednesday, the 5th, there was a heavy frost, and there was a much heavier one on Thursday night. The cold snap extended pretty much all over the state, and touched up Maine and some parts of Massachusetts as well. Much damage was done to crops not already "out of the way of the frost" in this section, running vines, and corn growing on low grounds, suffering very badly; much corn has had to be cut down to be used for fodder. Lucky for dog days that the yended on the 5th; otherwise, they might have been frostbitten.

POLICE COURT---BATCHELDER J.

FRIDAY, Sept. 7th.

Maud Ellis, a young lady arrayed in purple and fine linen to beat the lilies of the field all hollow, was fined $3, costs $6.90, for drunkenness; paid.

Annie Mitts, a very decent appearing woman giving her residence as Raymond, acknowledged that she had been drunk, but promised to leave town at once if permitted, and was allowed to depart.

ONLY A TRIFLE AHEAD OF TIME.

The Times of Friday remarked that "Congressman-elect Nute of Farmington was in town to-day." Our neighbor was only a little bit previous, that's all; it will be "Congressman-elect Nute" two months from now, without a shadow of a doubt.

BASE BALL.

The Kittery base ball club will play a game with the Nonpareils of this city at the South St. grounds this Saturday afternoon, for the benefit of the Cottage Hospital; game called at three o'clock; admission, gentlemen fifteen cents, ladies free.

The following were the scores by innings of the two games played at Worcester on the 6th inst., in both of which the Portsmouth club didn't win, but was a very fair second:

Worcester	0	0	1	9	0	2	0	0	0— 3
Portsmouth	0	0	0	0	1	2	0	0	0— 3

The game on the South street grounds, Friday afternoon, between the Manchesters and Portsmouths, was won by the latter, three to two. The game was a fine one, and the attendance good.

MUSIC HALL.

The band of the "A Postage Stamp" company made good music on the street Friday noon, and the very handsome and tasteful uniform of the members was admired by all who saw it. There was a good audience at Music hall in the evening, and a good show.

"Jim, the Penman," is undoubtedly a great play. It is strong in conception, in situation and execution. Its action springs from natural causes and each act is the natural outcome of its predecessor. The chain of evidence which closes about the fashionable forger is unwittingly wrought by his own hand, and it crushes him with a power as relentless, as inexorable as fate itself. It is comprised of a series of incidents brought into life by the inadvertence (plausable enough even when the act of so clever a scoundrel) of the central figure. There is not the space nor time here to depict with what cleverness the author has brought about the exposure of Ralston. Suffice it to say that it is exceedingly ingenious and very dramatic. It will be played in Music hall this evening, by the Madison Square Theatre Co.,—the only company that can play it, as it is the sole property of Mr. Palmer. Tickets at M. Goodrich's.

Barlow Brothers' Minstrels, stronger and better than ever before, will appear at Music hall on Tuesday evening, Sept. 12th, with twenty-five star artistes, including six end men, Master Edward Perry, the juvenile wonder, and the original Barlow Bros. Street parade of the Champion Silver Cornet Band and Orchestra at noon. Tickets at Goodrich's to-day—25, 35 and 50 cts.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Hugh W. Green and Miss Edith Thatcher of this city were registered at the Crawford house, White mountains, last Thursday.

Mrs. Horace Morison, who has passed the summer at her cottage in Peterboro', arrived at her home on Middle street last Thursday evening.

Mr. Edwin Burkitt and wife, of Waterbury, Conn., are visiting Ald. D. J. Ayers and wife of Burkitt street, Christian Shore.

Mr. Stephen McIver has arrived home from New York, after a six weeks vacation.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

The U. S. S. Kearsarge, now at this navy yard, will go into commission on Monday, Oct. 1st.

Owin to the increase of force on the navy yard, the steamer Mystic now has to make two trips in the morning and two at night to accommodate the workmen.

Seven seamen attached to the training ships Saratoga and Portsmouth, whose crews are now quartered on board the vessels are undergoing political repairs at this navy yard, on Thursday evening last borrowed the ship's gig without mentioning their intentions to the officers, and came to this city. Word was at once sent from the ship to the police station here, and the usual reward offered for the arrest of the departed matelots, one of whom was taken into custody about midnight the same night. The others had not been found up to Friday evening.

It is said that at least twenty-five of the men now employed at the navy yard wear Harrison and Morton buttons at their work.

MATRIMONIAL.

William E. Brigham, a popular member of the Boston Globe's editorial staff, and a resident of Somerville, Mass., was married to Miss Lettie Mitchell, daughter of Francis and Betsey Mitchell of Skowhegan, Me., Sept. 6th. The event occurred at Skowhegan, Rev. A. J. Radcliff of the Congregational church officiating. The newly-wedded couple will spend their honeymoon in a novel way, by taking a carriage ride of two or three weeks throughout the Pine Tree state. Mr. Brigham has the best wishes of many journalistic friends.

John W. Robinson, city editor of the Biddeford Journal, and Miss Ida E. Sutherland of Biddeford, were united in marriage at the residence of Charles H. Parcher on Elm street in that city at noon on the 6th inst., only members of families of the bride and groom, and a few intimate friends, being present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William DeWitt Hyde, president of Bowdoin college, a classmate of the groom at Exeter. Many elegant wedding presents were received. The newly married couple took the afternoon train for the mountains, where they will stop for a few days, and on their return will begin housekeeping upon Elm street, Biddeford.

George W. Parks, a coal heaver living at No. 1 Whidden place, while unloading coal at the Concord railroad wharf Friday fell into the hold of the vessel, a distance of twenty feet, striking on his head. He was picked up and removed to his home. His injuries, while very serious, are not necessarily fatal.

It is said that there were from 10,000 to 15,000 people at the republican rally in South Berwick on the 6th inst.; the enthusiasm was intense, and it was the largest and most successful political meeting ever held in the southerly portion of York county. The special train from Dover comprised twelve passenger cars, and there were more than a hundred persons in each car; the special from this city over the Portsmouth & Dover road had three packed cars; the train from Exeter had over 600 passengers on board, and 413 tickets were sold in Dover. Hundreds also went from Dover and Great Falls, and neighboring places, in private teams.

There is quite an interest at Alfred, Me., over a breakout of the York county jail there of five prisoners several weeks ago, they being assisted from the outside by two men. Four of the escapes were shortly recaptured, but the one wanted the most had not been found up to the 5th inst. On that day the two men who aided in the jail delivery were seen about there, and the police began to search for them, but up to a late hour in the evening nothing of them had been found.

Three hundred and fifty-two tickets for the excursion to South Berwick to hear Blaine speak on the 6th inst., were sold at Rochester.

Last Sunday trip of the steamer Oceanic to the Shoals to-morrow, for this season; fare for the round trip, fifty cents.

Pears' Soap is an elegant toilet adjunct.

A milk-white gopher snake, seventeen feet six inches long, and having a part of his tail cut off, at that, has just been slain down in Glynn county, Ga.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Be Sure

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other.

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." MRS. ELLA A. GOFF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

Lincoln League.

There will be a convention of delegates from the republican clubs of this state to form a State Lincoln League, auxiliary to the National League, at Phenix hall, Concord, Tuesday, Sept. 11th, at eleven o'clock A. M. Each club organized under the State League constitution will be entitled to three delegates.

A general ratification of the national and state tickets will take place at two o'clock P. M., when speeches will be made by Hon. Nathan Goff, republican candidate for governor of West Virginia, Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, Hon. O. C. Moore of Nashua, Hon. J. H. Gallinger of Concord, Hon. Chas. H. Burns of Wilton, Hon. C. A. Sulloway of Manchester, Hon. Daniel Hall of Dover, Hon. H. W. Greene of Hopkinton, and others.

Round trip tickets at the rate of one and a half cents a mile, no rate to exceed $2.00, will be on sale at stations upon all divisions of the Boston & Maine railroad, White Mountains division Boston & Lowell railroad, and Concord railroad. Tickets good going Sept. 10th and 11th, and returning 11th and 12th.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

President Cleveland declines cautiously to dub himself a free trader, but he enters up a free trade position without disguise —London Saturday Review.

It is certain that the arguments which President Cleveland urges are those which Cobden used to employ forty-five years ago, and which any free trader could employ now.—London Times.

An extensive domestic market for the surplus produce of the soil is of the first consequence. It is, of all things, that which most effectually contributes to a flourishing state of agriculture.—Alexander Hamilton.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

When our manufactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C. Calhoun.

Congress have repeatedly, and no without success, directed their attention to the encouragement of manufactures. The object is of too much consequence not to insure a continuance of their efforts in every way which shall appear eligible.—George Washington.

The issue of Protection is incalculably stronger and greater than any man, as it concerns the prosperity of the present and of the generations yet to come.—James G. Blaine.

When we consider the patronage of this great office, [the presidency,] the allurements of power, the temptation to retain place once gained, and more than all, the availability a party finds in an incumbent whom a horde of office holders, with a zeal born of benefits and fostered by the hope of favors yet to come, stand ready to aid with money and trained political service, we recognize in the eligibility of the president for re-election a most serious danger to that calm, deliberate and intelligent political action, which must characterize a government by the people.—Grover Cleveland.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

The only time England can use a Celt is when he emigrates to America, and votes for free trade. — London Times.

Grover Cleveland has done more to advance the cause of free trade than any Prime Minister of England has done.—London Spectator.

Our manufactures require the systematic and fostering care of the government. * * Equally important it is to provide at home a market for our raw materials.—James Monroe.

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

We must now place our manufactures by the side of the agriculturist. * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

The Vanderbilt family will be well represented in London next season. W. K. Vanderbilt has rented Lansdowne House, where Lord Roseberry recently lived, and Cornelius Vanderbilt is negotiating for the Duke of Sutherland's house.

Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromising in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform 1888.

"American wages for American workmen." Republican motto

The Biting Tongue.

Slander attacks us from behind. The bite is rarely felt at first; it is malignant and persistent. Disease, too, often steals upon us through a vital channel. The air we breathe affects the lungs—if it be impure—poisons the blood, if it change too quickly in the temperature it produces disease of the throat, &c. Whether Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is taken to prevent or to remedy the various forms of disease produced by miasma, such as intermittent fever, dumb ague, ague cake or billious remittent, it is and ever has proved to be an effective and thorough remedy—one which does not only ameliorate the symptoms of the maladies of this type, but eradicates their cause. Dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, bladder and kidney troubles are among the humanity-afflicting troubles which it promptly relieves and ultimately removes.

Vigor and Vitality

Are quickly given to every part of the body by Hood's Sarsaparilla. That tired feeling is entirely overcome. The blood is purified, enriched, and vitalized, and carries health instead of disease to every organ. The stomach is toned and strengthened, the appetite restored. The kidneys and liver are roused and invigorated. The brain is refreshed, the mind made clear and ready for work. Try it.

The cotton crop of Alabama has been greatly damaged by heavy rains.

Disorders of the stomach, liver, and kidneys, can be cured by restoring the blood to a healthy condition, through the vitalizing and cleasing action of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is the safest, most powerful, and most highly concentrated alterative available to the public.

The village of Cattaraugus, N. Y., has been nearly destroyed by fire.

When used according to directions, Ayer's Ague Cure is warranted to eradicate from the system fever and ague, intermittent, remittent, and billious fevers, and all malarial diseases. Try it.

M. Ferry says the next general election will be a critical moment for France.

Aunt Rachael's Bitters.

The undeniable fact that these Bitters are composed in the main of Speer's Grape Juice, with Peruvian bark, snake root, etc., analyzed and recommended to invalids and the medical profession, by the best chemists in the United States, cannot fail in inspiring confidence in the use of these Malarial Bitters.

A ten-days' Methodist camp meeting commenced at Wilmington, Mass., Sept 6th.

Hay Fever.

I have suffered greatly from periodical returns of hay fever. Covert & Cheever, Druggists, suggested Ely's Cream Balm. I used it during a severe attack. I can cheerfully testify as to the immediate and continued relief obtained by its use. I heartily recommend it to those suffering from this or kindred complaints.—(Rev.) H. A. Smith, Clinton, Wis.

A syndicate of New York and European bankers are to establish an American bank in Mexico.

Sir John A. Macdonald says Canada cannot recede from her position in the fishery dispute.

Why Adamson's Balsam is so Perfect a Medicine. Because it is a scientifically ordered compound, of great potency, the product of years of study, observation and experience in the treatment of throat and lung diseases.

PHILOSOPHY OF MARRIAGE giving a clear synopsis of the impediments to marriage, exhausted vitality, etc., etc., can be had from all news agents or forwarded direct from the author, Dr. F. J. JORDAN, 26 Boylston St., Boston, on receipt of 25 cents. eoctoS

The Population of Portsmouth

Is about 10,000, and we would say at least one-half are troubled with some affection of the throat and lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all our readers not to neglect the opportunity to call on their druggist, get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Trial size free. Large bottles 50c. and $1. Sold by all druggists. sep23

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. WILLIAM Talbot, aged seventy-six, who served twenty years in the United States navy, and who was presented with a medal for bravery during the late war, was found dead in bed in Bath, Me., one morning recently.

THEY DID IT.

Athlophoros Pills have cured me of liver complaint and dyspepsia. I gave ten of the Pills to a friend who is troubled with indigestion and he has improved wonderfully. F. H. ROWEKAMP.

Don't Kill the Old Hens.

When hens are shedding feathers they often stop laying and grow fat. Most people consider fat a sign of health. The fattening of moulting hens however, as with some people produces debility rather than health. Many of the worst cases of roupe are contracted, while the hens are moulting.

The food of moulting hens, if largely vegetable is fattorming, and not required for growing feathers. Therefore corn-fed hens get very fat. They need more nitrogen and phosphate elements in their food when moulting, which if not supplied they stop laying, because the growing feathers have used all, and left no nitrogenous matter to form eggs. At this season, killing old hens and relying on young pullets is a great mistake; where people have a few hens and late pullets. Because, if properly fed the hens will have their new plumage and lay well all winter; while the pullets unless specially treated may not commence laying until spring, when high prices for eggs have fallen one-half. Again, an old hen's egg will hatch a more vigorous chicken than a pullet's egg.

John R. Jones, Suffield, Conn, a breeder of prize winning mottled Javas, says: "I find Sheridan's Condition Powder fed once daily in the food, very valuable for moulting hens. I have used it for two years for exhibition birds. It assists in growing new feathers, makes the combs a bright red, and gives a rich gloss to the plumage. It will also make hens lay and the eggs hatch well. I find when other egg-foods are used in quantities to force egg production the eggs do not hatch."

The above is the experience of many people in using Sheridan's Powder. If fed to young pullets now as directed, they will begin to lay before six months old. Commence at once using Sheridan's Powder. It helps old hens through moulting, and gets the pullets in laying trim before the season of high prices. Eggs will sell very high this fall and winter. Therefore be ready to get all you can.

I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom House St., Boston, Mass., sole makers of Sheridan's Condition Powder to make hens lay, will send to any address for one two cent stamp, testimonials with full information how to make a few hens pay well; also how to obtain Sheridan's powder.

TRAVELING IN SIBERIA.

Miserable Horses of the Yakoots—The Gentle Reindeer and His Driver.

Reindeer are much swifter and more reliable than dogs or the miserable horses of the Yakoots. And yet these horses are not to be despised, for they supply a need that it would be difficult to reach with other animals. They are very hardy and require scarcely more attention than the wilder animals in that country. It is not necessary to provide food or shelter for them. They thrive and do much hard work upon dead grass, twigs and dried leaves that in winter they find by pawing off the snow from the ground. In summer it would be impossible to keep up communication with the Russian outposts in Siberia without these horses of the Yakoots. Upon them is packed the merchandise for trade with the outlying tribes, and they bring back the furs that have been gathered during the winter season. Upon the obscure trail through those wild Siberian wastes the summer traveler often meets long lines of these animals trudging patiently along, sometimes twenty-five or thirty in number, each one tied to the tail of his file leader.

During the winter, however, the gentle reindeer move gaily along at a swift and easy trot, two attached to each sled, and fastened by a line from the antlers of one to the sled in front of him. There may be but one driver for half a dozen or more sleds, and he sits on the right side of the leading sled, guiding his team with a line attached to a halter around the antlers and under the throat of the off leader. A steady pull directs the team to the right, and a series of jerks is a suggestion to go to the left. If, however, the leader neglects the signal, the driver jumps from his seat and runs alongside of the obstinate animal, which immediately makes a rush toward the opposite direction. An active and attentive driver occupies himself incessantly in keeping his team under full headway, and for that purpose wields a long, thin stick or wand with which he continually prods the poor reindeer in the rear. Eventually he gets a little sore place there by continued prodding, and plies his relentless rod upon that tender spot with the best results. The conscience that exists even in a Yakoot or Tunguse yemshik has inspired him to put a wooden or bone button upon the end of his goad to keep it from penetrating too far.

When a reindeer is tired, it lies down, and no amount of punishment will get it on its feet again until another is brought to replace it from a number of spare animals that are always tied behind the rear sled for that purpose. No matter how much exhausted the weary animal seems when removed from harness, it recuperates very rapidly while running behind the sleds, and is soon ready to take its turn at pulling. The usual gait of a reindeer team is a long, swinging trot; but when in a great hurry, which is seldom the case with those lazy people, the driver urges his team into a gallop, and under such circumstances it is not unusual for them to make over twenty verste (about fourteen or fifteen miles) an hour.—William H. Gilder in Outing.

In Their First Battles.

A young Bostonian has written to several prominent generals asking how they felt in their first battles. Gen. Sherman says that such questions are hard to answer. Admiral Porter says his first battle occurred when he was 12 years of age, and that he did not feel much afraid. Gen. Pleasonton remarks that his first battle was in Mexico in 1846, and that he felt that the sooner the enemy was thrashed the better it would be, while Gen. Averell says the battle of Bull Run, 1861, was his first, and that when he saw the enemy he thought that a great and useless crime was about to be committed. —New York World.

Fountains in Trees.

The great cottonwood trees in the swamps of Tennessee contain veins of clear, sparkling water which tastes somewhat like unsweetened soda water and which spurts forth as if under gaseous pressure when a vein is punctured. It is said to be deliciously refreshing, and hunters are in the habit of carrying gimlets with which to pierce the veins when they are thirsty. It is a point of honor with them to plug up the orifice when their thirst is satisfied, that the next comer may not be disappointed.—New York Evening World.

Indians of Arizona.

Extensive preparations are being made by the Presbyterian board of Indian schools to educate the Indians of Arizona. At Tucson they are building an $8,000 school house. Fifty acres of land have been bought on the Santa Cruz river, where the young Indians will be instructed in farming, and another building, to cost $6,000, will soon be erected, where 150 pupils can be accommodated.—Chicago News.

Catching Rattlesnakes.

A novel industry has been started by boys in the San Monica mountains in California. They catch rattlesnakes by means of a slip noose of cord, box them up and take them to Los Angeles, where they sell them. The Chinese are the purchasers. They use them as medicine, and the snakes sell for from fifty cents to $1 each. It is said that the Chinamen handle them fearlessly and never get bitten.—Chicago Herald.

Five Years Without Winding.

A clock has been invented, and is coming into use in Europe, which is warranted by its manufacturers to run for five years without either winding or regulation. The Belgian government placed one in a railway station in 1881, sealed with the government seal, and it has kept perfect time ever since.—The Argonaut.

Evolution of Words.

It is interesting to trace the evolution of words and expressions. Cultivated people say: "How do you do?" Those who are less precise say: "Howdydoo?" In the backwoods of Tennessee they say "Howdy?" The noble red man of the west says "How?" While the cat on the fence says "Ow?"—Norwich Bulletin.

FREEZING TO DEATH.

"In February, 1840," said Capt. R. L. Zeby, of Uniontown, "I had an interest in some lumber way up in the Piscataquis region, and I had to go up there and see how things were getting along. It was a long journey, but the sleighing was like glass, and I had one of the best horses that ever stood inside the thills. On my second day out the thermometer stood at 20 degs. below, and was inclined to go lower. I knew I would reach one of those queer little villages common to the Maine backwoods early in the evening. There I intended to stay all night, and drive on next morning to the house of the agent of the lumber property, twelve miles further along. I reached the village and found that there was no tavern there.

"This, of course, upset my plans. So I ate supper in the village and started on, intending to proceed to the agent's the same night. It was a starlight night, but the air was filled with that peculiar frozen mist frequently noticeable on very cold nights. As we neared the river this haze became denser, until finally it was with difficulty I could see anything ahead of me. It was like passing through a storm of scaly ice. Suddenly, as I was thinking that we must be almost on the margin of the river, there came a crackling sound, a loud splash of water, and the next second my horse was floundering about in water, which also covered the sleigh, the robes and myself up to my waist.

"The water splashed about soon drenched the rest of me, and in less time than I can tell it I was coated with a rapidly thickening armor of ice. I guess my noble beast must have floundered at least a minute in that hole before he knew exactly what had happened. When the situation did come to him he became quiet, threw his fore feet up, and lodged them both in the ice with a concerted blow like a trip hammer. The ice was thick, but beneath that blow an immense cake was broken off and was carried down in under the edge of the ice below. The horse swam onward, dragging the sleigh with it through the rapidly freezing slush. Once more he pounded the ice ahead of him with his powerful fore feet, and again the ice yielded.

"During all this time I was shouting for help. I might, at the first break, have turned and leaped back to shore, but had not collected myself in time. It was now too late, and even if it had not been I was so stiffened by the casing of ice that I couldn't have moved to save myself from death. The horse kept on, and, strange as the story seems, broke a channel for fifty feet across that river, and drew the sleigh out safely on the other side. And he didn't tarry when he got there, but started off at the top of his speed toward our destination. He soon struck the road and away we went. I knew that although one danger was escaped, a greater was before us, and I urged the horse on with my voice. My robes and clothing had frozen so solid that if I had been encased in iron I could not have been more motionless. My horse was a jet black, but his icy coating made him stand out, even in that frozen mist, like a specter horse. I could not move even my hands. We were not yet half way to the agent's house when I found myself growing drowsy. I could no longer use my voice. The clatter of the horses' hoofs and the creaking of the runners on the ice sounded to me like thunder claps and weird, hideous cries. I knew that I was freezing, but I labored hard to rouse my will and fight with it against my fate. The stars looked like great coals of fire, although before they could be seen but dimly through the peculiar haze. The trees, with their branches covered with snow, took on the shapes of gigantic ghosts. Still I preserved all my powers of reasoning. Finally I felt myself growing deliciously warm. A languor, such as De Quincy might have described, with attending visions of loveliness, took possession of me. I heard the most delightful music. Still I made one mental effort to shake off this fatal spell, and that was all.

"I don't know how far I was from the agent's house when I froze to death, but the next thing I remembered I was suffering such tortures as a victim of the rack might feel. He never felt worse. Suddenly, at my feet, the pricking of a million needles assaulted my flesh. Torturing me at that spot a moment, until I writhed in agony, it dashed quickly up my leg, stopped an instant, as if gloating in my misery, and then crawled with that awful pain slowly upward, until it seemed that tiny jets of the fiercest flame were being blown into my body, heart and brain. The intensity of this agony was not constant. If it had been I would have died again in a short time. It came in waves, so to speak. Each wave was a little less furious than its predecessor, until at last the storm was passed, and I found myself a weak, speechless, limp and helpless mortal, lying on a robe before the fireplace of my friend, the agent. He had brought me back to life.

"When I was strong enough to hear it, he told me that he was awakened in the night by the peculiar and loud neighing of a horse. He looked out of the window and saw a sight that startled him—a ghostly horse and sleigh and driver in the road before his door. He recovered himself and went down. Then he discovered that the driver was dead. He quickly carried the driver into the house, laid him on the floor before the fireplace, and recognized me. Knowing that even if I was not beyond all aid, nothing could be done for me until the robe and clothing were thawed, he made the fire blaze and hurried to the rescue of the faithful and intelligent horse that had reasoned with itself that it must stop at the first house it came to on that terrible night, and that life and death depended on it. By the time the horse was cared for I was in shape to be resuscitated in case any such thing could be done. I was stripped and rubbed briskly with snow and snow water for more than an hour before I gave any evidence that I might be called back. Then another hour was spent in the same treatment, when a spoonful of brandy was poured down my throat. After that the circulation was started, and my agony began. That suffering lasted for an hour, and—well, I can say this: Freeze to death if you want. You'll like it. But don't let anybody fetch you to again."—New York Sun.

BILIOUSNESS.

This very common complaint, which is caused by a dormant or inactive liver, can be cured in a short time by using Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, as can also the various diseases arising from inactive liver or kidneys. These organs, if inactive, will allow impure blood to enter the heart, causing tightness about that organ and palpitation.

She suffered thirty years.

MRS. DUDLEY CHANDLER, of Melrose, Mass., says: "I had suffered with Palpitation of the Heart more than thirty years before I found anything to give me essential relief. Last fall I tried Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, and, remarkable as it was, this Compound relieved me in two days, so that for several months afterwards I felt not the slightest touch of it, and am perfectly free from it now. Sometimes, before I took this Compound, the pulsations of my heart were so violent as to shake my whole body with rapid agitations, and at times I fainted and became entirely insensible. Now I am perfectly free from all this suffering. Consequently I can most sincerely and earnestly recommend this Compound to all like sufferers, as pre-eminently the best medicine I ever knew for Palpitation of the Heart."

Ingalls' Mandrake Compound is sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles for $5. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

TRADE S.S.S. FOR THE BLOOD MARK

An Important Announcement

About six weeks ago, while at business, I was suddenly attacked with excruciating pains in my feet, knees and hands. So severe the attack that I took my bed immediately, and in two or three days my joints were swollen to almost double their natural size, and sleep was driven from me. After suffering the most excruciating pain for a week, using liniments and various other remedies, a friend who sympathized with my helpless condition, said to me:

"Why don't you get Swift's Specific and use it. I will guarantee a cure, and if it does not the medicine shall cost you nothing."

I at once secured the S. S. S., and after using it the first day, had a quiet night and refreshing sleep. In a week I felt greatly benefited. In three weeks I could sit up and walk about the room, and after using six bottles I was out and able to go to business. Since then I have been regularly at my post of duty, and stand on my feet from nine to ten hours a day, and am entirely free from pain. These are the plain and simple facts in my case, and I will cheerfully answer all inquiries relative thereto, either in person or by mail. THOMAS MARTELLE,

NASHVILLE, TENN.—I have warded off a severe attack of rheumatism by a timely resort to Swift's Specific. In all cases where a permanent relief is sought this medicine commends itself for a constitutional treatment that thoroughly eradicates the seeds of disease from the system. Rev. W. P. HARRISON, D. D.

NEW YORK, 51 7TH AVE.—After spending $200 to be relieved of Blood Poison without any benefit, a few bottles of Swift's Specific worked a perfect cure. G. H. DAVIS.

CAN'T BOTH WIN.

Ex-Gov. Plaisted of Maine, who has had charge of the speaking arrangements of the democracy in that state, told a Boston Globe reporter on Saturday that he expected the democrats to win a glorious victory on the 10th, and elect Putnam governor. The republicans, according to the averaged estimates of over 300 leading men of the party sent to the Lewiston Journal, expected a plurality of 12,000 for Burleigh over Putnam.

They Have Saved Arkansas.

The democrats of Arkansas were evidently determined to make the best possible showing for their party at the recent election, and as the fine work put in by the counters in the democratic districts did not pan out quite so well as was hoped, they engaged professional burglars to break into the county clerk's office at Little Rock, blow open the safe, and steal ten ballot boxes locked up therein. A big victory for reform was absolutely necessary.

The Portland Advertiser exclaims: "What is this? The democratic majority in Arkansas cut down to 15,000 in sixty counties, and only sixteen to hear from? That is quite a reduction from the plurality of 36,000 in 1886, and the majority of 45,000 in 1884; and the news, taken in connection with the Vermont returns, must have a somewhat depressing effect on the party at large."

A RUN OF ILL LUCK.

Mr. Linwood E. Hanson, of South Berwick, Me., has reason to think he has had one person's full share of ill luck. Two or three years ago his jewelry store in South Berwick was burglarized, and a considerable amount of money and jewelry stolen. Last winter he went to Great Falls with a valuable team belonging to Simeon P. Huntress of South Berwick, and when driving out of his father's yard in Great Falls the sleigh was capsized by a snow drift, and the horse ran away; the team was not heard from for a week or more, and was then discovered snowed in on a road near Garrison hill, Dover, that is not used in the winter, where it had been stuck all through the terrible blizzard which caused so much suffering along the Atlantic coast; the horse was still alive, but that sleigh ride cost Mr. Hanson about $300. Some months ago his store was again visited by burglars, and this time they blew open the safe, stole all the money, watches and jewelry they could lay hands on, and got away, Mr. Hanson's loss being about $2000. Last week, in the supreme court at Dover, the jury found a verdict against him in the sum of $500, as damages for injuries to a little girl who was accidentally knocked down and run over by him while riding a bicycle on the sidewalk. Mr. Hanson would now like to try a run of good luck for a while, to see how it would seem.

The letter carriers of this city delivered during August fifty-seven registered letters, 808 drop letters, 26,064 ordinary letters, 4014 postal cards, and 14,788 papers, circulars, etc. The collected during the same time 17,837 letters, 5583 postal cards, and 1074 newspapers, etc., making the total number of pieces handled 67,226.

Capt. W. G. Cheney, formerly of the gondola Hard Chance, has contracted with Mr. William F. Fernald for the construction of a gondola of 100 tons capacity, for the transportation of coal to the up-river towns. The Hard Chance was sold by Capt. Cheney to Mr. Alonzo Neally of Exeter, and is now known as the News Letter, having been named in honor of Exeter's leading newspaper.

The following-named gentlemen comprise the democratic county committee of Rockingham county: Frank Jones, Richard I. Walden, Timothy F. Crouin, George E. Hodgdon, Marcellus Eldredge, Portsmouth; George W. Sanborn, East Kingston; A. B. Fowler, George N. Proctor, Exeter; William N. Woodbury, Salem; Thomas Leddy, South Newmarket; J. C. Eastman, Hampstead; William T. Folsom, Newmarket; Samuel P. Foot, Atkinson; A. G. Whittier, Raymond; Chas. E. Folsom, Epping; Richard M. Scammon, Stratham; John G. Robinson, Deerfield; Clarence E. Cilley, Kingston; James F. Coburn, Derry; P. R. Currier, Fremont.

Workmen were engaged last week on the Clanricarde estate in Ireland, in destroying houses from which tenants had been evicted. One of the houses demolished was built by the tenant at his own expense, and cost him over $1000. The evicted people can now come to the United States, and vote for free trade in favor of the British oppressors of Ireland.

The postoffice at Windsor, Broome county, New York, was entered by burglars on the night of the 5th inst. The safe was blown open, awakening the entire village and wrecking the office. Four hundred dollars were taken.

Burglars entered the store of Henry L. Kingsbury at Amesbury, Mass., on the night of the 5th inst. The safe was blown open and $50 were taken. Three dwellings were also entered on the same night.

At Columbus, Ind., on the night of Sept. 4th, James Ford, a farmer, while suffering from delirium, sprang from his bed and made an attack upon his wife and two children. He killed the two children, and fatally injured his wife.

W. BAKER & CO., Dorchester, Mass.

To California via the Northern Pacific Railroad.

An autumn trip to California ought to be extremely popular. The season is delightful for travelling, and the Pacific coast is reached when the vineyards and orchards are in their richest fruitage. Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb have planned some delightful trips of this character, one of which will include the Pacific Northwest as well as California. The route lies over the entire length of the Northern Pacific railroad from St. Paul to Tacoma, and later over the picturesque Mount Shasta route between Oregon and San Francisco. Both Puget sound and the Columbia river will come under inspection, and incidental to the California tour there will be visits to San Francisco, San Rafael, Santa Cruz, Monterey, Santa Barbara, Los Angeles, Long Beach, Pasadena, San Diego, etc. The return journey will be through Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado. It will be seen that the tour is a very comprehensive one. The party will leave Boston Monday, October 8th, and on the same date a party will depart for a journey direct to Southern California, and another for Colorado. Descriptive circulars may be obtained of these excursions, and also of the shorter trips to eastern resorts, by addressing W. Raymond, 296 Washington street (opposite School street,) Boston.

The Manchester Union blithly observes: "Time was when the republican party did not need to parade the fact that it had carried Vermont, in hope of keeping up the courage of the faithful in other states, but it has fallen on hard lines of late, and even small victories are made occasions of rejoicing." Yes, the republicans are pleased over the small victory in Vermont, unquestionably; it has proved almost as exhilarating to them as it has depressing to the democrats. They did hope to carry the state by unanimous vote; but they can get along with a majority twice the size of the total democratic vote.

A prominent retail merchant of Montreal is reported to have left the city, and his partner has since discovered a shortage of several thousand dollars.

Representative Sowders of Pennsylvania has been invited by Chairman Brice, of the democratic executive committee, to take the stump for Cleveland and Thurman. Mr. Sowders is the protection democrat who voted against the Mills bill, in return for which insolence President Cleveland vetoed an appropriation for a public building in Sowders' district. He says if he takes the stump he will knock the stuffing out of the Mills bill, he being a protectionist.

The American whaling schooners Jane Gray and Ino, and the whaling barques Young Phenix, Mary & Susan, and Fleetwing, were wrecked by a gale in the Arctic ocean August 3d. All hands saved, and taken to San Francisco by the revenue steamer Bear.

A terrible cyclone visited Cuba on the 6th inst. Fifty lives were lost at Sagua, and houses, wharves and shipping greatly damaged. The village of Pueblo Nuevo was literally wiped out.

PERFECT FOOD.

Perfect food is that which, while prepared in the most appetizing form, is also the most wholesome and nutritious. It should never be necessary to sacrifice the wholesomeness of an article in order to make it more palatable, nor, as is too often the case, should we be compelled to take our bread or cake bereft of its most appetizing qualities in order to avoid injury to our digestive organs.

The Royal Baking Powder possesses a peculiar quality, not possessed by any other leavening agent, that applies directly to this subject. It provides bread, biscuit, cake, muffins, or rolls, which may be eaten when hot without inconvenience by persons of the most delicate digestive organs. With most persons it is necessary that bread raised with yeast should lose its freshness or become stale before it can be eaten with safety. Distressing results likewise follow from eating biscuit, cake, pastry, etc., raised by the cheap, inferior baking powders that contain lime, alum, phosphates, or other adulterants. The hot roll and muffin and the delicious hot griddle cakes raised by the Royal Baking Powder are as wholesome and digestible as warm soup, meat, or any other food.

The general feeling in New York is that the Old Roman was being hustled about the country at the risk of his life, merely to hide the fact that the head of the ticket has no popularity. The coming of the infirm old gentleman to New York is seriously regretted by many of the wiser heads of the party.

It turns out that the democrats of Arkansas, with all the election machinery in their hands, managed to retain the state by a majority of 15,000. They should get a few Louisana democrats to give them lessons in counting and making up the returns.

The senate passed the new Chinese exclusion bill on the 6th inst., by a vote of thirty-seven to three.

WHAT IS

SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

MAN DROWNED.

Mr. Christopher Keilenbeck, a well known rigger and fisherman living on Water street, was drowned off the Gas Co.'s wharf about half-past one o'clock Sunday morning. He was, it is reported, engaged in fishing for lobsters near there, using a dory; he was in the gas house about half-past twelve o'clock, but whether he fell from the wharf or out of his boat is not known. His cries for help were heard by John Morgan, watchman at the Portsmouth Co.'s brewery, who procured a boat and put off as quickly as possible, but not in time to save the drowning man. The deceased leaves a wife and several children.

WHO IS "JIM, THE PENMAN?"

The audience at Music hall Saturday evening, discovered that Jim was an adept writer, but when he subscribed to a fund and wrote his wife's name, he got into trouble. It would have been thousands in Jim's pocket if, when the census enumerator had called, he could have put Jim's name in the column of those who could neither read nor write. He came to grief by means of writing too much, an awful warning to those who persist in overdoing this accomplishment.

The acting throughout was of a very high order, and the audience, which was a very large one notwithstanding the weather, and composed largely of our most refined people, complimented the performance by giving it the most absorbed attention up to the very end.

REPUBLICAN RALLY AT KITTERY POINT.

The republicans of Kittery Point made arrangements to hold a rally on Saturday night, and secured as speakers Edmund Wetmore, Esq., of New York city, and Frank W. Hackett, Esq., of Portsmouth. The storm somewhat interfered with the programme, but in spite of the rain a goodly number of voters were on hand, including a few democrats. Horace Mitchell, of Hotel Pocahontas, presided, and happily introduced the speakers.

Mr. Wetmore discussed the tariff issue with great clearness. He said, among other things, that his professional business had brought him into relation with many workmen in New York city, and that the vote for Harrison there would be larger than people are aware of; not a man in John Roach's yard is likely to vote for Cleveland.

Mr. Hackett followed with a brief speech, paying some attention to the fishery question, and pointed out how many a democrat could to-day vote with the party that upholds the doctrine of high wages to the workingmen.

The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the speakers. It was a very successful one, and the speakers were attentively listened to throughout. Kittery Point seems to be awake to the issue.

MUSIC HALL.

At Music hall, to-morrow evening, Barlow Brothers' Minstrels will give a performance. Of this company the Dispatch of Erie, Pa., says: "There was a very good audience at the Opera house last evening, to see what Barlow Bros' Minstrels would give in the way of an entertainment. The company was new, and the audience doubtless believed it risked its money when it was put up on an unknown. But the result was an agreeable surprise. It was an excellent company, and every feature of the programme from the opening to the farce at the close was thoroughly enjoyable. Good singing, excellent music, taking specialities, laughable jokes, fine costumes, all made this one of the best minstrel shows ever seen in Erie for a long time."

Tickets at Goodrich's; advertisement in another column.

UNITARIAN CONVENTION.

The annual convention of the Unitarian churches of New Hampshire will this year be held with the Unitarian society of this city, in October. Committees were on Sunday appointed to take charge of the necessary arrangements. It is somewhere about twenty years since a Unitarian convention was held in this city.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

The undersigned acknowledges most gratefully the receipt of fifty dollars from Jacob Wendell, Esq., of New York, for the Chase Home for Children.

JOHN S. RAND, Treasurer.

BASE BALL.

A game of base ball was played on the circus field, Saturday afternoon, between the Parochial school nine and the Jones school nine, resulting in a victory for the former, the score standing eleven to eight. The playing of Albert Downs, of the Parochials, was the feature of the game.

At a meeting of the directors of the New England league, held last week, it was voted to close the season Sept. 15th, but to play only postponed games after Sept. 8th. The Lowell and Worcester clubs essayed a game at Lowell on the 8th, but it was called in the second inning on account of rain, leaving it to be played off this week, Tuesday being assigned as the day. The Manchester and Portsmouth clubs did not play on the 8th, and the Manchesters disbanded that night, all players being paid in full, and reserved. The Lowell and Portsmouth clubs have two postponed games to play, and both are assigned for to-day.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

The six sailors of the training ships Saratoga and Portsmouth who gave themselves leave of absence last Thursday night, returned of their own accord to the navy yard on Friday about noon.

Twenty-two naval apprentices of the first-class, from the training-ship Portsmouth, at this yard, were sent to New York by rail last Friday afternoon, to go on board the gunnery training-ship Minnesota.

Quite a number of old line democrats, in this city and on the other side of the river, who have been outspoken in their disapproval of the British free trade tendencies of the Cleveland administration, and of its pusillanimous conduct in the fisheries dispute, have been "called" on the navy yard within a few days, to assist in the political repairs adjudged necessary just now on the Portsmouth and Saratoga. Will our democratic brethren of the press please give us a good, old-fashioned howl about the "vote factory?" It would be very pleasant reading just about now.

PERSONAL.

Miss Harriet Haven, of Daniel street, is passing two weeks on a visit to friends in Boston.

Mrs. Martha Mills, of Boston, is visiting Miss Fannie Muchmore of State street.

Mr. Ira Heath, wife and child, of Rumney, arrived in this city last Friday by their own private conveyance, made a brief visit at Mr. William P. Gardner's on Gates street, and started on their return to Rumney on Saturday.

Miss Florence E. Manent, the accomplished saleslady in a Market street dry goods house, is passing part of her vacation at Wells, Maine.

The Dover Republican of Saturday said: "Oliver P. Haynes, a typo on the Democrat, who has been spending his vacation in Boston, met with an accident, having got shot in the hand. He is getting along nicely, and will return next week."

The family of Rev. James DeNormandie have returned to Boston Highlands from Biddeford Pool, where they passed the month of August. Mr. DeNormandie's church in Eliot square, which has been thoroughly renovated during the summer, will be reopened for worship Oct. 1st.

END OF A FAMOUS CASE.

The Whitney-Foster-Weed-Bennett proceedings, so far as the criminal side of the supreme court is concerned, ended at Bangor, Me., on Friday, Sept. 7th, when Thomas Kelly alias James A. Foster, and Clarence Whitney, the men who confessed to robbing and nearly murdering old Peter Bennett of East Newport, Me., on the night of Sunday, Dec. 4th, 1887, were brought into court and sentenced.

District Attorney M. O. Adams, of Boston, addressed the court in behalf of a light sentence for Foster, urging that he was the youngest of the gang which robbed Bennett, and that he was a follower only, not a leader; that it was his first crime, and that he had made a full and free disclosure of the whole crime and the plot which led to it.

C. A. Bailey of Bangor pleaded for a light sentence of Whitney, on the grounds of his previous good character, and of the aid he had rendered the government after his arrest. A memorial was read from Lewis A. Baker of Bangor, asking for judicial clemency for Whitney on numerous grounds, one of which was that the greatest offender in the crime had escaped the law.

Neither of the convicted men made any remarks to the court.

Judge Emery, in passing sentence, spoke at considerable length. He said that he had carefully avoided adopting any conclusions until he could see and hear the parties. Their offence was one of the most enormous on the calendar; and were he not convinced that the man who was the leader in the whole affair, and secured nearly all the plunder, had escaped justice, he should impose a sentence that would practically remove them from society. He then gave Whitney ten years and Foster eight years in state prison, at hard labor.

Maine votes to-day; buy a Chronicle to-morrow morning.

The quarterly dinner of the Mechanics' Fire Society was given at the Rockingham house last Friday evening, Hon. Marcellus Eldredge being the host.

The republicans of Kittery held a caucus on Friday evening last; it was largely attended and very enthusiastic, and named John Wentworth as the republican candidate for representative in the legislature. After the caucus closed a republican club was organized with over 200 members, Jethro H. Sweet being chosen president, Alonzo Hayes secretary, and Frank E. Rowell corresponding secretary.

Everybody will want the news from Maine to-morrow morning; election there to-day.

A tall hat was suspended from the ballards of the base-ball sign on Congress street, Saturday morning, and was still there on Sunday. Just what it indicated, or where the joke came in, provided there was a joke, was one of those things no fellow could find out.

The republicans of Kittery had arranged to have three flag raisings Saturday evening, with addresses by able local speakers. One flag was to go up in front of Daniel Perry's, and another at Capt. Daniel Marden's, at the Foreside; the third one at Mr. Joseph Keen's, at the Lower Foreside. The rain interfered with the carrying out of the arrangements, but did not cast a damper on the republican enthusiasm.

The Penny Post of Saturday says: "A 2400 horse belonging to Hon. Frank Jones backed against a four-feet stake surmounting a stone wall, yesterday, at the Jones farm. About two feet of the stake penetrated the animal's flank, being broken off."

A large number of young men entitled to vote in Kittery, but employed elsewhere, arrived home last Saturday, to vote at the election this day. A large proportion of them are republicans.

In Dover on Saturday the case of Philip Kirby vs. Mrs. Kirby, which had been postponed several times, was called in the court, but the lady failed to appear, having been released on bail, and left for parts unknown. The police of this city will hope that she won't come back here again; it was quite a job to get rid of her and her precious husband.

Mr. Henri L. Bates has opened a pool room and saloon on Congress street, opposite the Kearsarge house.

J. C. A. Wingate, of Stratham, still holds the fort as United States consul at Foochow, China, republican though he is. The civil service reform administration must have overlooked him, or else there has been no applicant for his place.

Large quantities of early apples are now being brought into the stores here for sale. They are mostly of good flavor and fine quality, and quite pretty to look at, being quite largely the product of young trees of new varieties, not much seen here before. The crop of substantial fruit is said to give promise of being large.

The republican ladies of Kittery have formed a club, with a membership of about 200, and officers as follows: President, Mrs. Mary J. West of Kittery Point; vice president, Mrs. Robert Briard of the Foreside; treasurer, Miss Abbie Goodsoe; secretary, Miss Addie Remick.

A Stratham farmer has raised and sold 1000 bushels of fine potatoes this season.

Don't Wait

Until your hair becomes dry, thin, and gray before giving the attention needed to preserve its beauty and vitality. Keep on your toilet-table a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor—the only dressing you require for the hair—and use a little, daily, to preserve the natural color and prevent baldness.

Thomas Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky., writes: "Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. Tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best hair-restorer in the world."

"My hair was faded and dry," writes Mabel C. Hardy, of Delavan, Ill.; "but after using a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it became black and glossy."

OH! MY HEAD.

The pain from Neuralgia and its companion disease Rheumatism is excruciating. Thousands who could be quickly cured are needlessly suffering. Ath-lo-pho-ros will do for others what it did for the following parties:

Williamsport, Ind., Oct. 5, 1887.
Having been afflicted with neuralgia for the past four years, and trying almost everything, but in vain, I finally heard of Athlophoros. After taking one bottle I found it to be helping me, and after taking four bottles of Athlophoros and one of Pills, I found that I was entirely well. I think the medicine is positively a sure cure.
CHAUNCEY B. REDNICK.

Mt. Carmel, Ill., Dec 26 1887.
I have used Athlophoros in my family and find it to be the greatest medicine for neuralgia in existence, and having met its happy features upon me for the past 8 years I know whereof I speak. MRS. JULIA WILSON.

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other.

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." MRS. ELLA A. GOFF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

A DISTRESSING COUGH.

How many, especially during the Fall and Winter months, are troubled with a Cough, sometimes dry and hacking, sometimes loose causing the sufferer to raise a large amount of offensive matter; this can soon be cured by using Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs.

Cured her Cough.

MRS. JEREMIAH CLARK, Lowell, Mass., says: "Twelve years ago I first took a bottle of your Throat and Lung Specific. I had been troubled with a very bad Cough for months. A 50-cent bottle cured my Cough. Since then I have not been without it. I can heartily recommend it to any one who has a bad cough."

Saved his Life.

CHAS. A. WAITT, says: "No language can express the value I attach to your Specific. I believe it saved my life."

We would cite other testimonials did we think it necessary, but a trial bottle will convince you that it is all we represent. Give it a trial.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

Tickets good going Sept. 10th and 11th, and returning 11th and 12th.

When our manufactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C Calhoun.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

When we consider the patronage of this great office, [the presidency,] the allurements of power, the temptation to retain place once gained, and more than all, the availability a party finds in an incumbent whom a horde of office holders, with a zeal born of benefits and fostered by the hope of favors yet to come, stand ready to aid with money and trained political service, we recognize in the eligibility of the president for re-election a most serious danger to that calm, deliberate and intelligent political action, which must characterize a government by the people.—Grover Cleveland.

Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

Men and Women's Bones,

Joints and muscles may escape the agonizing tortures of rheumatism if they will but "take time by the forelock," and annihilate the symptoms of oncoming trouble with the benignant and highly sanctioned blood depurent and alternative, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Poisons mostly constitute the ordinary means of battling with this atrocious complaint. Avoid the risk of using these by resorting to the safe as well as effectual antiphlogistic and preventive. After exposures to damp, through drafts and other causes which encourage a rheumatic tendency, a wineglassful of the Bitters prevents ill effects. No surer preventive of malarial ailments like fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake exists; and it is, besides, a most genial recuperator of strength exhausted by excessive mental or physical effort. Miners, mariners, operatives and others whose avocations involve laborious work in rough weather out of doors, or close application indoors, find it invaluable.

Didn't Want a Girl.

Last summer my wife's health was all run down, and she wanted me to hire a girl to the work. In a little while I found one I thought would suit her, when to my surprise she said I need not hire any one, as she felt much better, and thought another bottle of Sulpher Bitters would cure her. Donald Grey, 41 Worcester square, Boston.

Grover Cleveland has done more to advance the cause of free trade than any Prime Minister of England has done.—London Spectator.

We know of no mode of treatment which offers, to sufferers from chronic diseases, a more certain hope of cure than that which is comprehended in the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. For purifying and invigorating the blood, this preparation is unequaled.

The only time England can use a Celt is when he emigrates to America, and votes for free trade. — London Times.

Vincent Lundberg, of Stockholm, Physician-in-Chief to the King of Sweden, recommends Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer for the scalp and hair.

Our manufactures require the systematic and fostering care of the government. * * Equally important it is to provide at home a market for our raw materials.—James Monroe.

Hay Fever.

I have been afflicted with hay fever from early in August until frost. My eyes would run a stream of water and I sneezed continually. I was advised to use Ely's Cream Balm. It has worked like a charm and I can say I am entirely cured.—Mrs. Emeline Johnson, Chester, Conn.

I have been for several years a sufferer from hay fever and severe head colds. I have found nothing that can compare with Ely's Cream Balm. I would not be without it for any consideration. It is simply wonderful in its effect upon the nasal organs.—S. A. Burtt, Wilmington, N. C.

President Cleveland declines cautiously to dub himself a free trader, but he caters up a free trade position without disguise —London Saturday Review.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla, Sold by all druggists.

It is certain that the arguments which President Cleveland urges are those which Cobden used to employ forty-five years ago, and which any free trader could employ now.—London Times.

a man for groaning when he has Rheumatism or Neuralgia. The pain is simply awful. No torture in the ancient times was more painful than these twin diseases. But—oughtn't a man to be blamed if, having Rheumatism or Neuralgia, he wont use Ath-lo-pho-ros, when it has cured thousands who have suffered in the same way? It has cured hundreds after physicians have pronounced them incurable.

"The skill of five physicians could not cure me of Rheumatism which had settled in the hips, neck and shoulders. So intense was the pain that sleep was almost impossible. Don't Kill the Old Hens.

When hens are shedding feathers they often stop laying and grow fat. Most people consider fat a sign of health. The fattening of moulting hens however, as with some people produces debility rather than health. Many of the worst cases of roupe are contracted, while the hens are moulting.

The food of moulting hens, if largely vegetable is fattorming, and not required for growing feathers. Therefore cornfed hens get very fat. They need more nitrogen and phosphate elements in their food when moulting, which if not supplied they stop laying, because the growing feathers have used all, and left no nitrogenous matter to form eggs. At this season, killing old hens and relying on young pullets is a great mistake; where people have a few hens and late pullets. Because, if properly fed the hens will have their new plumage and lay well all winter; while the pullets unless specially treated may not commence laying until spring, when high prices for eggs have fallen one-half. Again, an old hen's egg will hatch a more vigorous chicken than a pullet's egg.

John R. Jones, Suffield, Conn, a breeder of prize winning mottled Javas, says: "I find Sheridan's Condition Powder fed once daily in the food, very valuable for moulting hens. I have used it for two years for exhibition birds. It assists in growing new feathers, makes the combs a bright red, and gives a rich gloss to the plumage. It will also make hens lay and the eggs hatch well. I find when other egg-foods are used in quantities to force egg production the eggs do not hatch."

The above is the experience of many people in using Sheridan's Powder. If fed to young pullets now as directed, they will begin to lay before six months old. Commence at once using Sheridan's Powder. It helps old hens through moulting, and gets the pullets in laying trim before the season of high prices. Eggs will sell very high this fall and winter. Therefore be ready to get all you can.

I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom House St., Boston, Mass., sole makers of Sheridan's Condition Powder to make hens lay, will send to any address for one two-cent stamp, testimontals with full information how to make a few hens pay well; also how to obtain Sheridan's powder.

But life shall on and upward go;
Th' eternal step of Progress beats
To that great anthem, calm and slow,
Which God repeats. —Whittier.

Be still, sad hearts! and cease repining;
Behind the clouds is the sun still shining;
Thy fate is the common fate of all;
Into each life some rain must fall,
Some days be sad and dreary.
—Longfellow.

——Good
Will be the final goal of ill,
To pangs of nature, sins of will,
Defects of doubt and taints of blood;
That nothing walks with aimless feet,
That no one life shall be destroyed
Or cast as rubbish to the void.
—Tennyson.

—I have no fear that thou shouldst die,
Albeit I ask no fairer fate than this—

While Time and Peace with hands unlocked fly—
We care I not where in eternity
We live and love, well knowing that there is No backward step for those who feel the bliss
Of faith. —Lowell.

A Back Number.

The truth of the old proverb, "Better late than never," appears to have been illustrated by a striking modern instance, according to an English exchange, which relates that ninety-seven years ago some person, now unknown by name, posted in Paris a number of The Gazette Universelle, directing it to "Monsieur X——, in Morges, Switzerland," but the newspaper did not arrive at its destination until last month. It seems that The Gazette, which had been waiting for delivery ever since January, 1791, had got mixed up with a bundle of other newspapers, and was found, with its cover and address still intact, amidst a heap of rubbish in a garret. The finder conscientiously sent it to the Morges postmaster, by whom it was as conscientiously forwarded to the present representative of the X—— family, still living at Morges. "So unique a specimen of postal integrity deserves to be exhibited in a postal museum, or would not be out of place among the curiosities in the newspaper museum at Aachen."—Chicago Herald.

Various Personal Peculiarities.

Men betray their real characters in a thousand different ways. The professors of the art of delineating dispositions do so in various fashions. One artist will undertake to describe character from the examination of a photograph; another reads indications of tastes and feelings in handwriting; nay, an American savant has recently announced that much may be learned regarding a man by observing how he wears his boots. Every one has some small peculiarities which to the accurate observer may furnish a clew to his disposition. There have been manifold instances of strange and inconvenient resemblances between men leading to cases of "mistaken identity," and yet probably in every instance there was some trifling and overlooked personal trait which distinguished one from the other. If alike in features they differed in dispositions.—London Standard.

Origin of "Old Hickory."

The story of how Gen. Andrew Jackson got the name of Old Hickory is again going the rounds, and will be new to some young readers. During the Creek war he had a bad cold, and his soldiers made for him a shelter of hickory bark. The next morning a tipsy soldier, not knowing who was under the bark, kicked it over. As the general, speechless with rage, struggled out of the ruins, the soldier yelled, "Hello, Old Hickory! Come out of your bark and take a drink!" When the soldiers saw Jackson shaking the bark from his uniform they gave three cheers for "Old Hickory," and the name stuck.—New York Sun.

Writing Through Stenographers.

Letter writing through stenographers is now so common that even the ordinary business man coming to New York from smaller centers of trade now uses the hotel typewriters for his correspondence. Some of them let their letters accumulate for several days before they call in a stenographer. It is noticeable that the successful old merchants of the old school shun typewriters as a pestilential innovation. The executive heads of leading corporations have all fallen into the habit of writing letters through stenographers, and generally take them about in their travels.—New York Tribune.

Military Microphone in France.

The military microphone is now being tried in France, not only to give warning of the passage of troops from afar, but to indicate the different branches of the army in movement and to furnish an approximate idea of the numbers of men and horses on the advance. It consists of a sounding plate buried in the soil across and along any route, and connected by a long wire conductor to the receiving disc of the apparatus in position, which has the necessary arrangement for making the sounds louder and more readily distinguishable.—St. Louis Republic.

Playing Through a Canula.

In Paris a man picks up a living by going about the streets playing on a clarionet through a canula placed in a hole in his throat after the operation of tracheotomy. When he has finished a little tune he takes the canula out and exhibits it to the audience to show that there is no deception.—New York Sun.

The "Lady's Horse."

Expert riders say there is really no "lady's horse," as any good horse is as much suited to a skillful female rider as to a man. Certain kinds of horses are best suited to certain kinds of riders, men or women, that is all.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Effects of Mental Idleness.

Mental idleness is sure to lead to mental ruin. He who will not exert his thoughts, who lets them passively receive whatever influence may chance to fall upon them, will soon lose the chief power which makes them valuable. It is an easy habit to fall into, and one which each person needs to guard against—that of listlessly reading, or listening, or dreaming instead of actively thinking and working up these influences into ideas and convictions that are worth holding, because they have been justly earned. It is the vacant mind, where no good seed is struggling upward into life, which will soonest be covered with weeds.—Once a Week.

Three Book Fiends.

The tall copy man, the uncut copy man and the wide margin man are about the most cranky of the bibliomaniacs. What they want nobody else would have. They are a trio of cranks of about the same class. Every time a book is published, the publisher prints a few copies which are longer than the regular edition. These the tall copy fiends seek. They like to stand a long book on a shelf alongside the regular sized book and gloat over the fact that they have a different kind of book from the common buyer. If a tall book of some rare edition falls into their hands, they go into ecstacies of joy and bend all efforts to get a copy of the regular edition to stand alongside this book of bastard size.

His brother in hobby, the wide margin man, is contemplated by the book publisher, who prints a half dozen books of an edition with abnormal margins to a page, and sells them for five times the regular price of the book. If the books marketed by a publisher are already cut, as the American publishers are accustomed to do, he saves a few copies with the leaves uncut and sells them to the uncut copy man. This one is the worst crank of all. To him a book is only valuable as long as the leaves remain uncut in the folio. He does not buy a book to read. The standard authors mean nothing to him. If he can get a copy of a first edition of Scott or Dickens, which no one has ever read, because the leaves have never been cut, he values it higher than all the books these novelists ever wrote. His idea of a book is one in which the pages shall be sealed from the eye.—Globe-Democrat.

New Chronographic Watch.

The Parisian watchmaker, Schwob, has brought out a new chronographic watch (montre observateur) which is a marked improvement on the ordinary stop watch. The face is furnished with a second small dial, similar in size to the second's dial. By touching a knob the hands of this dial, which is a complete copy of the large one, are at once replaced to 12 o'clock, and then continue their progress from that point.

This method is very practical, as it not only shows the time of commencing an observation, but infallibly determines its duration without the least trouble, all the observer having to do for this latter purpose being simply to read the time indicated by the small dial, and to subtract that time from the true hour of the large dial. This can all be done without exercising any memory or making any note.

We think the invention invaluable for making astronomical or other observations. The eye need not be even turned to the watch in touching the knob, which can be done in perfect darkness. A sleeper is suddenly awakening from a nightmare, or hearing a strange noise at night, and wishing to fix the time of the occurrence, need only press the knob of his watch and turn his head quietly round on his pillow, knowing that in the morning he will have the exact hour and minute correctly registered.—Watchmaker and Jeweler.

A Viennese Holiday.

The feast of St. Leopold, the patron saint of Lower Austria, was kept as a close holiday in Vienna, and there was a total suspension of business. It is customary on this day for the Viennese to make excursions to Klosterneuburg, where they drink the white wine for which that town and its famous monastery are famed. The monastery boasts an enormous barrel which contains a fantastic number of hogsheads, and the fun of the day consists for many persons in climbing to the top of this huge receptacle by means of a ladder, and drinking the white wine ladled out through a tap at the top. Trains were running from Franz Josef's station to Klosterneuburg every quarter of an hour, and over 1,000 carriages and cabs traveled to the old town by road. In the evening there was a grand and noisy return of roysterers, singing and shouting and reminding one somewhat of the return from Epsom on the Derby day.—St. James' Gazette.

The Chewing Gum Habit.

Orders from manufacturers and druggists have gone out in greater quantity than ever this year for "pure spruce gum." The Maine forests is where the best gum is procured, and the lumbermen can reap quite a little harvest if they can manage to get gum enough to fill these very liberal offers. Gum chewing has become so fashionable that there is an unusual demand for it and it is one that promises to last. Reasons for this are that gum chewers believe that the chewing of the gum aids digestion and also whitens the teeth. The first reason sets elderly gentlemen to chewing it, and the latter makes the practice popular with women. One firm has made a fortune by making a candied chewing gum, which is sold by druggists, tobacconists, confectionists and at elevated railroads. The chewing gum habit has got away beyond the school girl, and there's no telling where it will stop at its present rate of progress.—Chicago Herald.

New Paper Articles.

A number of new combinations in paper are being made. One of the latest is a paper having a "middle" of tin or gold foil. The upper layer is made of waxed, and the under surface of common paper. This is intended for a variety of uses.

A new sheathing paper is composed of two or more layers cemented together by asphalt, or some waterproof or disinfecting material. I don't think that the asphalt idea is altogether new.

A new cardboard is an interior layer or middle of paper made from an admixture of pulp and animal hair. This is intended to be an improvement on every kind of paper in which threads or yarns have been introduced.—Paper Trade Journal.

A Novel Advertisement.

A novelty in the advertising line is the "electric window tapper," for the purpose of attracting the attention of passers by to the wares exposed for sale. It consists, of a figure, hand painted on zinc, eighteen inches high, which knocks on the window with its hand. It is suspended by wires connected with batteries that can be placed in the cellar or any other convenient place. The batteries which go with the tapper will run for six months, and the material for renewing them can be had at any drug store for a trifle.—New York Press.

BILIOUSNESS.

This very common complaint, which is caused by a dormant or inactive liver, can be cured in a short time by using Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, as can also the various diseases arising from inactive liver or kidneys. These organs, if inactive, will allow impure blood to enter the heart, causing tightness about that organ and palpitation.

She suffered thirty years.

MRS. DUDLEY CHANDLER, of Melrose, Mass., says: "I had suffered with Palpitation of the Heart more than thirty years before I found anything to give me essential relief. Last fall I tried Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, and, remarkable as it was, this Compound relieved me in two days, so that for several months afterwards I felt not the slightest touch of it, and am perfectly free from it now. Sometimes, before I took this Compound, the pulsations of my heart were so violent as to shake my whole body with rapid agitations, and at times I fainted and became entirely insensible. Now I am perfectly free from all this suffering. Consequently I can most sincerely and earnestly recommend this Compound to all like sufferers, as pre-eminently the best medicine I ever knew for Palpitation of the Heart."

Ingalls' Mandrake Compound is sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles for $5. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

An Important Announcement

About six weeks ago, while at business, I was suddenly attacked with excruciating pains in my feet, knees and hands. So severe the attack that I took my bed immediately, and in two or three days my joints were swollen to almost double their natural size, and sleep was driven from me. After suffering the most excruciating pain for a week, using liniments and various other remedies, a friend who sympathised with my helpless condition, said to me:

"Why don't you get Swift's Specific and use it. I will guarantee a cure, and if it does not the medicine shall cost you nothing."

I at once secured the S. S. S., and after using it the first day, had a quiet night and refreshing sleep. In a week I felt greatly benefited. In three weeks I could sit up and walk about the room, and after using six bottles I was out and able to go to business. Since then I have been regularly at my post of duty, and stand on my feet from nine to ten hours a day, and am entirely free from pain. These are the plain and simple facts in my case, and I will cheerfully answer all inquiries relative thereto, either in person or by mail. THOMAS MARKWLDE,

NASHVILLE, TENN.—I have warded off a severe attack of rheumatism by a timely resort to Swift's Specific. In all cases where a permanent relief is sought this medicine commends itself for a constitutional treatment that thoroughly eradicates the seeds of disease from the system. Rev. W. P. HARRISON, D. D.

NEW YORK, 51 7TH AVE.—After spending $200 to be relieved of Blood Poison without any benefit, a few bottles of Swift's Specific worked a perfect cure. C. FORTER.

VIDAL, GA.—My little girl, aged six, and boy, aged four years, had scrofula in the worst aggravated shape. They were puny and sickly. To-day they are healthy and robust, all the result of taking S. S. S. JOS T. COLLINS.

LADY LAKE, SUMTER CO., FLA.—Your S. S. S. has proved a wonderful success in my case. The cancer on my face, no doubt, would have soon hurried me to my grave. I do think it is wonderful, and has no equal. D. H. DYER, Postmaster.

PORTLAND, 10:45 P. M. One hundred towns, rep. 28,845, dem. 21, 733, pro. 1957, scat. 600; in 1886, rep. 24,502, dem. 20,033, pro. 1343, scat. 6. Rep. net gain 2690.

PORTLAND, 11:15 P. M. One hundred and thirty towns, rep, 34,794, dem. 25,390, pro. 2013, scat. 802; in 1886, rep. 29,606, dem. 23,799, pro. 1699, scat. 50. Rep. plurality 4093, a gain of 3596.

Reed is re-elected to Congress in the first district by probably 2500 plurality, against 1174 over Clifford in 1886.

PORTLAND, 11:30 P. M. One hundred and fifty-seven towns give: Rep. 44,824, dem. 33,250, pro. 1481, scat. 824; in 1886, rep. 37,949, dem. 30,403, pro. 2029, scat. 28. Rep.

PORTLAND, midnight. Maine gives Burleigh, republican, for governor, about 20,000 plurality, and elects Reed as Congressman in the first district by the unprecedented plurality of 2500; all other republican congressional candidates elected.

PORTLAND, 12:45 A. M., 11th. One hundred and ninety towns give: rep. 48,333, dem. 36,271, pro. 1551, scat. 851; in 1886, rep. 41,092, dem. 33,077, pro. 2140, scat. 28. Republican plurality 12,072, against 8015, a gain of 4057.

In York, Marshal, rep., for representative had 347, Junkins, dem., 231. Reed's majority 118, a gain of 65 over the vote of 1886.

PORTLAND, 2 A. M. There are 507 towns and plantations in Maine. Of these, returns from 241 have been received, and give Burleigh, republican, 56,019; Putnam, democrat, 41,-646; Cushing, prohibition, 1774; scattering 957. Same towns in 1886 gave rep. 43,160, dem. 38,005. Burleigh's plurality 14,373, against 10,065 in 1886; rep. gain 4308. The 266 towns to hear from gave in 1886, rep. 20,831, dem. 17,-194, pro. 1426.

GO, FREE TRADE!

A DEMOCRATIC WATERLOO.

Prohibition Vote, 1774.

HURRAH FOR ELIOT,

The vote of Eliot on the 10th inst. was: For governor, Burleigh 207, Putnam 202; for congressman, Reed 205, Emery 202; state senators, Lord, Kendall and Frost, rep., 205 each, Brierley, Stone and Lynch, dems., 201 each; county commissioner, Isaac Hanscom, rep., 199, Moses E. Goodwin, dem., 206; judge of probate, Hobbs 206, Came 201; register of probate, Wilson 208, Walker 200; treasurer, Prescott 207, Cousens 201; county attorney, Burbank 207, Moore 201; sheriff, Hamilton 207, Stiles 201; representative in legislature, Timothy Dame, rep., 238, George E. Ireland, dem., 173.

In 1886 the vote for congressman was: Reed, rep., 126, Clifford, dem., 242; dem. maj. 116. Rep. maj. this year, 3; rep. gain, 119.

HURRAH FOR KITTERY, TOO.

For governor, Burleigh 424, Putnam 193; congressman, Reed 424, Emery 193; senators, Lord, Kendall and Frost, rep., 424, Brierley, Stone and Lynch, dems., 193; county commissioner, Hanscom 415, Goodwin 199; judge of probate, Hobbs 424, Came 193; register of probate, Wilson 424, Walker 193; county treasurer, Prescott 424, Cousens 193; county attorney, Burbank 424, Moore 193; sheriff, Hamilton 424, Stiles 193; representative to legislature, John Wentworth, rep., 423, Solon Frisbee, dem., 193; scattering 1. On the question as to making the state treasurer ineligible to serve more than six successive years, the vote was 17 yeas and 18 nays. On the question of recurring to annual sessions of the legislature, yeas 19, nays 42. Reed's majority for Congress is 231, against 114 in 1886, a net gain of 117.

Thirty-two young men in Kittery voted this year for the first time, and thirty of them voted the full republican ticket; quite a large proportion of them are from the sturdy old democratic families of the town. And not a few old voters of that party cast their first republican vote on the 10th inst., too.

Taken Ill Again.

Judge Thurman, who was too sick to address the democratic meeting in New York last Thursday evening, undertook to deliver an address in Newark, N. J., on Saturday night, in the skating rink there, which was packed with an immense audience, the interest to see the which attaches to it, being intense. The venerable man spoke for a time quite well, but then had to give it up, and though he was revived sufficiently to resume his address after a long pause, he was finally forced to cut his intended remarks very short. He was taken to his private car at the close of the meeting, and on Sunday started on the road for home. It is painfully evident that the Old Roman who was too old four years ago to fill a cabinet position, in the opinion of Mr. Cleveland, has got no younger since, and is entirely inadequate to perform the duties of president of the United States Senate, not to mention those of president of the United States, to which his election as vice president would make him next in succession.

"The Outlook in Maine."

Under the above heading, the Boston Globe, the recognized organ of the Cleveland free trade democracy of New England, on Wednesday of last week said:

The democrats of Maine are displaying unusual vigor in conducting their campaign. Though the canvass opened mildly, and no great effort was made until several weeks after Mr. Putnam was nominated, there has been a great revival of late, and now, after three weeks of campaigning, the whole state is awake to the urgent need of tariff reform. The ball was set rolling at the big Bangor barbecue, when over 15,000 people came to the Lumber City to assert their faith in democratic principles, their loyalty to the party headed by President Cleveland. Every town of 1000 inhabitants has its "Democratic club," the members of which are energetic and full of courage. If the democrats do not carry the state next Monday, they will whittle down the old republican majority to so small a figure that Maine will be good fighting ground at the November election. * * * * *

With Mr. Blaine as a wet blanket on their hopes, with Candidate Burleigh in trouble on account of strong opposition in his own party, and with a hopeful democracy to fight, the republicans of Maine have lost courage of late, and many are already prepared for defeat. If the campaign is urged vigorously during the remainder of this week we may hope to hear the Maine democratic rooster crow loud and long next Tuesday morning.

The Globe in its Sunday edition gave its democratic readers plenty of encouragement, its Bangor correspondent reporting numerous interviews with prominent wire pullers of the party in Maine, their predictions ranging all the way from from a cutting down of the republican majority in the state to a mere film, and the glorious defeat of Tom Reed for Congress from the first district, to the triumphant election of Mr. Putnam as governor by a majority of 1000 or more, and the total collapse of the party of protection.

The result of the election, as given elsewhere, shows just how much dependence can be placed in the ante-election claims of a genuine British free trade paper.

Heard From at Last.

Grover Cleveland's long-delayed letter of acceptance of the democratic nomination for the presidency, was given to the public on Monday, Sept. 10th. From the fact that President Cleveland has somersaulted on every question in national politics, from the positions he proclaimed himself to hold when a candidate four years ago, many republicans had anticipated that he would come out in this letter as an extreme high protectionist; but he has not done so. His letter, long as it is, is little more than an apology for and an attempted justification of his free trade message to Congress; but for once he is consistent, and the political campaign is to be conducted to its end on the issue of Free Trade vs. Protection to American Industries.

An October Excursion to Southern California.

October is a delightful month in which to cross the continent, and persons who contemplate passing the winter in California will find it a favorable time for the outward journey. To meet the wishes of many who wish to go to Southern California direct with no further delays by the way than may be consistent with perfect comfort, Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb have arranged a trip, with Monday, October 8th, as the date of leaving Boston. This is in addition to a tour by the Northern Pacific railroad, which includes also visits to all the interesting points in the Pacific Northwest before California is reached. There are five routes returning, and the tickets will be good through the winter, spring and early summer. The excursion will be carried out in the same careful manner that has made the winter trips so popular in seasons past, and they will cover all the advantages of side trips, hotel accommodations, routes, etc. In addition to this trip, there will be the excursion to the Pacific Northwest, already alluded to, and another to Colorado, both having October 8th as the departure, and a series of tours among the leading eastern resorts during this and next month. W. Raymond, 296 Washington street, opposite School street, Boston, Mass., will be pleased to furnish descriptive circulars.

Democratic Temperance.

The democratic party is always for a few minutes in the year alive to the evils of intemperance, and solicitous as to a proper remedy therefor. This oasis in their desert of debauched principles happens during the brief interval required by the reading of the resolutions. The platform of their recent state convention contains a resolution displaying the lack of the proper enforcement of prohibitory laws, and demanding a license system. The New York Times calls upon its new associates to define more distinctly what of the Times of this city was one of the committee upon resolutions, and that the resolutions were reported by Col. John W. Sanborn. The inference is that Mr. Jones, as usual, had the convention well in hand, and the resolutions were such as met his approval, if in fact he did not indicate in advance just what the democracy of the Granite State in convention assembled should resolve. The curious feature of the case seems to be that if prohibition is such a failure, why should not Mr. Jones leave well enough alone, and not bother about license laws? But one cannot always tell just what the democracy are aiming at when they pass their resolutions. Now, we presume, is the time for the democratic managers to draft the resolutions for the prohibition party annex.

While swimming in the Hudson river near Troy, N. Y., on the 6th inst., Arthur Octhout and a number of companions were chased by a young crocodile. It was captured. It is thought that the crocodile escaped from some one in the neighborhoood.

It is alleged that a regular slave traffic is carried on under the French flag between Semba and Madagascar. The French government has ordered an investigation.

A man and woman named Sloan, who lodged in the Pittsburg, Penn., lockup one night last week, had tramped all the way from Richmond, Ky., over 600 miles. They are at Pittsburg on a visit to a relative. The journey occupied four weeks.

Mrs. Harriet Beeches Stowe has been taken to Hartford, Conn., from Sag Harbor, L. I. She is hopelessly ill.

John Robinson's circus train of thirty-five cars was run into by a freight train on the Little Miama railroad, Ohio, Sunday, and badly wrecked. Five circus men were killed and seventeen injured.

An unknown man, evidently a working man, about twenty-five years old, was found dying in the street in New York on the night of Sept. 9th, with the point of an umbrella driven four and a half inches into his head under the right eye, and broken off. He died soon after being taken to a hospital.

Hotter the Weather Bigger the Proof.

As the weather grows warm, the sale of James Pyle's Pearline Washing Compound rapidly increases. This proves that many women recognize the fact that PEARLINE makes washing and cleaning very much easier than when done with the ordinary means. Proves also that summer clothing, being of delicate texture and color, will not stand the rough usage necessary when washed with soap, and establishes the fact that PEARLINE, in doing away with the rubbing, lessens the wear and tear and fills a very important place. Delightful for bathing in fresh or salt water. Its ingredients render it harmless to the most delicate skin. Especially during the hot weather it is to your advantage to use PEARLINE, and only humane to supply your servants with it, and thus lighten their labors; besides you insure much better results. Beware of imitations. JAMES PYLE, New York.

THE EASTERN RAILROAD.

There has been, of late, a bear movement in Eastern railroad stock. The story has circulated that the cost of the Bradford disaster on the Boston & Maine line would seriously diminish the volume of net results of the Boston & Maine system, and that this, aided by a loss or reduction in net results on the Lowell road, would leave a narrowed margin for dividends upon the shares of the Eastern road. The effect of these rumors has been a decline in the market price of Eastern stock, which has been eagerly appreciated by certain far-seeing persons, who gave orders to buy all the shares offered in the market.

It appears that the gross earnings of the entire Boston & Maine system for the year ending on the 30th inst. are placed at between twelve and thirteen millions. The business shows a large increase, and a diminution of operating expenses. The Bradford disaster will cost from $100,000 to $150,000. The question seems to remain, how much the extraordinary outlay for permanent improvements, such as the Newburyport and Salmon Falls bridges, will diminish the fund from which a dividend may be derived. By some it is predicted that the Eastern dividend will be at a low figure. All this of course depends upon the methods of the Boston & Maine in mathematics.

The Eastern railroad owns 18,115 shares in the Maine Central road, worth $135 per share, a total of $2,445,525; 5513 shares in the Portsmouth, Great Falls & Conway, at $110, total $606,430; cash in hands of trustees, $527,234; grand total, $3,579,189. This is a respectable show of assets toward the December dividend.

There are still over sixty guests at Appledore.

Pears' is the purest and best Soap made.

Charles Francis Adams has written a preface to the new book upon which Mr. Edwards Roberts has been busily engaged at the Stedman cottage in Newcastle all summer. The work is to appear in October, and is to be published by the Harpers.

Mr. George Raitt, recently elected harbor master by the city councils, it is said declines to accept the office. It is more than hinted that Mr. Raitt will vote for an American president, and protection to American industries—including the fishing industry—next November.

Mr. C. W. Taylor has the contract to do the plumbing and gas piping in the house of Mr. Robert E. Rich, corner of Highland and Broad streets.

Miss Edith Horrocks, daughter of Mr. Frank Horrocks, while crossing Market square about noon on Monday was knocked down by a large dog belonging to Mr. Peter Strickland. Her head struck upon the stones of the crossing, rendering her insensible. She was raised by two gentlemen and taken into Dr. Fay's store, where she soon recovered sufficiently to proceed home without assistance, and is supposed not to have sustained any permanent injury.

The potato rot, brand of '47, is reported to have manifested itself in this vicinity. What with the excessively backward season, the early frost and the potato rot, the farmer's lot is not a happy one.

Three converts, two women and one man, were baptised at Noble's island on Sunday afternoon by the pastor of the Advent church, in presence of a large number of spectators.

Messers. Charles H. Kingsbury and Bert J. Rowe, in the employ of the Boston & Hingham Steamboat Co., were in this city on Monday, in attendance on the anniversary sports of the Portsmouth Athletic club.

Mr. Edwin W. Berry, the well-known baker, has removed from the old bakery on High street to No. 15 Ladd street, where a nice little shop has been fitted for the purpose of baking bread, cake and pastry. Having pleased a large line of custom for the past four years, he expects by constant effort to do at least as well in the future. Hot rolls every morning, Sunday excepted; fresh bread every day; hot brown bread and baked beans every Sunday morning.

Coal freights from Philadelphia to this port were on the 8th inst. quoted at $1 to $1.05, free; from Baltimore, $1.10.

A resident of Kittery Point gave us a call on Tuesday at noon, and informed us that twenty-five young men of the Point that day voted for the first time, twenty-three of them carrying the straight republican ticket.

"What is it that makes the rich man richer, and the poor man poorer?" shouted a democratic orator the other evening. The proper answer to this question would have been "monopoly," and the orator waited for some one to give it. He was therefore very much disgusted when a newly-fledged member who had not been properly posted got up and bellowed "Beer!"

L. L. Miliken, paymaster upon the York corporation at Saco, drove to Old Orchard on Wednesday of last week, and left his horse hitched upon the outskirts of the camp ground. Returning a short time afterward he found that his team had disappeared. Later in the afternoon, after he had made inquiries all over Old Orchard for it, he found the horse hitched at the place where it had been left, with the cross-bar and one wheel of the buggy broken, and axle sprung. Some one had stolen the team, had a smashup and returned it, and it will probably never be known who that somebody was.

The second annual cattle show and fair at Sanford, York county, will be held Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Sept. 18th, 19th, 20th and 21st. The first fair of the association proved an unqualified success, and the second promises to eclipse the first in every way. The programme is an extended one and includes many features. Tuesday, the first day, will be devoted to the entry of stock and articles for exhibition. Wednesday will be devoted to the exhibition of produce, poultry, carriages, harnesses, cotton and woollen goods, and fancy articles; there will also be two horse races on the second day. Friday, the fourth and last day, there will be a game of base ball; bicycle race, for a premium of $80; purse of $300, free to all horses that have never beaten 2:29; also purse of $100, open to all horses that have never beaten 2:50. Good music will be in attendance each day, and in addition to the foregoing there will be one or more leading attractions.

Seleucus Adams, a prominent citizen, died at Saco on the night of the 7th inst., at the age of eighty-four years. He was at one time in the sugar refining business in Boston. Three children survive him.

George York of Kennebunkport, whose wife left him about two months ago, and who since then has been drinking very heavily, attempted suicide last Thursday by taking laudanum. Several doctors worked upon him five hours before he came to.

Alaska was ceded to the United States by Russia, to a republican administration, to prevent British aggressions. The sum named, which gave this country the right of eminent domain over a region which makes it a nation upon which the sun never sets, has been paid for within a single year since that time by revenues. Poaching by Canadians, which would effectually destroy the seals, was supposed to have been stopped by United States revenue cutters, which made several seizures, all of which, however, have been released! Now, an English man-of-war appears in American waters, flying the red bandanna, and the revenue cutters lie at anchor awaiting orders from Secretary of State Bayard, who waits to listen to what the minister from the court of Saint James may say, while the Canadian poachers pursue their avocation of ruin to American interests in Alaskan seas, unimpeded and unquestioned.

VIATOR.

"The Face of Rosenfel," by Charles Howard Montague, No. 6 of the "Manhattan Series," of Popular American Novels. Paper, 12 mo, price 25 cents. Published by A. L. Burt, 56 Beekman street, New York.

"The Face of Rosenfel" is the striking title of one of the most interesting of recent novels. The author is Charles Howard Montague, a writer of wide popularity and versatile genius. While in no sense a mere detective story, it has all the absorbing facination of a search for the clew to a baffling mystery, and it is finally developed, not by the tricks of the searchers, but by the natural results of the crime which underlies it. It is for sale at Goodrich's.

The Pillsbury family from all over the country held a reunion at Newburyport, Mass., one day last week. There were one hundred and two representatives of the family present. Another reunion will be held, and although its date was not definitely settled upon it will probably be held in 1891, which is the 250th anniversary of the landing of the Pillsbury family in America. A political canvass was instituted during the reunion. Of the ninety-six members of the family present at the time the canvass was made, five were for Cleveland, (and of these five but one was a voter,) three were for Fiske, while the remaining eighty-eight were for Harrison and Morton.

Don't Wait

Until your hair becomes dry, thin, and gray before giving the attention needed to preserve its beauty and vitality. Keep on your toilet-table a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor—the only dressing you require for the hair—and use a little, daily, to preserve the natural color and prevent baldness.

Thomas Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky., writes: "Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. Tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best hair-restorer in the world."

"My hair was faded and dry," writes Mabel C. Hardy, of Delavan, Ill.; "but after using a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it became black and glossy."

OH! MY HEAD.

The pain from Neuralgia and its companion disease Rheumatism is excruciating. Thousands who could be quickly cured are needlessly suffering. Ath-lo-pho-ros will do for others what it did for the following parties:

Williamsport, Ind., Oct. 2, 1887.

Having been afflicted with neuralgia for the past four years, and trying almost everything, but in vain, I finally heard of Athlophoros. After taking one bottle I found it to be helping me, and after taking four bottles of Athlophoros and one of Pills, I found that I was entirely well. I think the medicine is positively a sure cure.

CHAUNCEY R. REDICK.

Mt. Carmel, Ill., Dec. 26, 1887.

I have used Athlophoros in my family and find it to be the greatest medicine for neuralgia, sciatica, and having had the pains fastened upon me for the last 8 years I know whereof I speak. MRS. JUDIA CHILTON.

WHAT IS

SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

Lincoln League.

There will be a convention of delegates from the republican clubs of this state to form a State Lincoln League, auxiliary to the National League, at Phenix hall, Concord, Tuesday, Sept. 11th, at eleven o'clock A. M. Each club organized under the State League constitution will be entitled to three delegates.

A general ratification of the national and state tickets will take place at two o'clock P. M., when speeches will be made by Hon. Nathan Goff, republican candidate for governor of West Virginia, Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, Hon. O. C. Moore of Nashua, Hon. J. H Gallinger of Concord, Hon. Chas. H. Burns of Wilton, Hon. C. A. Sulloway of Manchester, Hon. Daniel Hall of Dover, Hon. H. W. Greene of Hopkinton, and others.

Round trip tickets at the rate of one and a half cents a mile, no rate to exceed $2.00, will be on sale at stations upon all divisions of the Boston & Maine railroad, White Mountains division Boston & Lowell railroad, and Concord railroad. Tickets good going Sept. 10th and 11th, and returning 11th and 12th.

When our manfactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C Calhoun.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

When we consider the patronage of this great office, [the presidency,] the allurements of power, the temptation to retain place once gained, and more than all, the availability a party finds in an incumbent whom a horde of office holders, with a zeal born of benefits and fostered by the hope of favors yet to come, stand ready to aid with money and trained political service, we recognize in their eligibility of the president for re-election a most serious danger to that calm, deliberate and intelligent political action, which must characterize a government by the people.—Grover Cleveland.

Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * and on that broad question Mr Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

We must now place our manufactures by the side of the agriculturist. * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

Men and Women's Bones,

Joints and muscles may escape the agonizing tortures of rheumatism if they will but "take time by the forelock," and annihilate the symptoms of oncoming trouble with the benignant and highly sanctioned blood depurent and alternative, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Poisons mostly constitute the ordinary means of battling with this atrocious complaint. Avoid the risk of using these by resorting to the safe as well as effectual antiphlogistic and preventive. After exposures to damp, through drafts and other causes which encourage a rheumatic tendency, a wineglassful of the Bitters prevents ill effects. No surer preventive of malarial ailments like fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake exists, and it is, besides, a most genial recuperator of strength exhausted by excessive mental or physicial effort. Miners, mariners, operatives and others whose avocations involve laborious work in rough weather out of doors, or close application indoors, find it invaluable.

Didn't Want a Girl.

Last summer my wife's health was all run down, and she wanted me to hire a girl to the work. In a little while I found one I thought would suit her, when to my surprise she said I need not hire any one, as she felt much better, and thought another bottle of Sulpher Bitters would cure her. Donald Grey, 41 Worcester square, Boston.

Grover Cleveland has done more to advance the cause of free trade than any Prime Minister of England has done.—London Spectator.

We know of no mode of treatment which offers, to sufferers from chronic diseases, a more certain hope of cure than that which is comprehended in the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. For purifying and invigorating the blood, this preparation is unequaled.

The only time England can use a Celt is when he emigrates to America, and votes for free trade. — London Times.

Vincent Lundberg, of Stockholm, Physician-in-Chief to the King of Sweden, recommends Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer for the scalp and hair.

Our manufactures require the systematic and fostering care of the government. * * Equally important it is to provide at home a market for our raw materials.—James Monroe.

Hay Fever.

I have been afflicted with hay fever from early in August until frost. My eyes would run a stream of water and I sneezed continually. I was advised to use Ely's Cream Balm. It has worked like a charm and I can say I am entirely cured.—Mrs. Emeline Johnson, Chester, Conn.

I have been for several years a sufferer from hay fever and severe head colds. I have found nothing that can compare with Ely's Cream Balm. I would not be without it for any consideration. It is simply wonderful in its effect upon the nasal organs.—S. A. Burtt, Wilmington, N. C.

President Cleveland declines cautiously to dub himself a free trader, but he caters up a free trade position without disguise —London Saturday Review.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla, Sold by all druggists.

It is certain that the arguments which President Cleveland urges are those which Cobden used to employ forty-five years ago, and which any free trader could employ now.—London Times.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. a man for groaning when he has Rheumatism or Neuralgia. The pain is simply awful. No torture in the ancient times was more painful than these twin diseases. But—oughtn't a man to be blamed if, having Rheumatism or Neuralgia, he went use Ath-lo-pho-ros, when it has cured thousands who have suffered in the same way? It has cured hundreds after physicians have pronounced them incurable.

"The skill of five physicians could not cure me of Rheumatism which had settled in the hips, neck and shoulders. So intense was the pain that sleep was almost impossible. The first dose of Athlophoros gave me relief, and the third enabled me to sleep for four and a half hours without waking. I continued its use, and am now well."

Don't Kill the Old Hens.

When hens are shedding feathers they often stop laying and grow fat. Most people consider fat a sign of health. The fattening of moulting hens however, as with some people produces debility rather than health. Many of the worst cases of roupe are contracted, while the hens are moulting.

The food of moulting hens, if largely vegetable is fattorming, and not required for growing feathers. Therefore cornfed hens get very fat. They need more nitrogen and phosphate elements in their food when moulting, which, if not supplied they stop laying, because the growing feathers have used all, and left no nitrogenous matter to form eggs. At this season, killing old hens and relying on young pullets is a great mistake; where people have a few hens and late pullets. Because, if properly fed the hens will have their new plumage and lay well all winter; while the pullets unless specially treated may not commence laying until spring, when high prices for eggs have fallen one-half. Again, an old hen's egg will hatch a more vigorous chicken than a pullet's egg.

John R. Jones, Suffield, Conn, a breeder of prize winning mottled Javas, says: "I find Sheridan's Condition Powder fed once daily in the food, very valuable for moulting hens. I have used it for two years for exhibition birds. It assists in growing new feathers, makes the combs a bright red, and gives a rich gloss to the plumage. It will also make hens lay and the eggs hatch well. I find when other egg-foods are used in quantities to force egg production the eggs do not hatch."

The above is the experience of many people in using Sheridan's Powder. If fed to young pullets now as directed, they will begin to lay before six months old. Commence at once using Sheridan's Powder. It helps old hens through moulting, and gets the pullets in laying trim before the season of high prices. Eggs will sell very high this fall and winter. Therefore be ready to get all you can.

I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom House St., Boston, Mass., sole makers of Sheridan's Condition Powder to make hens lay, will send to any address for one two-cent stamp, testimontals with full information how to make a few hens pay well; also how to obtain Sheridan's powder.

The liver and kidneys must be kept in good condition. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a great remedy for regulating these organs.

Ayer's Ague Cure acts directly on the liver and biliary apparatus, and drives out the malaria which induces liver complaints and billious disorders. Warranted to cure, or money refunded. Try it.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

Could not Keep

Stop without them. I consider your Sulpher Bitters a remarkable blood purifier. I know of several people, whose cases were considered hopeless that have been cured by your medicine. The sale of Sulpher Bitters is so large here that I could not keep shop without them. E. S. Yates, Pharmacist, 99 Essex street, Lawrence, Mass.

Congress have wisely, and no without success, directed their attention to the encouragement of manufactures. The object is of too much consequence not to insure a continuance of their efforts in every way which shall appear eligible.—George Washington.

Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam heals sore throat, reduces the swollen tonsils, and restores natural tone to the affected vocal chords. It soothes to natural and refreshing slumber, during which nature regains strength to combat disease.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles.

SYMPTOMS — Moisture; intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue numors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. SWAYNE'S OINTMENT stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases the tumors. All druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia. oct29

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam, for Coughs and Colds, does it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles at 50c and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

ADAMSON'S BOTANIC COUGH BALSAM

More than twenty years ago Adamson's Botanic Balsam was introduced generally throughout New England as a remedy for Coughs, Colds and Pulmonary complaints. Since its introduction it has constantly won its way into public favor, until now it is the universal decision that ADAMSON'S BOTANIC BALSAM is the best remedy for curing Coughs, Colds and Asthma.

JEWISH FUNERAL CUSTOMS.

Many of Their Most Ancient Rites Still Observed—Peculiar Ceremonies.

In their funeral rites and observances the Jews have preserved many of the most ancient customs of their race. They still rend the upper garments in token of bereavement, as Jacob did when informed of the death of his favorite son; they still seat themselves for seven days on the ground in sign of mourning, as Job and his friends are represented in the Scripture to have done. They still eat the mourners' meal, as their ancestors did in Palestine; they kindle the memorial light to comfort the departed soul, as they did, in all likelihood, ages before Judaism was known; and they still recite in public the mourners' prayer, every repetition of which—according to rabbinical notions—helps the deceased a step further out of purgatory. In the west as in the east these customs are practically the same—we mean among the great bulk of observant Jews. The very wealthy and the more highly cultured members of the synagogue are in these things, as in many others, a law unto themselves.

The Jews rigidly exclude all relatives from the chamber of a dying co-religionist. Only strangers should be present when the soul leaves the body. As soon as death occurs all the vessels in the house containing water are emptied. On the continent, in places where Jews reside, the emptying of the water vessels in the public roadway is the usual mode of notifying that a death has occurred. The practice had its origin, we gather from the rabbinical books, in an Old World superstition that standing water in such circumstances became the abiding place of certain evil spirits whose presence in the house was prejudicial both to the dead and to the living. In the interval between death and interment the Jews lay the corpse upon the bare ground with the feet toward the door. The body is covered, but nothing—saving occasionally a little straw—may be placed under it. Then the two big toes are tied together. On Sabbaths it is not, however, permitted to remove a body on to the floor; it would be work. But as it is sometimes necessary that this should nevertheless be done, rabbinical ingenuity has contrived a means of accomplishing it without violating the sanctity of the day. A loaf of bread is placed upon the corpse, and the two together are lifted to the ground. It is held that only the bread has been moved, and this is permitted on the Sabbath.

Two or three hours before the interment takes place the ceremonial purification of the body known as the tahara takes place. It consists merely in pouring seven definite measures of warm water over the body, while repeating the words: "I will pour upon you cleansing waters, and ye shall be cleansed of your uncleanliness; for of all your iniquities I will purify you." The body is then placed in the coffin attired in a white cotton gown known as a kittel. This kittel is, in northern Europe, presented to a bridegroom by his bride on the day of their wedding, and is worn by him on certain occasions, such as the Day of Atonement and the Passover Eve celebration. It is made by the female relatives of the bride, but she herself must not take part in the sewing of it. In Poland, Galicia, and in Russia the bridegroom always wears the death garment under the wedding canopy during the performance of the marriage ceremony. Besides the kittel, the body is enveloped in the praying scarf or talith used by the deceased during life. When this is done the relatives are summoned. One by one they draw near and bend over the coffin; a friend takes a sharp knife and makes a slit in one of the outer garments of the mourner—on the right side if the deceased be a parent, on the left if a child. The mourner himself then rends the garment, according to the custom of the country. In the east the Jew tears the vestment clean across; in England it is only torn a couple of fingers' breadth. The rent must not be sewn up for a month and the mourning garment must be worn for a parent fully eleven months. The Spanish and Portuguese Jews rend their undergarments as well. Except among the German Jews—as they are called—in this country, the last offices of the dead are performed by the members of what are termed "Chevrah Kadishaw" or "Holy Brotherhood," an organization formed in every orthodox congregation only for this purpose.

Just as near relatives are excluded from the death chamber, so are females prohibited from attending a funeral or interment. Why this should be so it is difficult to say. The custom of excluding women on such occasion is certainly not an ancient one, since we know from the Talmud and later rabbinical books that, of old, women joined in the funeral processions of their people, chanting dirges appropriate to the ceremony. However, nowadays they are not permitted to join, and the obsequies are attended by males only. In Northern Europe and in parts of Russia, a father is not allowed to be present at the interment of the first child he is unfortunate enough to lose. It is believed he will lose a second if he does, though this will not in itself suffice to explain the existence of so strange a custom. The Polish Jews are, however, peculiar in more than this. It is the universal belief of orthodox Hebrews that the resurrection of the dead will take place in the Holy Land, and therefore all bodies will have to make their way underground to Palestine before the day of judgment. So, to facilitate this task, the "Chassidim," or ultra pious of Russia and Poland, put a fork in the hands of the deceased when he is placed in the ground—for coffins are only used in the case of a bichor (first born) or a kohen (one of priestly family)—in order that he may dig his way through the ground with it and thus reach the Holy Land, where the resurrection takes place.

On leaving a cemetery—which is known as the bethelam, "house of eternity," or beth haim, "house of life"—it is customary to pluck some of the grass growing there and throw it over the shoulder without looking back, repeating the words, "Lila' moveth l' netzach" (he will destroy death forever). Primarily the plucking of the grass had no connection with the formula that now accompanies it; but the original symbolism of the act is forgotten, like so many of the practices still extant in Jewry.—St. James' Gazette.

Tea Gathering in Ceylon

Tea is getting to be a great product of Ceylon and the export is already 10,000,000 pounds. It is claimed in behalf of this tea that it is cleaner than Chinese or Japanese tea, which is manipulated and adulterated until its quality is considerably deteriorated. In Ceylon coolies pick the tea leaves, which are spread on trays to wither under cover for about a day. The withered leaf is then placed in a rolling machine, driven by power, and rolled for an hour, and during the process the leaves become a moist and twisted mass, out of which the expressed juice freely rolls. The leaves are then placed in trays to ferment or oxydize, during which process they change from a green to a copper color. The subsequent flavor and strength of the tea depend, to a great extent, on the fermentation, which is a chemical process, the success of which is due to the weather.

Firing is the next process. The tea is thinly spread on trays and placed either on charcoal stoves or in large iron drying machines, and at the end of half an hour it is thoroughly crisp and dried and has become tea. The tea is then sized by being passed through sieves of different mesh, giving the varieties of Broken Pekoe, Pekoe, Souchong, Congou and Dust. The first mentioned, which consists chiefly of the opening bud of the leaf, gives the strongest tea; so strong that the other teas are mixed with it. The tea is again slightly fired to drive off any suspicion of moisture, and packed while warm in lead lined boxes.

Ceylon tea may now be bought in the American market. It is extolled for its strength and flavor, and it is said that two pounds of it will go farther than three pounds of Chinese or Japanese tea. It is said to have a fragrance that is peculiarly its own.—Good Housekeeping.

Give Felons Their Labor.

The idea is simply preposterous that the people sent to the penitentiary should live in idleness. They should have the benefit of their labor, and if you give them the benefit of their labor they will turn out as good work as though they were out of the penitentiary. They will have the same reason to do their best. Consequently, poor articles, poorly constructed things, would not come into competition with good articles made by free people outside of the walls.

Now many mechanics are complaining because work done in the penitentiaries is brought into competition with their work. But the only reason that convict work is cheaper is because the poor wretch who does it is robbed. The only reason that the work is poor is because the man who does it has no interest in its being good. If he had the profit of his own labor he would do the best that was in him, and the consequence would be that the wares manufactured in the prisons would be as good as those manufactured elsewhere. For instance, we will say there are three or four men working together. They are all free men. One commits a crime and he is sent to the penitentiary. Is it possible that his companions would object to his being paid for honest work in the penitentiary? —Col. Bob Ingersoll in New York World Interview.

Leaping Salmon of Canada.

The salmon rivers of Canada are all streams of swift currents, whirling rapids and high falls. The salmon seems to make its way up these streams with as much ease as he moves down. One of the sights in the vicinity of Quebec is the salmon leaping at the Falls of Lovette, and during July many persons assemble there to see it. The falls are a succession of steep tumbles, and the water rushes over the rocks with great velocity. The salmon gather at the foot of the lower tumble, and, with marvelous leaps up the very face of the rushing waters, make their way to the summit without apparent difficulty, gliding up the swift chutes like a flash and mounting each successive tumble until the grand summit is reached. The Canadian will tell you that when there was no legal interference with spearing, the Indians were in the habit of gathering at the foot of the falls in their birch canoes and casting their spears at the salmon as they leaped up the torrents, making their casts with such marvelous skill that the salmon aimed at was invariably stopped in his vaulting career and fell back impaled by the Indian's cruel barb.—Cor. Philadelphia News.

At the Dinner Table.

The American Anthropologist has positive views that a perfect dinner, thoroughly good in variety, cookery, service, aesthetic appliances, culinary chemistry, roses in winter, ice in summer, and guests with educated palates, is the finest type and expression we have of the highest civilization. "Savages eat when they can get food, and eat as long as the food lasts. Civilization may be traced by the changing hours of refection." That is doubtful, for the rules quoted from the age of Francis I, of France, are better than those now in vogue: "Rise at 5, dine at 9, sup at 5 and couch at 9." The question of grace at meals is traced to the pre-Christian and heathen habit of placating the gods, offering them a share of the food. Herbert Spencer would refer it to the custom of offering a part of each meal to deceased ancestors, and members of the family. Almost all customs extant have secured new meanings since their origin. —Globe-Democrat.

A Spirited American Lady.

I was recently told a good story about a spirited American lady, for whom a titled female friend had undertaken the delicate mission of inviting for her a number of guests to fill her house at Ascot during the races. Among these guests were numbered seyon male scions of the British aristocracy. Two of those personages behaved as gentlemen should do, and were all courtesy and amiability to their hostess. The other five acted as the British cad is apt to do under any circumstances, and persistently snubbed the lady under whose roof they were staying. On the return of Mrs. X—— to London, she was asked who her guests had been at Ascot. "I had the pleasure of entertaining two gentlemen and five men," was her answer. This reply got abroad, and every one of the seven called upon her afterward to express separately and individually the hope that he had been one of the two gentlemen.—Cor. Philadelphia Telegraph.

BILIOUSNESS.

THIS very common complaint, which is caused by a dormant or inactive liver, can be cured in a short time by using Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, as can also the various diseases arising from inactive liver or kidneys. These organs, if inactive, will allow impure blood to enter the heart, causing tightness about that organ and palpitation.

She suffered thirty years,

MRS. DUDLEY CHANDLER, of Melrose, Mass., says: "I had suffered with Palpitation of the Heart more than thirty years before I found anything to give me essential relief. Last fall I tried Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, and, remarkable as it was, this Compound relieved me in two days, so that for several months afterwards I felt not the slightest touch of it, and am perfectly free from it now. Sometimes, before I took this Compound, the pulsations of my heart were so violent as to shake my whole body with rapid agitations, and at times I fainted and became entirely insensible. Now I am perfectly free from all this suffering. Consequently I can most sincerely and earnestly recommend this Compound to all like sufferers, as pre-eminently the best medicine I ever knew for Palpitation of the Heart."

Ingalls' Mandrake Compound is sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles for $5. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

TRADE S.S.S. FOR THE BLOOD MARK

An Important Announcement

About six weeks ago, while at business, I was suddenly attacked with an excruciating pains in my feet, knees and hands. So severe the attack that I took my bed immediately, and in two or three days my joints were swollen to almost double their natural size, and sleep was driven from me. After suffering the most excruciating pain for a week, using liniments and various other remedies, a friend who sympathized with my helpless condition, said to me:

"Why don't you get Swift's Specific and use it. I will guarantee a cure, and if it does not the medicine shall cost you nothing."

I at once secured the S. S. S., and after using it the first day, had a quiet night and refreshing sleep. In a week I felt greatly benefitted. In three weeks I could sit up and walk about the room, and after using six bottles I was out and able to go to business. Since then I have been regularly at my post of duty, and stand on my feet from nine to ten hours a day, and am entirely free from pain. These are the plain and simple facts in my case, and I will cheerfully answer all inquiries relative thereto, either in person or by mail. THOMAS MANNLIFE.

DIRIGO.

The result in Maine is an indication of the verdict of the country in November. Nothing but over-confidence can prevent the choice of the republican candidates in the presidential election. Besides the effect of the stamp of disappointment upon the president's free trade vagaries, there is found in this result an emphatic disapproval of the course of the administration upon the fishery question. The administration's position was eloquently, and we think conscientiously, presented by Mr. Putnam, the democratic candidate for governor. But Putnam is not the first man of ability in his profession, who has had the misfortune to be beaten because he had a bad case.

To the neighbors and friends of Hon. Thomas B. Reed, the news of his increased plurality was gratifying in the extreme. If the democrats had the large sum boasted to have been sent to Arthur Sewell to be used in the campaign, if their party was in such splendid condition of organization, with a most popular candidate for governor, for whom it was predicted so many republicans were to vote on "personal grounds," and the republican candidates were so poorly selected, etc., the question occurs, Why was the result so overwhelming?

The answer will be heard in November. The verdict in Oregon, Vermont and Maine is but a forecast of the utter defeat next November of the democracy of the country, which has sold out to the liquor interests in New York state in the hope of choosing Hill for governor, while they trade off votes for Cleveland as of no political value in the coming contest.

How It Happened.

The Boston Post, the morning after the election in Maine, got a little mixed in its editorial on the political cyclone in that state. It started out by saying that "The democrats were poorly prepared for the contest." A little further along we learn that "The democrats have every reason to be proud of the manner in which the battle was conducted on their side."

Just why they should be proud of being "poorly prepared," one is at a loss to conceive, but it gets plainer when the democratic editorial sees "a hopeful sign" in the returns.

We are pleased to learn from this luminous article that "the people even of Maine are beginning to realize the political situation." Even is good. Realize the political situation? Why, even Grover Cleveland ought to be doing that by this time.

President Cleveland's Letter.

The president has addressed a formal letter of acceptance to Hon. Patrick A. Collins of the state convention at St. Louis. Mr. Cleveland embraces the opportunity, while so doing, to give Mr. Collins, and the rest of the people of the United States, his views quite extensively upon the dangers of a surplus in the treasury. He goes over a good deal of ground, and presses in the service a good many adjectives, and other parts of speech, to impress upon the American people the important idea that they have a president who is not going to let this danger threaten them, without his speaking of it.

Mr. Cleveland proceeds, therefore, along toward the middle of his rather long epistle, to startle the country with the profound observation that "unnecessary taxation is unjust taxation." This highly important moral text is led up to, and illuminated by, an ardent and somewhat involved series of remarks, pervaded by a sentiment that the president proposes to see to it that the American people shall not be maltreated in this business, if he can help it.

This leads his excellency to pay attention to the republican platform, the prominent feature of which, as he seems to view it, is its flippancy. He furnishes Mr. Collins with a few other observations that smack of virtue, and incidentally would have Mr. Collins note what a good administration the writer has given the country. He does not say in so many words whether he accepts the nomination, but he hints pretty plainly that he is going to do his duty under the circumstances.

Owing to the length of the communication Mr. Cleveland omits all reference to what has been going on in Maine.

Past Elections in Maine.

It may be well to call attention to the vote that has been cast at the September election in Maine for the past eighteen years, since 1870, in order that a proper comparison may be made with the vote thrown in the state at the late election figures are given in round numbers:

In 1870 the republican plurality was 8000; in 1871 the republican plurality was 10,000; in 1872 (the Grant and Greeley year) the republican plurality was 16,000; in 1873 the republican plurality was 12,000; in 1874 the republican plurality was 9000; in 1875 the republican plurality was 4000; in 1876 the republican plurality was 15,000; in 1877 the republican plurality was 11,000. In 1878 the combined democratic and greenback vote was 13,000 larger than the republican vote. In 1879 the democratic and greenback vote was 1000 larger than the republican vote. In 1880 the democratic and greenback fusion vote was 4000 larger than the republican vote. This was the last year in which an annual election was held. In 1882 the republican plurality was 8000. In 1884 the republican plurality was 19,000. [It should be remembered that this was the presidential contest in which one of Maine's own citizens was the standard bearer of the republican party. The democratic party virtually abandoned the contest and did not throw their usual vote, and the majority given to Mr. Blaine, for that was what it practically was, has always been regarded as a personal tribute to him and a phenomenal vote for the party.] In 1886 the republican plurality was 13,000. It thus appears that the average republican plurality in Maine for the past eighteen years, including the phenomenal majority in 1884, is 7800.

The Yellow Fever.

There were thirty-two new cases of yellow fever at Jacksonville, Florida, on the 10th, and five deaths, making the total of cases 632, and of deaths seventy-eight. Great distress exists in the city, and pecuniary aid is earnestly called for.

Thirty-seven cases of yellow fever, and seven deaths, were reported at McCleany, Fla., on the 11th.

The Maine Deluge.

Further returns show that the republican plurality in Maine is about 20,000, the largest since the war. Reed's majority for Congress in the first district is from 2500 to 2700, nearly double what he ever before received; Dingley, Boutelle and Milliken have each over 6000 plurality for Congress. The republicans elect every member of the state senate and four-fifths of the members of the house, and have carried every county in the state on the popular vote.

Go right away, British free trade.

The Shipping Interests.

When Arthur Sewall, the president's right hand man in Maine, learned that the shipbuilders of Bath were intending to vote against the democracy, he sent for "Governor" Putnam to visit his native heath and straighten out matters. William went there and made a speech. He attributed the decline in shipping to republican high tariff. Material ought to come in free. We should have free ships, or build them cheaper. The idea of the Bath mechanics working on iron ships at seventy-two cents a day did not take, and Bath repudiated the political lesson of her distinguished son. Mr. Putnam did not refer to the fact that the vessels which carry the great bulk of the products from this country across the Atlantic are manned by captains, officers and crews who are not only fed poorly in comparison with the men on board vessels owned in the United States, but their rate of wages, from master to cabin boy, is far less than is paid our men. Then too, as to traffic by steamers, Mr. Putnam omitted to note the fact that while England pays subsidies in all directions for carrying mails in her vessels, which carry the flag and encourage the trade of Great Britain, Mr. Cleveland's administration refused to pay even what had been voted by Congress to one line of American steamers for carrying foreign mails. No; it is "English" every time. We must encourage foreign steam lines.

The Cleveland orator attempting to show that the decline in ship building is due to the republican party, or that the Cleveland crowd could or would aid this interest, is indeed rich! The Kennebec shipbuilders know a thing or two. While they admired the graceful oratory of the democratic candidate, they believed not his sophistry, and on Monday they were at the polls with votes for the other candidate. Mr. Putnam's sound remark that our shipping has to meet the rivalry of the whole world tells the whole story. When the price of labor on shore and afloat comes down, as the democrats seek to have it, to the standard of the Norwegian and the Italian, then we can stand the rivalry. Then the yards at Bath will resound with the ring of ship builders' tools—if men are willing to build ships at the same rate for their labor as is done on the Clyde and elsewhere.

John Boyd, twenty-two years old, was run over by a freight car at Zealand, near Fabyan's, Sept. 10th, and died in about an hour.

The shoe factory at Alton is running day and night on account of a press of orders.

Some thousands of Maine democrats voted against Cleveland's pet projects of surrendering the American markets to the British manufacturers, and the interests of the American fishermen to the British provinces.

The New York Times, British-free-trade-Cleveland organ, in its endeavor to show that the Maine deluge was not much of a shower says: "The lack of the potent element of 'local prestige' will not explain away the distressing shape in which the Maine returns come in." The republican party is not the one distressed by the shape in which the returns have come in, nor by the returns after they are in. The Times is "not an organ;" oh no.

The First Symptoms

Of all Lung diseases are much the same: feverishness, loss of appetite, sore throat, pains in the chest and back, headache, etc. In a few days you may be well, or, on the other hand, you may be down with Pneumonia or "galloping Consumption." Run no risks, but begin immediately to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Several years ago, James Birchard, of Darien, Conn., was severely ill. The doctors said he was in Consumption, and that they could do nothing for him, but advised him, as a last resort, to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking this medicine, two or three months, he was pronounced a well man. His health remains good to the present day.

J. S. Bradley, Malden, Mass., writes: "Three winters ago I took a severe cold, which rapidly developed into Bronchitis and Consumption. I was so weak that I could not sit up, was much emaciated, and coughed incessantly. I consulted several doctors, but they were powerless, and all agreed that I was in Consumption. At last, a friend brought me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. From the first dose, I found relief. Two bottles cured me, and my health has since been perfect."

Hotter the Weather Bigger the Proof.

As the weather grows warm, the sale of James Pyle's Pearline Washing Compound rapidly increases. This proves that many women recognize the fact that PEARLINE makes washing and cleaning very much easier than when done with the ordinary means. Proves also that summer clothing, being of delicate texture and color, will not stand the rough usage necessary when washed with soap, and establishes the fact that PEARLINE, in doing away with the rubbing, lessens the wear and tear and fills a very important place. Delightful for bathing in fresh or salt water. Its ingredients render it harmless to the most delicate skin. Especially during the hot weather it is to your advantage to use PEARLINE, and only humane to supply your servants with it, and thus lighten their labors; besides you insure much better results. Beware of imitations. JAMES PYLE, New York.

WILL ONLY ALLOW PAYMENT FOR FIVE DAYS.

United States Marshal Barker has been directed by Attorney General Garland to inform United States Chief Supervisor Hackett that the payment by the department of justice to supervisors of election will be limited to five days as the maximum for services rendered in connection with the congressional election on November 6th.

As the payment will be by the treasury department, and the United States laws provide as to the duties of supervisors, and as these officers are seldom appointed in New Hampshire, it is quite probable that the caution of the attorney general may be unnecessary. The country had to pay such large sums for the fees of counsel in the Pan-Electric case, that all the funds for payment of United States clerks, marshals, commissioners and supervisors were taken and used (when Congress declined to appropriate for this unauthorized service,) and consequently there is need of economy in protecting the elective franchise.

MUSIC HALL.

The latest and strongest musical farce-comedy, "3 Blind Mice," will make its first appearance before a Portsmouth audience at Music hall on Friday evening, Sept. 14th. The cast includes the following well known favorites: Billy Rice, America's favorite negro comedian; Frank Howard, author of "Only a Pansy Blossom," "When the Robins Nest Again," and other popular songs; Dick Gorman, character actor, comedian and dancer; Burt Shepard, a phenomenal male soprano, and burlesque artist; J. W. Mayers, a baritone singer of wonderful execution and purity of tone; Ed Heffernan, the talented Irish comedian; Miss Sally Cohen, the vivacious and beautiful soubrette; Miss Ada Jones, a singer of rare ability; Miss Florence Kellogg, New York's favorite ballad singer; and a number of other equally clever people. When such people are associated together in a cast, the performance cannot but be full of both fun and good music; and lovers of good, wholesome, clean fun and fine singing should not fail to witness this first production here of "3 Blind Mice."

SPECIAL NOTICE.

The undersigned would inform his friends and the public that his place of business will be closed for a short time in order to make alterations and improvements. JOHN S. RAND,

'MOST EVERYBODY PLEASED.

It is not often that an election gives equal satisfaction to both political parties, but that seems to be the case with the Maine election, so far as we can judge from the bearing of many of the old-line democrats in this city. The most earnest republicans were less enthusiastic, Monday night and Tuesday, over the "rebuke to the administration" administered by Maine, than were a large proportion of the Portsmouth democracy.

POLICE COURT—BATCHELDER J.

TUESDAY, Sept. 11th.

Saulsbury Kimball and Charles Bartlett, for drunkenness, were each assessed $9.90, fine and costs, and both ordered to Brentwood in default of payment.

BASE BALL.

The Portsmouth club were to have played two postponed games at Lowell on the 10th inst., with the Lowell club, but did not appear, and Umpire Mahoney gave both games to Lowell, nine to nothing. This gave Lowell the New England League championship, which would probably have been won by Lowell anyway. The Worcester club, which had a postponed game to play with Lowell on Tuesday, refused to appear, their chance to secure the pennant having been destroyed by Portsmouth's present of two games to Lowell. All the clubs have disbanded.

PERSONAL.

Masters A. C. Preble and Ralph Preble, of Chicago, nephews of Mrs. John S. Treat, who have been visiting here for two months past, left for their home on Monday, Sept. 10th.

Mr. William P. Tanton, who has been passing his summer vacation at his home in this city, leaves this morning for Holderness, this state, to resume his studies at the school in that town.

Mr. John Rindge of Cambridge, Mass., who had many acquaintances, and relatives by marriage, in this city, died at his summer home in Marblehead on the 10th inst.

Miss Lizzie Bentley, who has been passing the summer with the family of Lieut. Comdr. Charles W. Tracy, U. S. N., on Miller avenue, returned to her home in Honesville, Pa., on the 10th inst.

Mrs. Charles E. Peck, of Malden, Mass., is visiting the family of Mr. Amos Pearson, of Broad street.

Mrs. Thomas Bachelder of North Hampton has purchased the Reese house, on Lincoln avenue.

Miss Hattie Garvin, formerly assistant matron of Faith Home, is on a three weeks trip to the White mountains.

Mr. Amos S. Foster of Malden, Mass., and his son, Willis B. Foster of Boston, both formerly of this city, are this week visiting friends in Portsmouth.

Mr. A. C. Hoyt and wife, of Northwest street, are visiting friends in Boston.

Timothy Dame, Esq., republican and independent member-elect of the Maine legislature from Eliot, was in this city on Tuesday. Mr. Dame is a persistent worker, and the compliment given him of a big run ahead of his party ticket on Monday was well merited.

It is reported that the president of the Kittery democratic club has lost his umbrella, and it is Noyes-ed about that he bet it on the result of the Maine election.

Our State street neighbor, the Times, calls the result of the Maine election "Just about a draw game." There will be just about such draw games in every northern state, and several of the southern states, on the 6th of November.

Boring for water commenced on the Dow farm at Rye, now owned by Prof. Parsons of Philadelphia, on Monday, and on Tuesday the hole was down about twelve feet in the solid rock; it is intended to go down 200 feet or more, unless so abundant a supply of good water should be previously struck as to render it needless. The frame of Prof. Parsons' summer cottage is up, and gives an indication of what the "cottage" is to be; the timbers of the frame, which is 100 feet long, are heavy enough for a warehouse, and the work put in is of the very best quality. When this cottage is finished, which is to be in time for occupancy next season, it will far surpass anything of the kind on the coast.

"Just about a draw game," cheerfully remarks our lively State street contemporary, the Times, of the Maine election. "Go to thunder with your old dugout," remarked the hard case of long ago to Capt. Noah, "it's nothing but a shower anyhow."

J. Ingersoll Bowditch and family, who have been at the Appledore house since the middle of June, are to be taken direct to Boston by the steamer Oceanic on Friday, the 14th inst.; and the landing stage will be towed in on the 15th, and the house closed for this year. Mr. John M. Collins of Philadelphia is to erect a fine cottage on Appledore island, east of the Warder cottage on the hill, to be completed this fall. The frame of Mrs. Richter's cottage is up, and the building will be completed in October.

The wooden sidewalk on Miller avenue is not to be relaid with gravel, as was proposed by the city fathers; wood was being put down again on Tuesday.

The U. S. S. Kearsarge was moved from the mast-shed wharf to the sheers wharf at the navy yard on Monday, and had her guns put on board Tuesday.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY POINT, ME., Sept. 11th.

Miss Carrie E. Dulin is very sick with congestion of the brain.

The Oceanic house, Star island, closed last Friday. Mr. O. L. Frisbee, the proprietor, arrived here last Monday afternoon.

There were about thirty sail of vessels in the harbor Saturday, riding out the storm; a large steam yacht came into the cove in the afternoon, and left again Sunday morning.

A small party of young folks "went over the river" last Sunday to visit the Christian church at Newcastle, and heard an excellent sermon by Rev. J. H. Mugridge, from St. Luke 15:7.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Phillips came home last Monday after a pleasant vacation.

Monday was a very busy day here; the road was full of teams all day, going and coming from the election at Kittery Foreside.

The Hotel Pepperrell will keep open until October 1st; there are about thirty guests there now.

There are about twenty-five guests at the Hotel Park Field, who will remain for an indefinite period of time; gossip says that the hotel will be kept open all winter,—as we wish it might.

Mr. Clark of the Goodwin farm, Gerrish's island, is having a large addition put on the barn. Capt. Thos. Clarkson is bringing the material for the same from Portsmouth in his lighter.

Manning P. Tobey, pastor of the Baptist church in Waterville, N. H., is here on a short visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bryant have gone to the Oceanic hotel, Star island, to stop nine months.

Mrs. Sarah Flagg and daughter, of Newton, Mass., have returned home after a short visit here.

Mr. Jacob Fletcher and Mr. Orville Fletcher are home from the Oceanic hotel, where they have been at work this season.

There were two light coal barges off the harbor Tuesday, waiting for a towboat to take them to Philadelphia.

Miss Jessie L. Bond came home from the Pocahontas hotel on Tuesday.

UNCLE MOSES.

KITTERY POINT, ME., Sept. 10th.

Mr. William Brooks will soon move into the Gerrish house, near Fort McClary. The house is being fitted up in first class style.

The heavy frosts of last Wednesday and Thursday nights made the cucumber vines look sick on Friday.

There were two republican speakers at the Park Field house on Saturday evening, and in spite of the rain the hall was crowded with interested listeners. And didn't the Point give a good account of herself at the polls on Monday? A full share of the splendid republican gain of Kittery is to be credited to the Point.

JAMBO.

HAMPTON JOTTINGS.

HAMPTON, Sept. 10th.

A new Harrison & Morton flag was flung to the breeze last Thursday evening on the Beach road, near Mr. Alfred Leavitt's; a large crowd gathered, the music by the Rye band was fine, the residences in that locality were illuminated, and all passed off well. The temperature demanded winter clothing, and many people left early in the evening. There are three large flags flying in town, owned by the republicans.

The death of Miss Hattie Cole caused much sadness among her friends. The episode of thirteen at the table occurred when her friends gave her a surprise party early in the season; when refreshments were served there were two tables full, she being the last one to sit down, making the thirteen at one table.

A large number leave the Union house to-day; quite a number of boarders will remain in town this month.

The democratic party have two new poles ready for setting at the west of the railroad crossing.

The frost of last week did much damage to vegetation, especially to flower gardens.

Rev. J. A. Ross takes a vacation until Oct. 9th; his labors the past season have been wearing, and he needs rest.

New cases of typhoid fever are reported in town; some are very ill. —.

DARTMOUTH ITEMS.

HANOVER, Sept. 10th.

Dartmouth receives the lion's share of students for the class of '92 this fall, there being sixty-five in the Academic department and twenty-four in the Chandler Scientific; an unusually large number for the latter institution.

Professor Parker, who has been travelling in England and on the continent of Europe for the past year, has returned to his professional duties in college; he is welcomed back by all the students.

An exceptionally large number of students are attending the lecture course at the Medical college this term. The course is said to one of the best and most efficient in the country.

The present Junior class suffers a loss of ten men this year, making a total of thirteen or fourteen since Freshmen year, a very unfortunate reduction of the class.

The new hotel, which was to be placed on the site of the old one, and now in process of construction, is destined to be not only a great convenience to the town of Hanover and the public at large, but an ornament to the college campus and its surroundings. B.

Gen. William Terry of Wythesville, Va., a noted officer of the Stonewall brigade during the war and an ex-member of congress, was drowned while attempting to ford a river near his home recently.

The Marquis of Salisbury has presented his second son with the family living of Hatfield, worth $10,000 a year. The young man was not able to make a living for himself.

Twelve hundred spinners at Bolton, England, have struck against the introduction of a new system of weighing cotton.

By the overflow of the Congaree, Broad and Saluda rivers in South Carolina last week, the cotton crop was damaged to the estimated amount of $1,000,000.

Trouble with the Crow and Sioux Indians in Montana is reported, and troops are moving.

Dr. Harriet Jones has charge of the female department of the insane asylum at Weston, West Virginia.

Mrs. E. L. Knowles, of Montana, who is studying law, has been appointed notary public—the only woman in the territory holding that office.

There are those who doubt the expediency of allowing females to vote, but very few who question the justice of it.—Elkin B. Hayes.

An October Excursion to Southern California.

October is a delightful month in which to cross the continent, and persons who contemplate passing the winter in California will find it a favorable time for the outward journey. To meet the wishes of many who wish to go to Southern California direct with no further delays [by the way than may be consistent with perfect comfort, Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb have arranged a trip, with Monday, October 8th, as the date of leaving Boston. This is in addition to a tour by the Northern Pacific railroad, which includes also visits to all the interesting points in the Pacific Northwest before California is reached. There are five routes returning, and the tickets will be good through the winter, spring and early summer. The excursion will be carried out in the same careful manner that has made the winter trips so popular in seasons past, and they will cover all the advantages of side trips, hotel accommodations, routes, etc. In addition to this trip, there will be the excursion to the Pacific Northwest, already alluded to, and another to Colorado, both having October 8th as the departure, and a series of tours among the leading eastern resorts during this and next month. W. Raymond, 296 Washington street, opposite School street, Boston, Mass., will be pleased to furnish descriptive circulars.

Mr. Blaine will go to New York the last of this month, and will make several speeches in that state before leaving for Michigan to go on the stump there.

The Young Ladies' Harrison Glee club of Indianapolis, Ind., has thirty-eight members.

OH! MY HEAD.

The pain from Neuralgia and its companion disease, Rheumatism is excruciating. Thousands who could be quickly cured are needlessly suffering. Ath-lo-pho-ros will do for others what it did for the following parties:

Williamsport, Ind., Oct. 3, 1887.

Having been afflicted with neuralgia for the past four years, and having tried everything, but in vain, I finally heard of Athlophoros. After taking your remedy I found it to be helping me, and after taking four bottles of Athlophoros and one of Pills, I found that I was entirely well. I think the medicine is positively a sure cure.

CLARENCE H. REDNICK.

Mt. Carmel, Ill., Dec. 26, 1887.

I have used Athlophoros in my family and find it to be the greatest medicine for neuralgia in existence and having had its large features upon my face removed by Dr. Barnes I know whereof I speak. MRS. JULIA CHILTON.

WHAT IS SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

Beware of Imitations.

THIS PAPER is on file in Philadelphia at the Newspaper Advertising Agency of Messrs. N. W. AYER & SON, our authorized agents.

When our manufactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C. Calhoun.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

When we consider the patronage of this great office, [the presidency,] the allurements of power, the temptation to retain place once gained, and more than all, the availability a party finds in an incumbent whom a horde of office holders, with a zeal born of benefits and fostered by the hope of favors yet to come, stand ready to aid with money and trained political service, we recognize in the eligibility of the president for re-election a most serious danger to that calm, deliberate and intelligent political action, which must characterize a government by the people.—Grover Cleveland.

To Whom and Where it Went Lately.

It was Tuesday, August 7th, 1888, always Tuesday, the 219th Grand Monthly Drawing of The Louisiana State Lottery occurred under the sole management of Gen'ls G. T. Beauregard of La., and Jubal A. Early of Va. The prizes ranged from $100 to $300,000, and were distributed from Maine to Texas and California to Alaska. You want to know to whom and where. No. 3,894 drew the First Capital Prize of $300,000. It was sold in fractions of twentieths at $1 each, sent to M. A. Dauphin, New Orleans, La. The was held by Mrs. Mary L. Callender, New York city; one by Chas. Wiess, Altoona, Pa.; one by a depositor, through Wells, Fargo & Co., San Francisco, Cal.; one by Joseph Fishbough, 129 First St., Elizabeth, N. J.; one by Amos Marsh, Bell St., Orange, N. J.; one by Peter Klein, 90 E. Kinsey St., Chicago, Ill.; one by Vasilio Grisanoff, Front St., near Jackson St. Ferry, Gretna, La.; one by Ellis Richardson, Fort Worth, Tex.; one by E. J. Plant, Rowland, Ky., through Citizen's Nat'l Bank of Louisville, Ky.; one by J. Rivard, Brownsville, Dak.; one by Aug. Haridegg, Columbus, O.; the rest were class where. Ticket No. 31,809 drew Second Prize of $100,000, also sold in fractional parts: One went to a party at Oxford, Miss.; collected through Bickham & Moore, 319 Gravier St., New Orleans, La.; one to S. Goldfarb, 192 Division St., New York city; one to Alonzo Edwards, Ithaca, N. Y.; one to Stewart & Bradway, Bridgeport, Ind.; one to a depositor, through Wells, Fargo & Co., San Francisco, Cal.; one to J. Spiro, Michigan City, Ind.; one to J. M. Woolridge, Gallitan, Mo.; one to O. G. Spangler, St. John the Baptist, La.; Bonne Carre F. O.; the other portions were held by parties whose names are withheld. Ticket No. 53,383 drew Third Prize of $50,000—it was sold also in twentieths: Two each went to Nat'l Bank of Commerce, Kansas City, Mo., and J. Belcambul, New York city; one to Henry Hillenbrand, New York city; one to Hugh Leddy, New York city; one to a depositor, through Louisiana Nat'l Bank, New Orleans, La.; one to Merchants Bank of Atlanta, Ga. Ticket No. 84,269 drew Fourth Prize of $5,000, one half went to H. McManus, Omaha, Neb., etc., etc. Any information desired can be had on application to M. A. Dauphin, New Orleans, La. The whole affair will go over on Tuesday, Oct. 9th, 1888. Take note of date.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for coughs and colds does, is decidedly wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. 1ow13

Men and Women's Bones,

Joints and muscles may escape the agonizing tortures of rheumatism if they will but "take time by the forelock," and annihilate the symptoms of oncoming trouble with the benignant and highly sanctioned blood depurent and alternative, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Poisons mostly constitute the ordinary means of battling with this atrocious complaint. Avoid the risk of using these by resorting to the safe as well as effectual antiphlogistic and preventive. After exposures to damp, through drafts and other causes which encourage a rheumatic tendency, a wineglassful of the Bitters prevents ill effects. No surer preventive of malarial ailments like fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake exists, and it is, besides, a most genial recuperator of strength exhausted by excessive mental or physical effort. Miners, mariners, operatives and others whose avocations involve laborious work in rough weather out of doors, or close application indoors, find it invaluable.

Didn't Want a Girl.

Last summer my wife's health was all run down, and she wanted me to hire a girl to the work. In a little while I found one I thought would suit her, when to my surprise she said I need not hire any one, as she felt much better, and thought another bottle of Sulpher Bitters would cure her. Grover Cleveland has done more to advance the cause of free trade than any Prime Minister of England has done.—London Spectator.

We know of no mode of treatment which offers, to sufferers from chronic diseases, a more certain hope of cure than that which is comprehended in the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. For purifying and invigorating the blood, this preparation is unequaled.

The only time England can use a Celt is when he emigrates to America, and votes for free trade. — London Times.

Our manufactures require the systematic and fostering care of the government. * * Equally important it is to provide at home a market for our raw materials.—James Monroe.

Hay Fever.

I have been afflicted with hay fever from early in August until frost. My eyes would run a stream of water and I sneezed continually. I was advised to use Ely's Cream Balm. It has worked like a charm and I can say I am entirely cured.—Mrs. Emeline Johnson, Chester, Conn.

I have been for several years a sufferer from hay fever and severe head colds. I have found nothing that can compare with Ely's Cream Balm. I would not be without it for any consideration. It is simply wonderful in its effect upon the nasal organs.—S. A. Burtt, Wilmington, N. C.

President Cleveland declines cautiously to dub himself a free trader, but he caters up a free trade position without disguise —London Saturday Review.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

It is certain that the arguments which President Cleveland urges are those which Cobden used to employ forty-five years ago, and which any free trader could employ now.—London Times.

Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

CURIOUS NERVOUS DISORDERS.

An Interesting Class of Affections—Strange Contagious Manias

A curious incident is reported from Wilkesbarre, Pa. One of the young women employed in a silk mill at that place was seized with an epileptic fit. The other girls crowded round her, alarmed and excited. "Suddenly," says the account, "one of them gave a wild shriek and fell over in violent hysterics. The excitement increased, and in a minute or so another young woman was seized with hysteria. The girls were now almost wild with nervous excitement, and one after another were seized with hysteric convulsions." Eighteen of them were affected in this strange way, and they all had to be sent home after medical aid had been summoned. The case belongs to a by no means uncommon but very interesting class of nervous affections. Neuro mimesis, or nervous mimicry, has been at the base of a great number of puzzling outbreaks, many of which were at the time of their occurrence attributed to supernatural causes.

In the Fifteenth century a nun in a German convent suddenly began to mew like a cat. In a short time the infection had spread until all the other nuns were mewing in rivalry with her. The mewing epidemic was carried to other convents, and for a time the religious authorities were in consternation. In the same century a strange biting mania developed in a convent, and soon all the nuns were biting one another and all who approached them. This outbreak was cured by terrorism. A regiment of soldiers was drawn up in the court of the convent and the biting nuns were informed that if they did not come to their senses they would be flogged with rods by the troops. The fear of this punishment had the desired effect. With other epidemics of the same general character, however, all remedies failed. Of these was the so called dancing mania, when tens of thousands of people went leaping, dancing and singing through the streets in procession, abandoning business, domestic duties, everything, to indulge in this singular eccentricity.

The history of the Flagellants, who walked in procession, each rank flogging the one in front and being flogged by the one behind, is of the same order. This epidemic spread until it had covered all Germany and Italy and had invaded France. Both the dancing and the Flagellant manias affected children as well as grown people. Numbers of the victims perished miserably, for processions were arranged to traverse the country, and this they did, wandering about without any commissariat, trusting to charity, until the nuisance grew so formidable that cities closed their gates against the pilgrims and drove them into the waste, where thousands died of exposure and privation.

Hecker, the historian of the epidemics of the middle ages, had a curious theory to account for them. They occurred in the period of the Black Death, when pestilence stalked over Europe and swept away millions. Hecker held that the plague was caused by certain changes in the earth's magnetism, and to support this he cited many reports of strange atmospheric phenomena, foul odors arising from the ocean and saturating whole continents, and other indications of abnormality in the telluric conditions. Hecker's hypothesis has not been accepted by modern science, but his facts are trustworthy. The extensive epidemics of nervous mimicry which he chronicles have certainly not been paralleled since the middle ages, and perhaps we should look for the explanation of this to the magnitude of the advance in the standards of living and in the average of health. The most striking recent instance of nervous mimicry is the case of the Convulsionnaires of St. Madard, many of whom were unquestionably cataleptics. With the spread of education and a better regimen of diet the tendency to nervous epidemics has plainly diminished. It is, however, by no means outgrowing, as the Wilkesbarre episode, cited at the beginning of this article, shows, and as was proved by the occurrence of a similar outbreak among the girls in a Brooklyn factory not long ago. Today these strange affections are recognized as neurotic, but the precise mode of their dissemination is still an unsolved problem.—New York Tribune.

How to Learn a Language.

The Volapuk craze seems to have run its course and died, and everybody has made up his mind that we have not yet got the world language. If people only knew how easy it is to learn French or German or Italian there would be less of these foolish attempts to force an unknown tongue upon the world. To get along as well as there is any necessity in a foreign country you do not need more than 1,000 or 1,500 words. Think how easy it is to get these words in your memory. That means less than the number of words in an average newspaper column, and it is really the fact that you can get enough of French, say, to get along with as easily as you can memorize a column in the daily newspaper. It is so with German and with Italian. You get the grammatical construction and then all you have to do is to make yourself a vocabulary.

The trouble is that people imagine learning a strange tongue is so hard that they will not attempt it in a common sense way, but they shrink from the difficulties which only exist in their own imaginations. Cardinal Mezzofanti could take a grammar and a dictionary of a strange language and hear a confession from it in three days. I hold that the average man can do partly as well as that, anyhow, if he applies himself in the right way. There is no reason why every educated man should not be equipped with at least three modern languages, and six months of his spare time—of the hours wasted on novels and trifles—would do the work.—C. H. De Ligne in Chicago News.

French Custom at Baptisms.

A modern French custom at baptisms is that of presenting all the guests with a donation of sugar almonds in a bonbonniere, which has the appearance of a roll of parchment. On this roll are inscribed the names of the child, of the parents, god parents, the date of the birth and christening, and the name of the church where the ceremony was performed.—Chicago Herald.

A Change in Facial Type.

Frederick Barnard, the illustrator, surprised me a little the other day when he said: "You Americans are not a bit like the English in your appearance. In the course of a century or so you've changed from the English type altogether. The voices of your women have grown loud and shrill and the men have got darker faces and keener eyes. I've got so now that I can tell the New Yorker pretty well by his eyes wherever I find him. They are sharp eyes and are set near together, as though their owner had brought them close to his nose by poking that organ into very narrow places where it was necessary to see at the same time. You look like a lot of ferrets. Then the eyebrows, instead of going right straight across the face, slope downward at the outer edge and come rather close together above the nose. That not only makes you look shrewd, but it makes you look bored and tired and dragged out, as I suspect most of you are. A great many of you look like actors. Boston people look somewhat different from New Yorkers, as they ought to, for they live in a more Christian town than this. Your eternal jumping and rushing in this city make me tired, as the boys say."

This change in facial type must have struck all who have studied old portraits and given any thought to the matter. The revolutionary fathers were not the haggard, lean featured men who tear up and down Wall street and Broadway; they had stability of person, large clear eyes and rosy jowls, looked as if they ate and slept enough and had not invented malaria. They had that calm of good health and ostrich digestion that makes the English admirable to the eyes of the pining dude, who, although he can't quite imitate their appearance, can wear their quizzing glasses, pot hats and checks. As modes of life change there is no doubt that people make some facial conformity to them.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Brief Chapter on Relishes.

The relishes are of two classes. First, those which depend mainly on one or more piquant substances, such as pepper, mustard, ginger, horseradish, vinegar, cinnamon and the various spices. These are combined with some one or more—generally with several—of the following vegetables as a base: tomatoes, usually green; onions, cabbage, cucumbers, pears, peaches, currants, berries, grapes.

Secondly, those which depend mainly on sugar, combined with the juices of various fruits, or with the pulp, as in the case of marmalade.

Now the question arises, are these and similar relishes conducive to health?

A normal, vigorous appetite needs no such aid. It is sufficient of itself. The lower animals need nothing of the kind. The cow's green grass, the horse's dry hay, and the dog's bone with a little meat on it, are doubtless eaten with a relish that our pampered stomachs know little of.

Unfortunately, all people have not high health. Some are in a feeble condition, with little or no appetite, and yet their recovery depends mainly on the food they take. In such cases some simple relish is not merely greatly desirable, it is necessary.

Many persons, in this driving age, come to their meals with little appetite. A sensible appetite quickens and increases the gastric secretions. In such cases, therefore, some piquant relish is really helpful. Probably even the strongest is not injurious, if used with moderation; but relishes are greatly pernicious if used to encourage overeating, or to cause one to eat when the stomach is already exhausted from previous repletion.—Youth's Companion.

A Land of Cigarettes.

I have not yet seen a single cigar except my own. All smoke cigarettes. The result is, I am forced when talking to any one to avoid his breath as much as possible. The smoke from the cigarette is inhaled and makes the lungs fetid and must injure health. May not this to some extent increase the dread disease consumption, which I am told is rather common in this land? At the hotels meals are served in the rooms with no addition to the cost, and judging from the tea trays being carried along the corridors of this hotel I would think that all of its large population take their morning meals and late suppers in the private rooms. Indeed, the manager, to whom I complained that I could not find anything ready in the restaurant until nearly 9, informed me he would rather I would take the early meal in my room, and that it could be had as early as 7. The people here are very late risers. Twilight lasts till nearly 10. The people retire very late and shops are all closed till after 9 in the morning.

To nibble at something seems to be a human characteristic; every country has its particular nibble. In America the boys eat peanuts and the girls chew gum. In Japan they eat a small seed, I now forget what. In China and India they chew sugarcane. In Siam, Burmah and southern India and Ceylon, betel nuts. In Egypt and Turkey, pumpkin seeds. In Greece, watermelon seeds. Here every one cracks sunflower seed. In the street cars, at the gardens, and along the streets people are seen eating this seed, and at every corner women and boys are selling them.—Carter Harrison's Moscow Letter in Chicago Mail.

The Beggars of Russia.

An illustration of the results of indiscriminate charity is furnished by facts reported from Russia. It seems that whole villages have resolved themselves into orders of mendicants. They stay at home until they have reaped their harvests, and then all start out on a begging tour. They are divided systematically into guides of ten to twenty persons each. These scatter here and there, begging through the towns, and gather at stated intervals to divide their gains and consult further operations. The women take along their children to excite pity, and the old draw attention to their decrepitude. The cash returns are said to be exceedingly large, and from the bread gathered they not only feed themselves, but fatten their horses. In this manner several months of each year are spent. The moral results of this sort of life are, of course, lamentable. Every trace of self respect goes, and a degeneracy of sentiment is created that obliterates character, ambition and honor. This is true of all mendicancy, under all circumstances.—Globe-Democrat.

BILIOUSNESS.

THIS very common complaint, which is caused by a dormant or inactive liver, can be cured in a short time by using Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, as can also the various diseases arising from inactive liver or kidneys. These organs, if inactive, will allow impure blood to enter the heart, causing tightness about that organ and palpitation.

She suffered thirty years.

MRS. DUDLEY CHANDLER, of Melrose, Mass., says: "I had suffered with Palpitation of the Heart more than thirty years before I found anything to give me essential relief. Last fall I tried Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, and, remarkable as it was, this Compound relieved me in two days, so that for several months afterwards I felt not the slightest touch of it, and am perfectly free from it now. Sometimes, before I took this Compound, the pulsations of my heart were so violent as to shake my whole body with rapid agitations, and at times I fainted and became entirely insensible. Now I am perfectly free from all this suffering. Consequently I can most sincerely and earnestly recommend this Compound to all like sufferers, as pre-eminently the best medicine I ever knew for Palpitation of the Heart."

Ingalls' Mandrake Compound is sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles for $5. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

TRADE S.S.S. FOR THE BLOOD MARK

An Important Announcement

About six weeks ago, while at business, I was suddenly attacked with excruciating pains in my feet, knees and hands. So severe the attack that I took my bed immediately, and in two or three days my joints were swollen to almost double their natural size, and sleep was driven from me. After suffering the most excruciating pain for a week, using liniments and various other remedies, a friend who sympathized with my helpless condition, said to me:

"Why don't you get Swift's Specific and use it. I will guarantee a cure, and if it does not the medicine shall cost you nothing."

I at once secured the S. S. S., and after using it the first day, had a quiet night and refreshing sleep. In a week I felt greatly benefitted. In three weeks I could sit up and walk about the room, and after using six bottles I was out and able to go to business. Since then I have been regularly at my post of duty, and stand on my feet from nine to ten hours a day, and am entirely free from pain. These are the plain and simple facts in my case, and I will cheerfully answer all inquiries relative thereto, either in person or by mail. THOMAS MARKLIE,

NASHVILLE, TENN.—I have warded off a severe attack of rheumatism by a timely resort to Swift's Specific. LADY LAKE, SUMTER CO., FLA.—Your S. S. S. has proved a wonderful success in my case. The cancer on my face, no doubt, would have soon hurried me to my grave. I do think it is wonderful, and has no equal. B. H. BYRD, Postmaster.

Gen. Harrison's Letter.

The letter of Gen. Benjamin Harrison, accepting the republican nomination to the presidency of the United States, to which he will be triumphantly elected on the 6th of November by the voters who believe that the interests of the American people rather than those of the British manufacturers should be guarded by the citizens of the United States, was made public on the 11th inst., one day after the publication of President Cleveland's alleged "states-manlike paper."

The contrast between the two letters is a fair indication of the difference between the two men. Gen. Harrison, recognizing the fact that the issue of the campaign is Free Trade vs. Protection to American Labor, announces himself in unmistakable terms as a protectionist; in marked contrast to Cleveland, whose letter shows that he, not long ago an avowed anti-protectionist, is afraid to squarely meet the issue herald ed by his free trade message, and which is represented by the Mills bill. Cleveland sees his blunder, and tries to hedge; Harrison is in consonance with the national republican platform, and has no apologies to make for it or for himself.

The American workingmen, and not the British manufacturers, will elect the next president of the United States, and his name will be Harrison, not Cleveland.

Cleveland's Latest Effort.

Mr. Cleveland has apparently laid aside the cyclopedia and taken up a work on political economy for his study. The mistake of the president seems to be in his underestimate of the intelligence of the people of this country. He gravely utters a platitude as if he was giving us a new idea. "Unnecessary taxation is unjust taxation," writes the president, as if any school boy in the land who had heard of taxation was not as aware of this principle. Many things which are unnecessary are unjust. For example, unnecessary prevarication is unjust prevarication, as for instance, when the president deliberately writes, after months of study, such munchausenisms concerning his "regard and care for our surviving soldiers and sailors;" declares for "guaranteeing to our colored citizens all their rights of citizenship;" for "a firm and steadfast adherence to the principles of civil service reform," and says that he and his brigadiers "have entered upon no crusade for free trade." Can the man be stultifying himself, or is his egotism so stupendous that he believes in ignoring facts as patent as light?

What are intelligent persons to conclude, but that the president has no conception of the extent of the knowledge of the people he endeavors to deceive? The letter was intended to be money-sided; to satify free traders and not alarm the friends of protection in his own party. In short, it is all things to all men, a mere bid for votes, displaying that woeful lack of statesmanship for which G. C. is noted.

How a Briton Regards it.

The London (Eng.) Chronicle of Sept. 10th, in a review of Mr. Cleveland's so-called letter of acceptance, says:

The exclusion of the fisheries question from the letter of acceptance of President Cleveland is strong testimony as to the purely factious character of the rejection of the treaty. It is utterly impossible to doubt that the re-election of President Cleveland would mean the eventual revival and ratification of the treaty. It is immaterial to discuss what President Cleveland's crusade should be called. He may give it any name he likes as long as we know it is in fact a crusade of free trade.

A New Cobb Story.

BOSTON, Sept. 12.—Another treat for story readers is announced by the Boston Globe. A new story by Sylvanus Cobb, Jr., the last ever written by that famous author, whose "Gunmaker of Moscow" was read all over the world, will begin in the Boston Daily Globe next Saturday.

The title of this story is "The Smuggler of King's Cove; or, the Old Chapel Mystery."

It is a splendid romance of love and day, in order not to miss the first instalment.

Frank Moihart, a mason working on a new building in Nashua, fell three stories, Sept. 11th, and was fatally injured.

The democratic convention of the first congressional district met in Dover on the 11th inst., and renominated Luther F. McKinney.

The republicans of the second councillor district have nominated Col. Edwin G. Sherburne of Gilmanton as their candidate.

The democratic state committee organized on the 11th inst. by the choice of Charles F. Stone of Lancaster as chairman, and James R. Jackson of Littleton as secretary. Frank Jones and Charles A. Sinclair were chosen as the Rockingham county members of the executive committee.

News and Notes.

The republican state convention of Massachusetts on the 12th inst. nominated Gov. Ames and Lieut. Gov. Beckett.

The returns on the constitutional amendments in Maine are coming in slowly. The amendment for annual sessions is probably defeated by a large majority, while that in regard to the state treasurer is without doubt carried.

The action of the Dominion government has been called to the illegal action of an American engaged in towing vessels and rafts between Grand Manan and Eastport, Maine. It is understood that instructions have been issued for her seizure if the practice is not at once terminated.

Permission has been given by the Dominion minister of marine to enable the American fishing vessel Gifford to sell her cargo of fresh halibut at Halifax, she having put into that port for repairs. The privilege was granted with the distinct understanding that it was not to be accepted as a precedent, but as a concession of hospitality.

Fishing schooner Charlie Pownell, of Providence, Capt. Robert McIntosh, has been condemned as in a sinking condition off Cape Sable. The crew set the vessel on fire before leaving her.

Several earthquakes have occurred at Missolonghi, Greece. The direction of the disturbances was toward the northwest. The damage done by the shocks at Vostitza amounts to £80,000. Large quantities of bread have been sent from Athens to relieve the distress among the people at Vostitza, all the ovens there having been shaken.

The decomposing body of a man was found Sept. 11th, in a room at the Hoffman house, New York. He was registered as Lawrence Hewlett of London, England. He is supposed to have committed suicide Sunday night, the 11th, with poison. He had three trunks and two valises filled with expensive clothing, but only four cents in money.

A terrible burning in Cuba is reported, a number of plantations being destroyed, thousands of cattle drowned, and many human lives lost; 147 dead bodies have been recovered at the date of the despatch.

Mrs. MacGahan, widow of the famous correspondent whose account of the Bulgarian atrocities had a large share in the work of changing the map of southeastern Europe, has been summering at Orris island, on the coast of Maine. Mrs. MacGahan is a Russian, and at the time of her marriage could speak no English. As her husband could not speak the Russian language they used to converse in French altogether. She now talks to her little boy of thirteen one week in Russian and the next in French. She is the American correspondent of two St. Petersburg papers, and is engaged upon a novel of Russian life, which she is writing in English.

Mr. Edward Brown of Newington, who fell from a load of barley, has vested at the Jones farm last week, has so far recovered as to be able to attend to farm work.

Mr. Timothy Kelley has left this city on a two weeks vacation to visit his brother, a well employed machinist at Taunton, Mass.

President Seward of the Maine Central railroad has issued an order announcing that his road has taken possession of the Portland & Ogdensburg, and directing heads of departments to report to General Manager Tucker of the Maine Central.

Among the republicans of Kittery employed in other places, who came home to help our free trade and fishery surrender under Cleveland plurality of 20,000, was Calvin L. Hayes, Esq., who arrived home on Saturday evening, the 8th inst., from Boston and remained long enough to vote and learn of the glorious victory.

Mr. Oscar L. Stimson and wife, of Lafayette, Ind., who have been to Kittery several weeks on a visit to Mr. Stimson's father, Mr. Melville Stimson, started on their return home on Wednesday, the 12th inst. Mr. Stimson is a stockholder of the Lafayette Car Works.

Mr. Mervin Spinney of Kittery, while trimming wood in York last week, was badly poisoned by white sumac, so that his face remains very much swollen.

Mr. Jefferson T. Lewis of North Kittery, a life-long democrat, and for many years past a recognized party leader in this section, announced at the polls in this town on Monday, the 10th inst., voting a Harrison and Morton ticket in such a position on his cost that it could be painted seen, and vote the straight republican ticket for town, county and state officers, and member of Congress. He also placed his team at the disposal of the republican committee, bringing old and infirm voters to the polls; and one of his sons, who on the 10th cast his first ballot, took more than it was the straight republican ticket at the head. Mr. Lewis is a man whose accession to the republican party is a positive gain, far beyond his individual vote.

The Biddeford Standard, office organ of the York county democracy, displayed a double-column cut with "Victory" in big letters over it. Waterboro fired a gun in honor of the Maine election. Wonderful of a snow would have made a few hundred democratic votes bear early in the state?

Chairman Eaton of the democratic national committee has issued a congratulation to Arthur Sewall, the Maine member of the committee, concerning the result of the recent election in Maine!

The Boston Herald lives in Maine, and this is what the paper says: "The returns would seem to indicate that it is the most important victory won by the republicans since the war. The result has surprised even the most sanguine republicans, for it was hardly looked for. The democrats are greatly disappointed, for they were not prepared to meet with such a crushing defeat."

HOOD'S COMPOUND EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA TRADE MARK

The importance of purifying the blood cannot be overestimated, for without pure blood you cannot enjoy good health.

At this season nearly every one needs a good medicine to purify, vitalize, and enrich the blood, and we ask you to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. It strengthens and builds up the system, creates an appetite, and tones the digestion, while it eradicates disease. The peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation of the vegetable remedies used give to Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar curative powers. No other medicine has such a record of wonderful cures. If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other instead. It is a Peculiar Medicine, and is worthy your confidence.

Peculiar To Itself

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTIONS.

The republican convention of Rockingham county was held at the town hall in Exeter at eleven o'clock in the forenoon on Wednesday, Sept. 12th, and the following-named gentlemen were put in nomination, to be elected in November:

Sheriff, George W. Tuttle of Epping;
Commissioner, Joseph A. Randall of Portsmouth, Moses B. Dow of Pittstown, Washington Colby of Londonderry;
Register of deeds, George W. Weston of Exeter;
Register of probate, John E. Simpson of South Newmarket;
Treasurer, Samuel A. Haley of Newmarket;
Solicitor, Fred R. Fetch of Dover.

The republican senatorial convention for Rockingham district, No. 21, was held at Exeter on the 12th inst., and E. G. Eastman nominated as the candidate of the party.

PATRIARCHS MILITANT.

To-day Canton Senter, No. 12, Patriarchs Militant, of this city, will entertain the cantons of Manchester, Suncook and Concord, and the officers of the regiment, the following being the programme of exercises:

From 8:30 A. M. to 9:30, concert in front of Odd Fellows hall by Moore's Military band, of Kennebunk, twenty-five pieces.

About 10:30, reception of visitors at railroad station by Canton Senter and Moore's band, and march through Deer, Market and Congress streets to Odd Fellows hall, where the visitors will be welcomed by Capt. Albert E. Rand of Canton Senter, and a collation served in the hall, the line then reforming as follows:

Platoon of Police.
Moore's Military Band.
Canton Senter, of Portsmouth.
Brig. Gen. H. A. Fr[illegible] and staff.
Col. L. S. Richardson and staff.
Second Reg't Brig., N. H. N. G.
Canton Ridgely, of Manchester.
Canton Wilson, of Concord.
Drum Corps.
Canton Gen. Sta[illegible], of Suncook.

Line of march, through Congress, Islington, Cabot, Middle, State, Pleasant and Daniel streets to the steamboat landing; and thence by steamers Mystic and Undine to Fort Constitution, where a clambake will be served. Returning in the afternoon, the cantons will march to Odd Fellows hall and partake of supper provided by Union Rebekah Degree Lodge, and will then be escorted to the railroad station, to take their special train for home.

MUSTERED OUT.

Mr. John R. Carpenter of Saco, Me., while coming from that place on the eleven o'clock train Wednesday forenoon, the 12th inst., had what was supposed to be a shock. He was brought to this city, and carried to the Cottage Hospital. Doctor Berry was called, and pronounced the man dead from heart disease. Mr. Carpenter was on his way to Kittery to attend the annual reunion of Co. G, 27th Maine regiment, to which he belonged. Deceased was forty-six years old, and leaves a wife and two daughters. The remains were taken charge of by Undertaker Fletcher, and sent to Saco in the afternoon.

BASE BALL.

This afternoon at three o'clock the Portsmouth base ball club will have a benefit on the South street grounds. The club will play against a very strong picked nine, aided by Willis and Kittredge as battery. This will be the last appearance of the club this season.

CONGRESSMAN REED'S BIG VOTE.

The Portland Advertiser says: The most remarkable feature of the election is the magnificent victory won by Mr. Reed in the first congressional district. It is now twelve years since Mr. Reed's first election by a plurality of 1092. Ten years ago, in 1878, he had a minority of the polls, but his opponents were divided, and the separation of 6,348 greenback votes united in 1880, and he escaped with a plurality of barely 117. In 1882 the congressmen were all elected on a general ticket. In 1884 Mr. Reed had a plurality of 925, in 1886 of 1158, and now he figures have gone up to 2700. Since he escaped the danger of his early congressional life, he has grown constantly stronger, not only in Washington but at home. The recognized leader of his party in the house, he is no less admired and trusted by his friends and neighbors in York and Cumberland. It is noticeable, however, that his gain is chiefly in York county. His plurality in Cumberland has gone up from 1200 to 1400; but in York it was only fourteen or two years ago, and is now 1300. This change is partly due to Mr. Reed's growing power, but partly also, one would say, to the unpopularity of his opponent. It is the concurrence of a weak one one side and weakness on the other, which alone can explain a plurality so unexpected and unprecedented.

YORK COUNTY'S VOTE.

The Dalys will appear at Music hall next Tuesday evening in "Vacation; or, Harvard vs. Yale."

SPECIAL NOTICE.

The undersigned would inform his friends and the public that his place of business will be closed for a short time in order to make alterations and improvements.
JOHN S. RAND,
No. 11 Market Street.

Dr. E. C. Briggell, the dentist, who has been on a vacation of two weeks in the White mountain region, for a greatly needed rest, arrived home on the evening of the 11th inst., and has resumed his professional duties.

The brick building on Market street, owned by John J. Pickering and occupied by John S. Rand and D. Falls Bowles as dry goods houses, is to have a new plate glass front put in. The upper two stories will be made of Pompadour pressed brick with granite trimmings, giving the block one of the finest looks on Market street.

The two buildings on the corner of High and Ladd streets, belonging to the Pierce estate, were sold on the 12th inst. by auction to J. R. Connell for $820, all bricks and one reserved, and the buildings to be removed within two weeks.

The republican club of Kittery have a meeting in Trafethen hall at the Foreside this (Thursday) evening; a prominent speaker is expected.

The Kittery free high school commenced its sessions on Tuesday of this week, in Armory hall; Frank E. Rowell principal, Miss Amanda A. Abrams assistant.

The schooner Lucy was in the lower harbor on the 12th inst., from the New York navy yard with powder, shot and

The First Symptoms

Run no risks, but begin immediately to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Several years ago, James Birchard, of Darien, Conn., was severely ill. The doctors said he was in Consumption, and that they could do nothing for him, but advised him, as a last resort, to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral." After taking this medicine, two or three months, he was pronounced a well man. His health remains good to the present day.

J. S. Bradley, Malden, Mass., writes: "Three winters ago I took a severe cold, which rapidly developed into Bronchitis and Consumption. I was so weak that I could not sit up, was much emaciated, and coughed incessantly. I consulted several doctors, but they were powerless, and all agreed that I was in Consumption. At last, a friend brought me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. From the first dose, I found relief. Two bottles cured me, and my health has since been perfect."

The republican caucus of Kittery are meeting in Trefethen hall, Kittery Foreside, for the present, but are looking for a hall for permanent headquarters, which will be conveniently fitted up, and have a telephone put in.

The steamers Clara Bateman, Ada, Knickerbocker, James Sampson and Valora, and Capt. Clarkson's yacht America, the latter loaded with finished lumber for Kittery Point, were all lying at the wharves between the Spring market and the Concord railroad wharf on Wednesday.

Langlois Brothers of Kittery have shipped from Canada to this city, since the first of July, about 2000 lambs, for all of which a ready market has been found in this immediate vicinity and at Dover.

The officers of the Kittery republican club are as follows: Jethro H. Sweet, president; Horace Mitchell, Jonathan Dunbar, John Wentworth, Perry C. Moore, Thomas J. Billings, vice presidents; Alonzo A. Hayes, secretary; Frank E. Rowell, corresponding secretary; Charles L. Favor, treasurer.

Mr. Moses Yeaton is building a coal shed forty by sixty feet on the ground, in the rear of No. 112 Market street, for E. F. Sise & Co.

There were about twenty-five young men called together a few evenings since at the south ward room for the purpose of effecting the organization of the Mercy Guards. They adjourned for the purpose of trying to get up some enthusiasm. The recent illness of the democratic candidate for vice president, Mr. Thurman, has somewhat dampened their ardor, however.

The veteran of Co. G, 27th Maine Volunteers, held their annual reunion in Kittery on the 12th inst. Orderly Sergeant John Hayes called the roll at one o'clock P. M.

Pears' Soap is an elegant toilet adjunct.

Mrs. Josie R. Pollard of Kennebunk, grand vice templar of the order of Good Templars of Maine, visited Morrill lodge of North Kittery on Friday evening, the 7th inst.; on the Saturday following she organized a Juvenile Temple, and on Sunday she spoke in the 1st Methodist church at North Kittery. The new Temple started with about thirty members, Mrs. James G. Plaisted being superintendent.

It was reported on the 12th inst. that fifteen carpenters from Kennebunk had

OH! MY HEAD.
The pain from Neuralgia and its companion disease Rheumatism is excruciating. Thousands who could be quickly cured are needlessly suffering. Ath-lo-pho-ros will do for others what it did for the following parties:
Williamsport, Ind., Oct. 3, 1887.
Having been afflicted with neuralgia for the past four years, and trying almost everything, but in vain, I finally heard of Athlophoros. After taking one bottle I found it to be helping me, and after taking four bottles of Athlophoros and one of Pills, I found that I was entirely well. I think the medicine is positively a sure cure.
CHAUNCEY B. REDDICK.
Mt. Carmel, Ill., Dec 26, 1887.
I have used Athlophoros in my family and find it to be the greatest medicine for neuralgia in existence, and having had its fangs fastened upon me for the past 35 years I know whereof I speak. MRS. JULIA CRELTON.

WHAT IS SCROFULA
It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.
How Can It Be CURED
By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.
"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

Marriages of First Cousins.

But let us go a step further. Immediately after the Noachian deluge the marriages of first cousins formed the remotest degree of kindred available for such intercourse, even if the respective distances (see Genesis, ch. 10) and insuperable difficulties of communication and locomotion between the members of the only remaining family, scattered throughout the recently submerged world, did not necessarily involve a resort to the natural law of the first family, and were but one remove from the primitive law of nature. It was not until the lapse of many generations after the traditional history of the flood that Moses issued his Levitical decrees to restrain the licentiousness that was creating confusion in that social organization which had supplanted primitive simplicity. Such prohibitions are not confined to cases of consanguinity, though the prohibited intercourse undoubtedly includes "any that are near of kin," which may well embrace first cousins. The catalogue extends to degrees of affinity.

The vulgar error that both mental and physical deterioration of progeny is the result of consanguineous alliances, though long since exploded by the scientific portion of the medical profession, arose from arguing from a foregone conclusion to the premises, instead of from the premises to their legitimate conclusion. If it were otherwise, the race must have deteriorated from the very beginning; whereas, on the contrary, it is well known that by the law of nature the purity of a stock is maintained by breeding in and in, although to obtain certain foreign characteristics it is sometimes desirable to cross it with another. No doubt any specific acquired disease in a family would be intensified by the intermarriage of its members, but there is no record of any physical or mental infirmity, in the early ages of mankind, resulting from consanguineous alliances. The Levitical prohibitions were directed against a prevalent social and moral evil, sapping the purity of the domestic hearth, rather than a physiological one, affecting the sanitary condition of the world.—Hugh Weightman in New York Sun.

Ladies at the Dentist's.

According to experiments of most dentists, ladies are by far the bravest and most considerate patients. While not able to bear as much physical pain as mankind generally, they make up in force of will power and self control, and thus endure the trying ordeal without fainting or hysteria. They may suffer a shriek of pain to escape them, but they bravely hold their ground until the tooth is extracted. A young lady entered a dentist's establishment accompanied by her mother. She was suffering with a severe toothache. She was desirous of attending a party in the evening, however, and wanted some relief. An examination of the tooth proved the impossibility of saving it, and its extraction was suggested. "Very well," submissively replied the young lady. The head was thrown back, the pretty lips were parted, the forceps were inserted. A shrill scream pierced the air, but in another instant the young lady was smiling through her tears, and the dentist triumphantly held the emaciated tooth before her. Her toothache was gone and she could attend the party in the evening.

"A man would have carried that tooth around with him for a week," said the dentist, "before he would have mustered up courage enough to have it out, and he would have suffered the tortures of the damned before he would submit to the almost instantaneous operation of extraction. That's the difference between the sexes."—Chicago Herald.

The Need of Arm Exercise.

Walking on an even surface, the only variety of physical exercise which most business and professional men get in town, is well known to be a poor substitute for arm exertion. The reason is partially plain, since walking is almost automatic and involuntary. The walking mechanism is set in motion as we would turn an hour glass, and requires little attention, much less volition and separate discharge of force from the brain surface with each muscular contraction, as is the case with a great variety of arm movements.

The arm user is a higher animal than the leg user. Arm motions are more nearly associated with mental action than leg movements. A man's lower limbs merely carry his higher centers to his food or work. The latter must be executed with his arms and hands.

A third way in which arm exercise benefits the organism is through the nervous system. Whether this is due to an increased supply of richer, purer blood, or whether the continual discharge of motor impulses in some way stores up another variety of force, we do not know. One thing is certain, the victim of neurasthenia is very seldom an individual who daily uses his arms for muscular work; with this, the limit of hurtful mental work is seldom reached.—Walter B. Platt, M. D., in Popular Science Monthly.

Flowers of French Landscape.

French scenery between Boulogne and Amiens is not particularly interesting, excepting when the fields are gay with flowers. The landscape presents a great variety of bright colors, poppies and corn flowers appearing to contribute more than a full share. The growing wheat is brilliantly lighted by them, much to the annoyance of the farmers, we think. According to the papers, French farmers could earn nothing at the present prices of their produce, even if taxes were nowhere. Sowing and reaping seems to be a worse business here than in England, and far worse than in the eastern and middle states of America, whence come so many complaints.—J. H. Cowperthwaite in New York Star.

His Pipe Drew the Lightning.

"You had better take that pipe out of your mouth, it will draw lightning," said a colored man near Acree, as Nellie Brown, the colored cook, was smoking her pipe in the door. Instantly, there was a blinding flash and Nellie fell dead. The lightning struck her on the top of the head, and then descended, tearing away her left breast as if cut off with a knife. Her clothes were burned off. She was the sister of Jordan Harris, a noted colored preacher. The colored people believe the pipe drew the lightning.—Atlanta Constitution.

When we consider the patronage of this great office, [the presidency,] the allurements of power, the temptation to retain place once gained, and more than all, the availability a party finds in an incumbent whom a horde of office holders, with a zeal born of benefits and fostered by the hope of favors yet to come, stand ready to aid with money and trained political service, we recognize in the eligibility of the president for re-election a most serious danger to that calm, deliberate and intelligent political action, which must characterize a government by the people.—Grover Cleveland.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

We must now place our manufactures by the side of the agriculturist. * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

Men and Women's Bones.

Joints and muscles may escape the agonizing tortures of rheumatism if they will but "take time by the forelock," and annihilate the symptoms of oncoming trouble with the benignant and highly sanguinous blood depurent and alternative, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Poisons mostly constitute the ordinary means of battling with this atrocious complaint. Avoid the risk of using these by resorting to the safe as well as effectual antiphlogistic and preventive. After exposures to damp, through drafts and other causes which encourage a rheumatic tendency, a wineglassful of the Bitters prevents ill effects. No surer preventive of malarial ailments like fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake exists, and it is, besides, a most genial recuperator of strength exhausted by excessive mental or physicial effort. Miners, mariners, operatives and others whose avocations involve laborious work in rough weather out of doors, or close application indoors, find it invaluable.

It is to the New York that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

Didn't Want a Girl.

Last summer my wife's health was all run down, and she wanted me to hire a girl to the work. In a little while I found one I thought would suit her, when to my surprise she said I need not hire any one, as she felt much better, and thought another bottle of Sulpher Bitters would cure her. Donald Grey, 41 Worcester square, Boston.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

We know of no mode of treatment which offers, to sufferers from chronic diseases, a more certain hope of cure than that which is comprehended in the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. For purifying and invigorating the blood, this preparation is unequaled.

The only time England can use a Celt is when he emigrates to America, and votes for free trade. — London Times.

Vincent Lundberg, of Stockholm, Physician-in-Chief to the King of Sweden, recommends Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer for the scalp and hair.

Our manufactures require the systematic and fostering care of the government. * * Equally important it is to provide at home a market for our raw materials.—James Monroe.

Hay Fever.

I have been afflicted with hay fever from early in August until frost. My eyes would run a stream of water and I sneezed continually. I was advised to use Ely's Cream Balm. It has worked like a charm and I can say I am entirely cured.—Mrs. Emeline Johnson, Chester, Conn.

I have been for several years a sufferer from hay fever and severe head colds. I have found nothing that can compare with Ely's Cream Balm. I would not be without it for any consideration. It is simply wonderful in its effect upon the nasal organs.—S. A. Burtt, Wilmington, N. C.

President Cleveland declines cautiously to dub himself a free trader, but he enters up a free trade position without disguise —London Saturday Review.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

It may save you from consumption. tocl3

It is certain that the arguments which President Cleveland urges are those which Cobden used to employ forty-five years ago, and which any free trader could employ now.—London Times.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.
Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

The president is careful to state that he frankly, declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

When our manufactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C Calhoun.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

Shop without them. I consider your Sulpher Bitters a remarkable blood purifier. I know of several people, whose cases were considered hopeless, that have been cured by your medicine. The sale of Sulpher Bitters is so large here that I could not keep shop without them. E. S. Yates, Pharmacist, 99 Essex street, Lawrence, Mass.

Congress have certainly, and no without success, directed their attention to the encouragement of manufactures. The object is of too much consequence not to insure a continuance of their efforts in every way which shall appear eligible.—George Washington.

GOOD-BY, SWEETHEART.

Good-by, sweetheart!
The thought that grieves in my breast
Is but an arrow winging swift and free
That takes not life away, but, breaking all its rest,
Must separate us ever—me and thee!
I wonder doth it grieve thy soul, as mine, to part?
To say good-by, sweetheart

Good-by, sweetheart
As summer leaves her restful calm on earth—
Her breathless silence, like a dream of peace,
Ev'n so I would that in thy path some gentle birth
Of sacred recollections, when shall cease
The music of today, may aught of bliss impart,
To comfort thee, sweetheart.

Good-by, sweetheart!
I hear the reaper voices call—
But yet thy soul's dear grace I cannot lose—
We view our paths which lie apart; the tears must fall,
We can but pray, our ways we may not choose,
But heaven waits for both beyond, where thou and I Need never say good-by!

Sweetheart, good-by!
Before us fall such strange, strange mists
Where once there was but sunshine and fair skies,
I reach my hands to thee in vain—for Fate insists
Love's links must be unclasped; so close thine eyes
While on thy brow I lay my last and tender touch and sigh
To breathe, sweetheart, good-by!
—Lida Lewis Watson in New York Mercury.

Beautifying the Tenement Houses.

One of the pleasant things in the progress of New York city is the steady improvement in the condition of Mulberry, Baxter and other streets in the densely populated part of the east side tenement district. They are bad enough yet, in all conscience, but compared with what they were a few years ago they are really beautiful. The board of health annually cleans out entirely some of the worst of the rookeries, and those that remain have to be kept liberally dosed with whitewash and repaired and overhauled frequently, in order to pass muster with the inspectors. It is astonishing how much better a house looks after hallways that reeked with a damp ooze have had a heavy coat of whitewash, and how fresh pine boards will brighten up walls and ceilings formerly covered with dirty, broken plastering. Factories and storehouses, also, are encroaching upon the old domains of dirt, vice and disease, and driving the inhabitants out into parts of the city where at least there is more fresh air, better light and cleaner streets. —New York Sun.

A Hard Working Novelist.

A gentleman who has recently visited Wilkie Collins at his home in Wimpole street, London, says that the novelist is looking old, and that his hard work has left its mark on him. He is thin and stoops very much, but his eyes, though near sighted, are bright and sparkling. Mr. Collins is a hard worker, and when busy with a novel usually works night and day until it is finished. It is quite common for him to work fifteen hours at a stretch, eating scarcely anything and drinking only a little champagne during that time. He gets very much excited over his stories, and walks about the room reciting the speeches of his characters in a most dramatic manner.—Harper's Bazar.

Polar Ice Caps of Mars.

Flammarion has pointed out to the French Academy of Sciences that the varying state of the polar ice caps of Mars has long been carefully observed by Maedler, Schiaparelli and others, the inference being that this planet is not yet, like our moon, permanently frozen up. On the contrary, its temperature is equal to, if not higher than, that of the earth, and its polar snows melt periodically to a far greater extent than on our globe. This disposes of the theory that the canals are glacial rifts.—Boston Budget.

Weakness of the Blackguard.

The truth is that the fury which is supposed to imply force is the conclusive proof of weakness. The familiar advice, "If you have no evidence, abuse the plaintiff's attorney," contains by implication the whole philosophy of what is called the manliness and force of the blackguard. He has no reason, therefore he sneers. He has no argument, therefore he swears. He will get the laugh upon his adversary if he can, forgetting that those who laugh at the clown may also despise him.—Harper's Magazine.

Oldest Statue in the World.

There is a curious wooden statue in the Museum of Antiquities at Boolak, Egypt, which is said to be 6,000 years old. It is that of a man, apparently a civilized man, the figure full of life, standing erect holding a staff. The pose expresses vigor, action, pride, and the head indicates a man of intellect. It was discovered by Marietta Bey, the French Egyptologist at Memphis, but nothing is known of its history.—C. Wilmot in Magazine of American History.

Why Birds Eat Berries.

Pans of water placed in fruit and berry patches will keep birds from eating the fruit. An English naturalist claims that the reason birds eat cherries and strawberries is because in the blazing heat they get dreadfully thirsty. If the birds can easily get at water they soon leave off taking the fruit.—Chicago Herald.

Wild Turkeys in Austria.

Wild turkeys have lately been acclimatized in Austria, though such a thing has hitherto been considered almost impossible. From four hen turkeys and three cocks, brought from the American prairies, the colony has increased to about 580 individuals.—Arkansaw Traveler.

Does Not Apply.

The law allowing three days' grace on a note does not apply to musicians; they must take up the notes at sight as they come due, or the whole will go to protest.—Dansville Breeze.

By a system of dry cold storage strawberries can be kept for several months with unimpaired freshness and solidity.

BUYING PRECIOUS STONES

Lomon and Paris Are the Markets for Sale—Tricks of the Trade.

As no diamonds are produced in North America, the supply must come from foreign markets. The temptation to smuggle would be great were it not that the government has wisely placed the duty on all cut and unset precious stones at the nominal rate of 10 per cent. This low rate secures more income from this source than a tariff of 25 per cent. or more, as the incentive to smuggle is not sufficient to tempt any but the most avaracious or foolhardy among importers.

To buy diamonds, and the same may be said of all other precious stones and pearls, in Europe advantageously the buyer must be sufficiently well informed from long practice in buying in these markets and from a special study of the nature of precious stones, to enable him to place correct values on parcels submitted for his inspection. The novice, or one having only the limited knowledge of the subject of gems which is acquired by occasionally handling them, cannot possess the qualifications needed to deal successfully with the "sharpest" and shrewdest lot of merchants and brokers in any line of trade, as the diamond merchants and brokers of Hatten Garden and Paris are admitted to be.

Amsterdam is the great workshop where most of the diamond cutting has been done for centuries. Antwerp, Haarlem, London and other places now cut large quantities of diamonds, while London has always led in the cutting and polishing of the fine colored stones like the ruby, sapphire and emerald.

Although Amsterdam cuts a large percentage of stones, the markets for their sale are London and Paris. Not only are the large stocks of cut and uncut diamonds owned in these cities, but the controlling interest in the mines is owned here also. On the discovery of the great deposits of diamonds in Africa mining was done by claim owners, who were known as "diggers." Now these claims are owned by several corporations having headquarters in London and Paris, and these corporations regulate the production of the mines. Prices are thus kept at more uniform rates, and a break in the market is prevented. If there should be a sharp demand in Paris stocks are sent over from London, and vice versa. Brokers are the mediums through which most transactions in precious stones are made. The craft is made up from both sexes. The writer has recollections of quite extensive transactions with a female diamond broker, who displayed as much shrewdness and business intelligence as any of the male members of the profession he has met.

There are "tricks of the trade" innumerable. One consists in showing the very lowest grade of stones first, so that when at last a rather inferior grade is reached by a crescendo process the buyer becomes somewhat confused in his efforts to fix in his eye the exact quality under examination. For aid in selecting very high grade diamonds a "test stone" of known quality is invaluable.

Diamonds of staple or medium quality, ranging from one grain to six grains, or from one-half to one and one-half carats weight, may be purchased as advantageously of the New York importers as in the foreign market, but the larger and finer grades are found in London and Paris in much greater quantities, giving a wider choice for the judicious buyer. In these higher grades there are very slight fluctuations in prices from year to year, and therefore as an investment they are the better goods to buy, particularly when they are well bought.

Even in so large a market as London, if a dealer wants a pair of unusually fine gems or a very fine solitaire, it is not prudent to place an order with more than one broker, for if two or more are started on the hunt a process of bidding against one another ensues and prices go up. The "still hunt" is the most profitable. Should a ruby of three carats and the finest quality be desired, the intending purchaser would find it necessary to wait perhaps for months before such a stone could be found, and then at first hands it would cost the price of a king's ransom—say about the ransom of a Sandwich Island king—$10,000.—Edward J. Smith in Detroit Free Press.

The World's Highest Mountain.

A few years ago the English gave the name of Mount Everest to that peak in the eastern Himalayas which, as far as yet known, is the highest mountain in the world. In May last they gave the name of Mount Godwin-Austen to the peak in the Western Himalayas which is supposed to be the second loftiest summit. Most British geographers adhere to the laudable rule to give to every geographical object its true native name, but here are the two highest mountains in the world bearing the names of two Englishmen distinguished as surveyors. There is, however, an excellent reason why these stupendous heights will never be known by native names.

Each of these mountains is surrounded by several satellite peaks that are nearly as high as the pinnacles which lift their snowy heads a little above them. These surrounding mountains entirely cut off the view of the loftier summits from the nearest inhabited regions. The natives have given names to these satellites, but they have never seen the higher summits, which have consequently been unnamed until foreign explorers revealed them to the world.—New York Sun.

Has Our Longevity Decreased?

Has the longevity of the human race decreased? is a question which many modern physicians seem inclined to answer in the negative. Statistics undoubtedly prove that within the last eighty years epidemics have become less frequent and chronic diseases more curable. Our streets are getting wider and cleaner, our drinking water purer; our domestic habits are becoming far more hygienic, and centenarians more frequent, in North America at least, and in the civilized districts of western Europe. —Detroit Free Press.

BILIOUSNESS.

This very common complaint, which is caused by a dormant or inactive liver, can be cured in a short time by using Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, as can also the various diseases arising from inactive liver or kidneys. These organs, if inactive, will allow impure blood to enter the heart, causing tightness about that organ and palpitation.

She suffered thirty years.

Mrs. DUDLEY CHANDLER, of Melrose, Mass., says: "I had suffered with Palpitation of the Heart more than thirty years before I found anything to give me essential relief. Last fall I tried Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, and, remarkable as it was, this Compound relieved me in two days, so that for several months afterwards I felt not the slightest touch of it, and am perfectly free from it now. Sometimes, before I took this Compound, the palpitations of my heart were so violent as to shake my whole body with rapid agitations, and at times I fainted and became entirely insensible. Now I am perfectly free from all this suffering. Consequently I can most sincerely and earnestly recommend this Compound to all like sufferers, as pre-eminently the best medicine I ever knew for Palpitation of the Heart."

Ingalls' Mandrake Compound is sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles for $5. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

TRADE S.S.S. FOR THE BLOOD MARK

An Important Announcement

About six weeks ago, while at business, I was suddenly attacked with excruciating pains in my feet, knees and hands. So severe the attack that I took my bed immediately, and in two or three days my joints were swollen to almost double their natural size, and sleep was driven from me. After suffering the most excruciating pain for a week, using liniments and various other remedies, a friend who sympathized with my helpless condition, said to me:

"Why don't you get Swift's Specific and use it. I will guarantee a cure, and if it does not the medicine shall cost you nothing."

I at once secured the S. S. S., and after using it the first day, had a quiet night and refreshing sleep. In a week I felt greatly benefitted. In three weeks I could sit up and walk about the room, and after using six bottles I was out and able to go to business. Since then I have been regularly at my post of duty, and stand on my feet from nine to ten hours a day, and am entirely free from pain. These are the plain and simple facts in my case, and I will cheerfully answer all inquiries relative thereto, either in person or by mail. THOMAS MARKLIE,

NASHVILLE, TENN.—I have wanted off a severe attack of rheumatism by a timely resort to Swift's Specific. In all cases where a permanent relief is sought this medicine commends itself for a constitutional treatment that thoroughly eradicates the seeds of disease from the system. Rev. W. P. HARRISON, D. D.

NEW YORK, 11 THE ARK.—After spending $200 to be relieved of Blood Poison without any benefit, a few bottles of Swift's Specific worked a perfect cure. O. FOSTER.

VIENNA, GA.—My little girl, aged six, and boy, aged four years, had scrofula in the worst aggravated shape. They were puny and sickly. To-day they are healthy and robust, all the result of taking S. S. S. JOE T. COLLIER.

LADY LAKE, SUMTER CO., FLA.—Your S. S. S. has proved a wonderful success in my case. The cancer on my face, no doubt would have soon hurried me to my grave. I do think it is wonderful, and has no equal. B. H. BYRD, Postmaster.

Their Style.

The Boston Herald (free trade) don't think highly of Gen. Harrison's letter of acceptance. Of course not. The Herald compares his letter with President Cleveland's communication to the democratic committee, and remarks of the republican nominee: "Both in logic and in rhetoric, in his arguments and his style, he shows to marked disadvantage when pitted against his masterful antagonist."

We feel warranted in saying that the Herald's judgment is pretty hard upon our Ben. We haven't time or space to discuss the "logic" and the "arguments" of these two papers; but we will take the liberty to look and see where our gallant standard bearer is away behind Grover Cleveland in "style." Never mind about the rhetoric.

Let us take, for instance, the opening and closing sentences respectively of the two letters.

Gen. Harrison begins thus:

When your committee visited me on the 4th of July last, and presented the official announcement of my nomination for the presidency of the United States by the republican convention, I promised as soon as practicable to communicate to you a more formal acceptance of the nomination.

This is plain, direct and business-like.

Now let us hear from the "masterful antagonist." He gets underweigh as follows:

In addressing to you my formal acceptance of the nomination to the presidency of the United States, my thoughts persistently dwell upon the impressive relation of such action to the American people, whose confidence is thus invited, and to the political party to which I belong, just entering upon a contest for continued supremacy.

There is style for you! Plunges right in, you see, amidst the adjectives and nouns, and treats us to the spectacle of himself, the American people and the political party "to which I belong," all bobbing up and down together. Just precisely what Mr. Cleveland means by "the impressive relation" does not appear. He is thinking of himself, and he is doing it persistently; but why "relation?" Again, the action (i. e. of addressing his formal acceptance to the committee) relates to the American people, and to his party. We infer that the relation to the party differs from the relation to the American people, else he would not have mentioned them separately. We are not told, however, what the difference is, nor do we know to what degree of persistence his thoughts dwell on the respective relations.

What is meant by "impressive?" And who is it that is impressed? The American people? Or the political party? Perhaps it is Mr. Cleveland himself. And if Mr. Cleveland, why need he assure us that the relation is impressive, when he has already solemnly remarked that his thoughts persistently dwell upon it. One can hardly persist in dwelling upon a relation (or anything else,) without either impressing it, or being impressed by it. This is self-evident.

The president probably means to express the idea that he feels a great responsibility rests upon him in accepting the nomination. Gen. Harrison simply says that he accepts "with a feeling of gratitude and a full sense of the responsibility which accompanies it." Just where the "marked disadvantage" lies in avoiding a cloud of words to convey his idea, the Boston Herald can perhaps tell us. We like Ben's way better.

Now let us see how the president winds up his letter:

"With firm faith in the intelligence and patriotism of our countrymen, and relying upon the conviction that misrepresentation will not influence them, prejudice will not cloud their understanding, and that menace will not intimidate them, let us urge the people's interest and public duty for the vindication of our attempt to inaugurate a righteous and beneficent reform."

Here Mr. Cleveland proposes to his followers that all hands shall "urge the people's interest and public duty for the vindication of our attempt," etc. How can a lot of individuals urge the people's interest, or urge public duty? A writer, or speaker, may bring foward as an argument the proposition that this or that is for the people's interest, or that it is a duty to the public to do this or that; and such writer, or speaker, may urge this argument upon the attention of his readers, by asking them if they are not going for a vindication to urge the people's interest? How can the faithful adherent of Mr. Cleveland urge public duty? This exhortation to the faithful is all very pretty when you have found out what it means, but still as a mere matter of "style" we fail to see where it puts our Ben at a "marked disadvantage."

Gen. Harrison closes his letter as follows:

"Inviting a calm and thoughtful consideration of these public questions, we submit them to the people. Their intelligent patriotism, and the good providence that has made and kept us a nation, will lead them to wise and safe conclusions."

The fact is, we, in common with a good many people, like Benjamin Harrison's "style" so well that we shall enjoy reading his Inaugural Message on the fourth of March next.

The Yellow Fever.

Fifty-nine new cases of yellow fever, and ten deaths, were reported at Jacksonville up to noon on the 12th inst. At McClenny there were sixty-five cases, in all, and only one doctor able to be about. Among the deaths at Jacksonville were those of Rev. Theodore M. Smith, a young man of great promise and an active worker in the relief measures, and Louis I. Fleming, nephew of the democratic candidate for governor. Dr. Charles I. Burroughs, one of the most prominent citizens of Jacksonville, was taken sick on the 12th.

Prof. Richard Anthony Proctor, the eminent astronomer, arrived in New York on the 10th inst. direct from his summer home at Oaklawn, Florida, intending to take a steamer for Europe on the 15th. He put up at the Westminster hotel. On Tuesday, the 11th, he was taken ill with a disease which was diagnosed as yellow fever, and on Wednesday evening he died. It is not known that he had been exposed to the disease in Florida, where his family still are.

A New Cobb Story.

BOSTON, Sept. 12.—Another treat for story readers is announced by the Boston Globe. A new story by Sylvanus Cobb, Jr., the last ever written by that famous author, whose "Gunmaker of Moscow" was read all over the world, will begin in the Boston Daily Globe next Saturday.

The title of this story is "The Smuggler of King's Cove; or, the Old Chapel Mystery."

It is a splendid romance of love and adventure, and should be read by every one.

Order the Globe of your newsdealer today, in order not to miss the first instalment.

Better Allow Him to Rest.

A despatch of Sept. 12th from New York said:

Many eminent democrats have proposed to the campaign managers to let Judge Thurman appear at large meetings in the doubtful states, with the stipulation that he speak only a few words of greeting. They say that a sight of the Old Roman is sufficient to enthuse the masses, without subjecting him to the labor of delivering speeches. This plan is well thought of at headquarters.

It may be doubted if the spectacle of the feeble old gentleman toted about the country as a show, would be a paying exhibition in the line of bolstering up the falling fortunes of the Cleveland democracy. His collapses on the stage in New York and Newark were of no benefit to the free trade party.

Naval Intelligence.

Lieutenant James T. Smith has been ordered to the Pinta; Lieutenant-Commander W. C. Gibson to the storeship Monongahela; Lieutenant John H. Moore, to the Norfolk navy yard; Assistant Paymaster George W. Simpson to the Constellation; Lieutenant John B. Collins has been detached from the Monongahela on being relieved, and placed on waiting orders; Ensign Charles P. Plummett from the Pinta on being relieved, and ordered to return home and report arrival; Assistant Paymaster Willis B. Wilcox from the Constellation, ordered to settle accounts and placed on waiting orders; Assistant Paymaster Thomas J. Cowie from the Saratoga, ordered to settle accounts and placed on waiting orders.

A telegram has been received at the navy department recently from Capt. Healy, commanding the revenue steamer Bear, saying that he left the U. S. S. Thetis at Point Barrow on Aug 11th, and that she intended to remain there two or three weeks before proceeding south.

News and Notes.

The national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, at Columbus, Ohio, on the 12th inst. unaminously voted to hold the next national encampment in Milwaukee, Wis.

Jacob B. Carpenter, elected mayor of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., by the democrats, and who four years ago stamped New York for Cleveland, has come out for Harrison and Morton.

The president on the 12th inst. sent to the senate, in answer to Senator Hoar's resolution, copies of all communications addressed to the government of Great Britain in relation to unjust discrimination against American vessels on the Canadian canals, and to the fishery outrages. This is nothing new in the papers laid before the senate.

Miss Nina Van Zandt, the proxy wife of Spies, the Chicago anarchist, has put off mourning, and is believed to be recovering from her strange infatuation. She has become reconciled to her rich is now said to be living contentedly at home, engaged in study and literary pursuits.

Cattle are so cheap in Neveda that the present season will prove a very unprofitable one for stock raises. Beef is selling 5 to 5 1-2 cents a pound, with few buyers.

The prohibitory party of Massachusetts has nominated William H. Earle for governor, and a full state ticket.

New Hampshire Items.

Gov. Sawyer has lost three valuable cows by poison, two dying on Monday night of this week, and one Tuesday night. The animals are supposed to have been poisoned by some malicous scoundrel sprinkling Paris green on the grass in their pasture at Dover.

The 79th session of the general association of Congregational and Presbyterian churches of New Hampshire commenced Sept. 12th at East Derry, to continue three days.

The republican councillor convention of the first district was held at Exeter on the 13th inst., and Hon. Charles H. Horton of Dover was nominated.

Mrs. Mary Sarsfield, wife of John Sarsfield of Salmon Falls, was found dead on the evening of Sept. 11th. She was drunk that evening. Her husband was arrested on suspicion of having killed her.

An Electrical Stratagem.

When the electric telegraph was first introduced into Chili, a stratagem was resorted to in order to guard the posts and wires against damage on the part of the Araucanian Indians and maintain the connection between the strongholds on the frontier. There were at the time between forty and fifty captive Indians in the Chilian camp. Gen. Pinto called them together, and, pointing to the telegraph wires, he said: "Do you see those wires?" "Yes, general." "Very good. I want you to remember not to go near nor touch them; for if you do your hands will be held and you will be unable to get away." The Indians smiled incredulously.

Then the general made them each in succession take hold of the wires at both ends of an electric battery in full operation. After which he exclaimed: "I command you to let go the wire!" "I can't; my hands are benumbed," said the Indian. The battery was then stopped and the man released. Not long afterward the general restored them to liberty, giving them strict injunctions to keep the secret, and not to betray it to their countrymen on any account. This had the desired effect, for, as might be expected, the experiment was related "in the strictest confidence" to every man of the tribe, and the telegraph has ever since remained unmolested.—Electrical Review.

The Electrical Typewriter.

And now finally as to the electrical typewriter. A friend in the patent office at Washington writes to ask me to keep cool. The device has been already invented and is now about half patented. By the time this appears in print the patent will be complete. The machine will work at any distance over which a wire can be placed. My correspondent believes that it can be worked on the other side of the ocean connected with this side by the cable. This I doubt, as the current is so weak either on account of seasickness or other reasons by the time it gets to the other side that all it is able to do is to deflect a very small mirror so delicately poised as to be practically suspended in the air. Still if the dynmograph, as they call it, will work over ordinary land spaces it will be a great invention, although, of course, it will be nothing to the telephonograph shortly to be put forward by Mr. Edison. —Luke Sharp in Detroit Free Press.

MUSIC HALL.

That musical farce comedy known as the Three Blind Mice was the attraction at the opera house last evening. It is a bit of nonsense portrayed by several well known and pleasing people. The strongest act is the last, for the reason that the musical members there are the most pleasing, and music carries the piece. Miss Sally Cohen, Frank Howard, Bert Shepard and Billy Rice sustained their past reputations, and J. W. Myers, a new face, made a great hit. He has a rich baritone voice, and proved a favorite. If you drop in where the Blind Mice hold the boards, be sure and see the whole entertainment.—Manchester Union.

BASE BALL.

The benefit game of ball on the South street grounds, Thursday afternoon, served to draw a crowd of 600 persons, including a fair proportion of ladies. The game afforded much sport for the audidience. Willis pitched for the picked nine for five innings, and then gave way McDermott. McDermott and Canavan pitched, and Ryan and Householder caught, for the Portsmouths. The score was seven to six in favor of the Portsmouths. Previous to the game Rudderham, Murray and Canavan took part in a running match, Murray winning, with Rudderham second. Throwing base ball: Rudderham, Householder, Daley, Madigan, Ryan and Archie Jenness took part, Ryan winning, Madigan second and Daley third.

The Portsmouths play in New Bedford this (Friday) afternoon, and in Fall River on Saturday.

THE REGISTER'S OFFICE.

At the republican county convention on Wednesday of this week, Mr. J. E. Simpson of South Newmarket was nominated as a candidate for register of probate. If Mr. Simpson, who is a very competent man as station agent at South Newmarket, can afford to give up a business in which he has attained experience, to fill a low-salaried office, and give his principal attention to the discharge of its duty, he can make a competent incumbent.

Mr. Brown, the present register, had the good sense to secure the services of a most estimable and accomplished assistant in the office. The records and files are in excellent shape, when we consider the deplorable condition of the damp and limited space allowed for their custody. The county building should be raised, enlarged and properly ventilated. Of course, if it could be located somewhere on the line of more than one railway, the public would be better accommodated, but if the records are to be kept at Exeter, there should be at once an improved condition of the building. Better still, abandon the dark and dismal structure, and erect a new county building in this city, one which would be in keeping with the wants of the several offices, and the ability of the county.

But we are referring to the occupants of the building. The office of register of probate is one which requires an incumbent possessing peculiar traits, if he intends to personally attend to the discharge of the duties of his office. If, however, he will be sure of the aid of an assistant capable of satisfactorily serving every one who has business at the office, it makes but little difference who the register de jure may be. Still this is not an office to be bestowed as a sinecure. A competent register earns all he receives, and more too. It may be an office of honor It cannot be regarded as one of profit.

A NEEDED CHANGE.

It is said that the directors of the Concord railroad, in conjunction with the management of the Boston & Maine road, have reached a conclusion to which the public long since arrived,—that a new railway station building is imperatively demanded at Newmarket Junction. The old building has long been a disgrace to these corporations. In so far as the need of a new building in place of the [illegible] at this much visited place is concerned, the two boards for a wonder agree. But whether it is better to build such a station edifice as the business at this point seems to demand, or to waste the amount at Concord during the next session of the legislature, it is reported is not formally agreed upon.

As trains now run, especially the beach train on the Concord road, many persons are compelled to wait at the Junction. Most of them might as well be sent to Portsmouth, and go east from our station; but the Concord managers have never deemed it worth while to make any changes in the ticket arrangements, and they perfer to go without the difference in fares rather than be annoyed by anything which would entail the labor in their offices incident to any change from the early mode of operating.

It is suggested that, as at this point trains of one road are at times compelled to wait the arrival of trains on the other line, here is the place for the restaurant, and "ten minutes for refreshments," now kept at Exeter. This would save time to the trains on the Boston & Maine road. The afternoon trains especially have to make long stops at Newmarket Junction. As these oftentimes must be made after the ten minutes at Exeter, it is thought that time could be saved by making the Junction the place for such stops, and shortening the time at Exter. The change of engines could also be made here. if needed.

What is to be the result of the deliberations of the committee of the corporations is of course doubtful. The long-suffering public, however, will hail with delight any movement which will bring about the long-needed change at this much-frequented junction.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

The undersigned would inform his friends and the public that his place of business will be closed for a short time in order to make alterations and improvements.

JOHN S. RAND,
No. 11 Market Street.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, Sept. 13th; full board present, Mayor Hodgdon in the chair.

Requests of C. E. Walker for removal of a tree in front of No. 45 State street, and of Mrs. Wm. A. Pinsisted for removal of a tree in front of her house on State street, were referred to the committee on streets.

Heirs of J. W. Peirce were granted leave to encumber High and Ladd streets for building purposes.

Bills to the amount of $1890 were ordered to be paid.

Petition of J. McCaffery and others for improvements in the grading of Wibird street, was referred to the committee on streets, to report.

In Convention of the councils, Ebenezer G. Adams was elected harbor master, in place of George R. Raitt, who declined to serve.

RAILROAD ITEMS.

In the case of the Manchester & Lawrence railroad vs. Concord railroad, being held at Manchester on the 13th inst., J. Frank Webster, cashier of the latter corporation, when called to give his deposition, refused to testify. An appeal was made to the magistrate, Henry E. Brown, who was hearing the case, who ruled that the questions asked were proper, and the witness must answer them. He still refused to do so, whereupon he was placed under arrest for contempt of court. Counsel for the Concord railroad then appealed to Judge Isaac W. Smith of the supreme court of the state for a writ of habeas corpus, to secure the release of the prisoner.

The Boston Traveller of the 12th inst. in its railroad article says: "The proposition for a consolidation of the Eastern and Boston & Maine roads, which was made some time since by the latter people, and which has been rejected by the Eastern directors, is understood to have been substantially an exchange of stock on the basis of two of Eastern for one of Boston & Maine. The plan contemplates an issue of a ten per cent preferred stock to be given to Boston & Maine stockholders share for share, or, what is the same thing, a five per cent stock, two shares for one. Under this arrangement Eastern preferred would be converted into the same stock, and Eastern common would get a new Boston & Maine common stock. The Eastern people want an entirely new stock issued, and all the interests concerned to come in on an equitable basis, without any division into classes or preferences."

PERSONAL.

Mr. Cedric Laighton's family came in from the Isles of Shoals on Thursday, and opened their house on State street for the winter.

Mrs. George W. Randall, of Mulberry street, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Frank Batchelder of South Boston.

Miss Ida Johnson of New York is a guest of Miss Nellie Call, of Pleasant street.

Mrs. Adams of Newburyport is visiting Mr. Joshua Stackpole and wife, of Pleasant street.

Mr. Loring Jones and wife, their daughter, Mrs. Samuel Peyser, child and nurse, and Mrs. Peyser's sister, who have been passing the season at their summer home on Richards avenue, started on their return to Brooklyn, N. Y., on Thursday.

Miss Mamie Keefe, of Islington street, is visiting friends in New York.

Howard H. Meyers, who ran away from home Aug. 29th and was traced to Springfield, Mass. He is supposed to be intent on going to sea. He is nearly fifteen years of age, about five feet high and looks delicate, has light grey eyes, dark brown hair, sallow complexion and has a corner broken off one of his upper front teeth. He is implored to return home, and any information about him will be gratefully received by his anxious parents.

The steamer Oceanic took out a small excursion party to the Isles of Shoals on Thursday, her last day of running for this season. The day was all that could be asked, there being a bright sun and brisk off-shore breeze.

The republicans of Kittery held an enthusiastic meeting in Trefethen hall on Thursday evening, and were addressed by Frank W. Hackett, Esq., of this city.

Mr. Charles Whitehouse of this city, and Mr. Andrew Brooks, of South Eliot, with several other workmen went to Appledore island, Thursday morning last, to build the chimneys and fire-places in Dr. Richter's new summer residence.

Miss Georgie L. Peckham, the efficient telegraph operator at the hotel Wentworth, Newcastle, the past season, has been transferred to the Western Union office in this city.

The City band of Haverhill, Mass., E. C. Quimby leader, will furnish music for the firemen's parade on the 19th inst., and give a concert on Market square in the evening.

The steamer Oceanic made her last trip for the season to the Shoals on the 13th inst. She leaves the Shoals for Boston this morning with the Bowdich family. The boat will return to-night, and tow in the floating stage on Saturday morning, after which the steamer will leave for Boston with an excursion party, returning on Sunday.

Col. Charles H. Littlefield, of Kennebunk, was in this city on Thursday, the 13th inst. He expresses himself as much pleased with the result of the late election in Maine, and especially over the handsome majority of Hon. Thos. B. Reed in the first congressional district.

Mr. Perry C. Moore, of West Kittery, who has been night watchman at the Appledore house, Isles of Shoals, the present season, returns Saturday morning, the 15th inst. This closes Mr. Moore's seventh year as watchman at this famous hostelrie.

Pears' Soap is an elegant toilet adjunct.

Some of the democratic papers were recently boasting that $250,000 had been sent to Arthur Sewall to be used in carrying Maine for Cleveland. Now they say boodle carried it for the republicans. Do they mean that the young men of democratic parentage who this year became of age, and were expected to vote as their fathers had, but did not, were induced to vote for money? This is rather poor logic, when the party organs boasted that $250,000 had been sent to Maine for campaign purposes, while Chairman Brice compliments Sewall upon the good use he has made of the funds. However, if the democrats can obtain any consola- [illegible] upon the cause of the result in Maine, by all means let them enjoy it. The republicans see in this election the beginning of the end of Cleveland free trade rule in the president's chair and in Congress. If the democrats are too blind to see it, they will be convinced by the seventh of November.

Of General R. B. Ayers, of the artillery, it is related that he was in command of a detachment of Union troops who during the civil war burned the house of a Virginia Confederate. The wife of the Virginian fled from the house with her baby in her arms, and seeking refuge in the negro quarters was forced to fly again when the torch was applied to them in turn. Seventeen years afterward the Union officer, General Ayers, married the baby, who had grown into a charming young womanhood.

The Prince of Wales distinguished himself at Homburg not long ago by drinking fourteen glasses of spring water before breakfast.

Don't Wait

Until your hair becomes dry, thin, and gray before giving the attention needed to preserve its beauty and vitality. Keep on your toilet-table a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor—the only dressing you require for the hair—and use a little, daily, to preserve the natural color and prevent baldness.

Thomas Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky., writes: "Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. Tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best hair-restorer in the world."

"My hair was faded and dry," writes Mabel C. Hardy, of Delavan, Ill.; "but after using a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it became black and glossy."

OH! MY HEAD.
The pain from Neuralgia and its companion disease Rheumatism is excruciating. Thousands who could be quickly cured are needlessly suffering. Ath-lo-pho-ros will do for others what it did for the following parties:
Williamsport, Ind., Oct. 8, 1887.
Having been afflicted with neuralgia for the past four years, and trying almost everything, but in vain, I finally heard of Athlophoros. After taking one bottle I found it to be helping me, and after taking four bottles of Athlophoros and one of Pills, I found that I was entirely well. I think the medicine is positively a sure cure.
CHAUNCEY B. REDDICK.
Mt. Carmel, Ill., Dec. 26, 1887.
I have used Athlophoros in my family and find it to be the greatest medicine for neuralgia in existence, and having had its fangs fastened upon me for the past 10 years I know whereof I speak. MRS. JULIA CHILTON.

WHAT IS SCROFULA
It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arm, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.
How Can It Be CURED
By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.
"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

Eels as Poisonous as Vipers.
In a recent number of The Nuova Antologia, published at Rome, Professor Masso gives the results of some experiments that he has lately made with the blood of eels and of certain marine fishes. If the conclusions drawn by the professor from these experiments are sound, it would seem that, were an eel provided with an apparatus to inject its own blood into a wound as the serpent injects his venom when he bites, an eel in the mud would be every bit as objectionable a thing as a snake in the grass. Professor Masso, being anxious to ascertain whether the blood of those salt water fishes that died when put into fresh water differed from the blood of those that survived the transition from salt water into fresh, compared the serum of the blood of the dogfish and of other salt water fishes that died when placed in fresh water with the blood of eels and certain other fishes that were not hurt by the change from salt water to fresh. Of the first named, he found the serum of the blood clear and limpid and tasting of salt water; while of the others the serum was of a yellowish color, with white and blue reflections, like petroleum, and of a burning and acrid taste.
Experimenting with the latter by injecting it under the skin of rabbits, frogs, mice and pigeons, he discovered that it was a deadly poison, its effects being similar to viper poison, inasmuch as death was caused by paralysis of the respiratory organs. Experimenting on dogs with this fish poison and with viper poison, the professor found that, minute as was the quantity of the latter poison required to cause the death of the animal in a few minutes, it was one-third more powerful than the fish poison—that is to say, it required three times the quantity of the fish poison to produce the same effect that a certain quantity of the viper poison produced. In regard to the cure of snake bites, Professor Masso says that the stimulants usually given are wholly useless and that the only hope of recovery lies in tracheotomy and artificial pumping of air into the lungs.—St. James' Gazette.

Various Causes of Baldness.
Doctors talk of innervation of the scalp, and atrophy, but it is not considered their place to say that the cause of innervation, eczema, and paralysis of the skin is want of needed cleanliness. Think what state the face would be in if it were washed only once in six weeks or longer; and imagine the condition of the scalp with its thousands of oil glands and its hairy growth to detain all the abounding dust. The wonder is not that people lose their hair, but that they have any to lose. The cause of much baldness and thinning of the hair is the choking of the bulbs by neglect. The next potent causes are dry, overheated air of rooms, which destroys the vitality of everything in reach, withers bloom, draws the skin into wrinkles, and dries the hair by the roots—and also nervous dyspepsia, which denies nutrition to the entire system, including the hair. Those causes, want of care and cleanliness, dry heat and indigestion, lie at the root of poor hair.
Wearing hats or bonnets frequently, or long at a time, is an unsuspected cause of grayness and falling locks. Custom should be amended to allow woman to remove bonnets wherever possible—on long journeys, in heated concert rooms, theatres and public galleries. The "library headache," familiar to women who spend much time studying in public libraries in senseless habit with their bonnets on, is speedily destructive to the hair as well as the nerves. The unnecessary heat and pressure on the brain while reading is most mischievous. Women in class rooms and reading rooms should lay aside their head gear, if only for a half hour. The harm done by going about hours and days with a bonnet on, shopping or visiting, is the cause, doubtless, of much falling of the hair which the owner is at a loss to account for.—Shirley Dare's Letter.

Strange Disappearance of Gems.
Every trade has peculiarities about it that are inexplicable. A notable instance of this is the strange manner in which diamonds and other precious stones disappear when accidentally dropped by a dealer while handling them.
"It really seems," said a jeweler to a reporter, "that these valuable stones have the power of motion. A diamond dropped at one end of a room has been found in the dust at the further end of the apartment.
"On another occasion I saw a stone that was dropped to the floor from a loose setting, and, after hours of fruitless search, this same stone was found in the show window six feet from where it fell.
"A friend of mine and a customer of his spent two hours in looking for a diamond that flew from the tweezers in which it was held for inspection, and when they had given up the search in despair it was found nestling cozily in the thick black beard of the customer.
"Other precious stones seem to have the same faculty for disappearing. A short time ago a dealer allowed a fine topaz to slip from his hand. The spot on the floor where it fell, and in fact every part of the office, was thoroughly searched, but the stone was never recovered."—Chicago News.

He Resolved to Rise.
Fifteen years ago, two poor boys from the old town of Plymouth in New England went down to a lonely part of the coast to gather a certain sea weed from the rocks, which when bleached and dried is sold as Irish moss for culinary purposes. The boys lived in a little hut on the beach; they were out before dawn to gather or prepare the moss, which had to be wet with salt water many times, and spread out in the sun until it was thoroughly whitened.
They had one hour each day free from work. One of them spent it lying on the sand asleep. The other had brought out his books and studied for that hour, trying to keep up with his schoolmates. The first boy is now a middle aged man. He still gathers moss on the coast near Plymouth. The second emigrated to Kansas, became the leading man in a new settlement, and is now a wealthy, influential citizen.
"No matter what was my work," he said lately, "I always contrived to give one hour a day to my education. That is the cause of my success in life."—Youth's Companion.

When we consider the patronage of this great office, [the presidency,] the allurements of power, the temptation to retain place once gained, and more than all, the availability a party finds in an incumbent whom a horde of office holders, with a zeal born of benefits and fostered by the hope of favors yet to come, stand ready to aid with money and trained political service, we recognize in the eligibility of the president for re-election a most serious danger to that calm, deliberate and intelligent [illegible] action, which must charac[illegible] by the people.—[illegible]

An extensive domestic market for the surplus produce of the soil is of the first importance to all kinds of business, of all things, that which most efficiently conduces to a flourishing state of agriculture.—Alexander Hamilton.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * and on that broad question Mr Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

We must now place our manufactures by the side of the agriculturist. * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

Men and Women's Bones.
Joints and muscles may escape the agonizing tortures of rheumatism if they will but "take time by the forelock," and immediate the symptoms of oncoming trouble with the benignant and highly sanctioned blood depurent and alternative, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Poisons mostly constitute the ordinary means of battling with this atrocious complaint. Avoid the risk of using these by resorting to the safe as well as effectual antiphlogistic and preventive. After exposures to damp, through drafts and other causes which encourage a rheumatic tendency, a wineglassful of the Bitters prevents ill effects. No surer preventive of malarial ailments like fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake exists, and it is, besides, a most genial recuperator of strength exhausted by excessive mental or physicial effort. Miners, mariners, operatives and others whose avocations involve laborious work in rough weather out of doors, or close application indoors, find it invaluable.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

Didn't Want a Girl.
Last summer my wife's health was all run down, and she wanted me to hire a girl to the work. In a little while I found one I thought would suit her, when to my surprise she said I need not hire any one, as she felt much better, and thought another bottle of Sulpher Bitters would cure her. Donald Grey, 41 Worcester square, Boston.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

We know of no mode of treatment which offers, to sufferers from chronic diseases, a more certain hope of cure than that which is comprehended in the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. For purifying and invigorating the blood, this preparation is unequaled.

The only time England can use a Celt is when he emigrates to America, and votes for free trade. — London Times.

Vincent Lundberg, of Stockholm, Physician-in-Chief to the King of Sweden, recommends Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer for the scalp and hair.

Our manufactures require the systematic and fostering care of the government. * Equally important it is to provide at home a market for our raw materials.—James Monroe.

Hay Fever.
I have been afflicted with hay fever from early in August until frost. My eyes would run a stream of water and I sneezed continually. I was advised to use Ely's Cream Balm. It has worked like a charm and I can say I am entirely cured.—Mrs. Emeline Johnson, Chester, Conn.

I have been for several years a sufferer from hay fever and severe head colds. I have found nothing that can compare with Ely's Cream Balm. I would not be without it for any consideration. It is simply wonderful in its effect upon the nasal organs.—S. A. Burtt, Wilmington, N. C.

President Cleveland declines cautiously to dub himself a free trader, but he caters up a free trade position without disguise —London Saturday Review.

An Important Element
Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

Interested People.
Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way it is advertised by the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for coughs and colds does, is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform. 1888.

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

A CHAPTER ON "LOCUSTS."

Methods of Making Music—Burrowing in the Ground—A Puzzling Question.

There are several kinds of cicada about, including the seventeen-year and the thirteen-year "locusts," which are no locusts at all, but real cicadas. The one that makes most of our summer music is an annual visitor. They all live in the grub state most of their lives, then come out of the ground, crawl up a convenient tree, fasten in their claws, rip open their skins along the back, and then, by a series of patient efforts, crawl out, or back out of the crack, perfect insects. They have now long gauzy wings, wide heads and handsome, large eyes. When they first emerge their wings are folded and wet. Their first need is to dry off; so their wings are slowly unfolded and fanned gently against the air. Meanwhile the juicy creature evaporates a good deal of its bulk, and is soon well shaped for flight.

In about one hour it is ready for flight, and takes a perch higher among the limbs, when the males begin at once to strike their love notes. The music is made by the vibration of chords in a hollow in their sides, behind their wings, the vibration striking a tightly drawn membrane above them. The rapid alternation of contracting and relaxing these chords produces the noise which we call a buzz or whiz. The seventeen and thirteen year cicadas, or "locusts," come out about a month earlier, and their habits while outside, as true insects, are about the same as those of the annual visitor. They eat and lay eggs for about six weeks, and then die. The stridulating noises are not heard beyond August.

I have seen a whole handful of the deserted cases or skins of the pupæ left sticking on the trees about our cottage. It is curious how perfect they stand, and yet how empty. It is still more curious to observe the contrast between the sense organs of the perfect insect and those of the pupæ. The latter has spent his life under ground and is shaped for that sort of life, a narrow head for pushing through the dirt, sharp claws to dig with and no wings. He is peculiarly fitted with organs to secrete abundant moisure and to excrete it, so that as he tunnels his burrows are made waterproof with sticky excretion. As his time for egress comes his skin hardens and he can no longer freely execute, so that the insect that is shaped inside is a sappy, wet affair when it first emerges.

We can trace these changes in the lives of creatures, but can we, after all, explain them? There are no mechanical laws that can account for the transformation from underground burrowers to big eyed, broad winged flying creatures. Still more impossible is it to explain the law or instinct of love that brings the sexes together and begins another round of existence. The mother cicada lays her eggs near the tips of limbs of ash, or hickory, or oak, or maple trees. In about six weeks they hatch, and immediately fall or jump to the ground and begin to burrow. The seventeen year sort burrows during all that number of years and then comes out for its brief life of wings and love. But the annual sort, of course, only burrows for about ten months or a little more.

I wish you would explain to me how they ever learned to do this work, either below or above ground. John tells me to read Darwin and I will find that it came about by a natural process, or "natural selection." That the first cicada was a creature that tried to hide itself, and burrowed slightly. Those that burrowed best were safest, and so the burrowing instinct was slowly formed. But how about these seventeen year creatures? I suppose a good deal of our trouble in thinking out these problems is because we have no idea how tiny brains or mere nerve centers think and what they are capable of purposing. Very clearly, we do not do so much of the thinking of the world as we sometimes suppose that we do. And those people who deny reason of any sort to the animal world simply show that they themselves are unable to reason. There is thought all about us, and planning, and memory, and deliberate adaptation. When you say the insect works by instinct, you have still to explain instinct. —Mary E. Spencer in Globe-Democrat.

The Yellow Fever Bacillus.

Dr. H. C. Bernays was asked what he knew about the yellow fever bacillus.

"Nothing, and I do not believe any one does. Dr. Domingo Frere, of Rio Janeiro, claims to have identified it, and his utterances and writings created a profound sensation, but sanitarians and physicians do not accept his conclusion. Two American physicians, one an unknown in Nebraska, have claimed to have made the same discovery. Personally, I do not believe that the micrococci in this disease have been identified at all. Dr. Brewer, of this city, a profound student and experimenter in this branch of medical science, I understand, repudiates the Brazilian theory.

"As to the destruction of microbes, it is my opinion that any forces, such as gases or heat, that will destroy the germs will also destroy all vegetable and animal life coming within their influence. The medical profession knows a great deal about disease germs. The bacillus of consumption has been discovered, identified and photographed, yet the forces necessary to the extermination of the germs will surely kill the patient. Privately, I think that the man who got up this scheme of bombarding the microbes, is a student of human nature who, by this means of a supposed struggle with the disease, seeks to divert the minds of the people from the peril which surrounds them. The cannonading can do no harm, and if it makes some people believe that it is doing good, why so much is gained." —Globe-Democrat.

How to Treat Suspicions.

There are two ways to dispose of a suspicion, and one of these should always be accepted. It may either be sifted to the bottom, and its truth or error be established once for all, or it may be abandoned as unworthy of a place in the thoughts. Which of these two methods to adopt must depend upon many circumstances. If there are grave interests to justice involved, as in the case of supposed dishonesty, if the fault we fear is one with which we have personal concern, and if the suspicion appears to be well founded, then undoubtedly it is our duty to examine it.—Once a Week.

New Appliances for Firemen.

An exhibition was recently given in Westminster, near London, England, of Loeb's appliances, which are designed to enable the wearer to breathe and work with comfort in dense smoke, and also in poisonous gases. The appliance consists of a respirator with an india rubber mouthpiece. The respirator is held by two projections, which are grasped between the teeth, and a flange, which lies between the teeth and the lips, additional security being provided by an elastic band passing around the head. The air is drawn in by the wearer through a series of small filters containing respectively wet sponge, cotton wool, cotton wool damped with glycerine and animal charcoal. These filters are very lightly packed, so that there is no resistance to the act of inspiration, and they are provided with valves which direct the air expired from the lungs into the external atmosphere. The entire apparatus weighs less than a pound, and can be used without previous practice.

When it is to be employed in an atmosphere which is deadly in its character as in the choke damp of mines, the air is drawn from some place where it is pure, through a light india rubber tube. The filter is then strapped to the waist of the wearer, and the respirator merely contains the valves which cause the air to be drawn through the pipe and then to expire into the atmosphere. A tube up to a hundred feet in length can be used with facility. Protection is afforded to the eyes by a pair of spectacles with india rubber rims which press tightly on the cheek and brow, and exclude all smoke. Mechanical wipers are added to enable the glasses to be cleaned without removal. A man wearing the respirator spent half an hour in a building filled with dense smoke of a most pungent character without any difficulty, and afterward the inventor's representative, with the aid of a flexible air pipe, entered a room containing a dish of burning sulphur and remained there some time. It was clearly demonstrated that the respirator would enable the wearer to enter a building filled with smoke and discover the exact position of a fire. A few buckets of water promptly applied under such circumstances will do more good than the jet from a steam fire engine directed at random. On board ship, where the result of a fire is to fill the hold with smoke, this respirator would be most useful, and this fact has been recognized in the German navy, where Loeb's respirators form part of the official equipment.—London Engineer.

Safe Deposit for the Dead.

"The mausoleum safe deposit plan" is the name of a project which a New York citizen has conceived and submitted through the newspapers for public ratification. The mausoleum will be built on the safe deposit idea, save that the openings will be larger and that they will receive human bodies instead of government bonds, stocks and jewelry. The box will be hermetically sealed immediately after the body has been put in. The front door of marble will not be put in its place for several days afterward. The inventor contemplates that there shall be from 1,000 to 10,000 vaults, that the mausoleum shall be built of concrete and shall be from three to six stories high and so constructed as to be indefinitely extended. Elevators will be used the same as in other buildings. The gases escaping from the bodies will be forced by means of an ingenious system of ventilation into the basement of the structure, where they will be consumed in a central furnace.

The remains so treated will become desiccated and will be free from offensive odor or sanitary objection. There can be no premature burial by this plan, because electric apparatus will sound an alarm upon the slightest movement in the coffin. The inventor claims the following advantages for his invention: "That it will cost less than other methods; that it will provide absolute protection against bodies being stolen; that it will provide a place for last funeral rites where friends can stand with uncovered heads in the severest weather without being exposed to the elements; that it will provide for the preservation and care of the remains for a time, and that it will meet the sanitary demand that the dead shall not become a source of danger to the living, and the medico-legal demand that the evidence of crime shall not be destroyed."—Detroit Free Press.

How Chinamen "Squeeze" Foreigners.

The Chinaman looks upon a foreigner as lawful prey, and as the victim does not make his appearance every day, advantage must be taken of the present opportunity. The process is very properly called "squeezing." They seem to imagine the foreigner is loaded with dollars. When he comes on the scene the name of money becomes kun (silver) rather than chien (bronze cash). Times without number we have heard passers by on road and river congratulate our men on the "good job" they have on hand, feeling sure the stranger could not have escaped at least a small amount of "squeezing." "Ha! Lo-ah! Ten dollars that job?" It is probably not more than one or two dollars; but our men laugh back the jest, "It has a shadow—it is real—forty dollars, you mean!" As a rule, missionaries expect to pay half as much again as a native gentleman. The plan is a wise one, for the extra sum is very small, and the hard working coolies keep on good terms with us. We have known foreign merchants pay eight and ten times the proper fare; but the Chinese do not respect them any more for their reckless expenditure, and are only demoralized by it.—Boston Bulletin.

Byron and His Dietetics.

Lord Byron was remarkably abstemious, owing to a morbid fear of obesity. For a long period of time he lived upon soda water and biscuits. At another time, according to Moore, "A thin slice of bread, with tea at breakfast, a light vegetable dinner, with a bottle or two of seltzer water, tinged with vin de Grave, and in the evening a cup of green tea, without milk or sugar, formed the whole of his sustenance. The pangs of hunger he appeased by privately chewing tobacco and smoking cigars." In Greece Byron lived upon dry bread, vegetables and cheese; and, to ascertain the effect of his dietetics, he used to measure his wrist and waist every morning, taking medicine if he found an increase.—London Standard.

BILIOUSNESS.

THIS very common complaint, which is caused by a dormant or inactive liver, can be cured in a short time by using Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, as can also the various diseases arising from inactive liver or kidneys. These organs, if inactive, will allow impure blood to enter the heart, causing tightness about that organ and palpitation.

She suffered thirty years.

MRS. DUDLEY CHANDLER, of Melrose, Mass., says: "I had suffered with Palpitation of the Heart more than thirty years before I found anything to give me essential relief. Last fall I tried Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, and, remarkable as it was, this Compound relieved me in two days, so that for several months afterwards I felt not the slightest touch of it, and am perfectly free from it now. Sometimes, before I took this Compound, the pulsations of my heart were so violent as to shake my whole body with rapid agitations, and at times I fainted and became entirely insensible. Now I am perfectly free from all this suffering. Consequently I can most sincerely and earnestly recommend this Compound to all like sufferers, as pre-eminently the best medicine I ever knew for Palpitation of the Heart."

Ingalls' Mandrake Compound is sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles for $5. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

A PERFECT COMBINATION

Of harmless vegetable remedies that will restore the whole system to healthy action, is absolutely needed to cure any disease "for the disease that affects one organ weakens all." Paine's Celery Compound is THIS PERFECT COMBINATION. Read the proofs!

"I have suffered terribly from nervous[illegible] and kidney trouble. I bought two bottles of Paine's Celery Compound, and oh, how it did help me! I have so much faith in your medicine, for I know what it did for me." MRS. J. J. WATSON. Ontario Centre, N. Y.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

"For five years I suffered with malaria and nervousness. I tried Paine's Celery Compound, and I can truthfully say that five bottles completely cured me. I cheerfully recommend it, for I know it to be a good medicine." CHAS. L. STEARNS, Letter Carrier, Station B, Brooklyn, N. Y.

An Important Announcement

About six weeks ago, while at business, I was suddenly attacked with excruciating pains in my feet, knees and hands. So severe the attack that I took my bed immediately, and in two or three days my joints were swollen to almost double their natural size, and sleep was driven from me. After suffering the most excruciating pain for a week, using liniments and various other remedies, a friend who sympathized with my helpless condition, said to me:

"Why don't you get Swift's Specific and use it. I will guarantee a cure, and if it does not the medicine shall cost you nothing."

I at once secured the S. S. S., and after using it the first day, had a quiet night and refreshing sleep. In a week I felt greatly benefitted. In three weeks I could sit up and walk about the room, and after using six bottles I was out and able to go to business. Since then I have been regularly at my post of duty, and stand on my feet from nine to ten hours a day, and am entirely free from pain. These are the plain and simple facts in my case, and I will cheerfully answer all inquiries relative thereto, either in person or by mail. THOMAS MARKILLIE, 11 W. 13th street, New York City.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—I have warded off a severe attack of rheumatism by a timely resort to Swift's Specific. In all cases where a permanent relief is sought this medicine commends itself for a constitutional treatment that thoroughly eradicates the seeds of disease from the system. Rev. W. P. HARRISON, D. D.

NEW YORK, 51 THE AVE.—After spending $200 to be relieved of Blood Poison without any benefit, a few bottles of Swift's Specific worked a perfect cure. C. FORTES.

VIENNA, GA.—My little girl, aged six, and boy, aged four years, had scrofula in the worst aggravated shape. They were puny and sickly. To-day they are healthy and robust, all the result of taking S. S. S. JOE T. COLLIER.

LADY LAKE, SUMTER CO., FLA.—Your S. S. S. has proved a wonderful success in my case. The cancer on my face, no doubt, would have soon harried me to my grave. I do think it is wonderful, and has no equal. B. H. BYRD, Postmaster.

WACO, TEXAS, May 9, 1883.

S. S. S., Atlanta, Ga.:

Gentlemen—Knowing that you appreciate voluntary testimonials, we take pleasure in stating that one of our lady customers has regained her health by the use of four large bottles of your great remedy, after having been an invalid for several years. Her trouble was extreme debility, caused by a disease peculiar to her sex. WILLIS & CO., Druggists.

The Cuban Hurricane.

The first reports of the damage done by the recent hurricane in Cuba were not exaggerated. At Sagua one hundred corpses have been discovered which were washed from graves, and it is believed that as many more are in the mangrove bushes. Between Carapachos and Carahats sixteen coasting schooners are high and dry in the woods, damaged to such an extent that they will be a total loss. At Santo Domingo city the dead exceed fifty and the injured over seventy-five. At Cayo-Francis the lighthouse was blown down and the inmates were drowned, and two large unknown vessels were wrecked. At Caibarien forty-six natives were known to have perished. In Vuelta Abajo the semilleros of tobacco were completely destroyed, and warehouses wherein leaf was stored were demolished and the tobacco completely ruined. The number of dwellings and outhouses blown down in the district is estimated at 3500 and the loss at $1,500,000. The total number of deaths throughout the island is stated at 800.

The Yellow Fever.

Forty-four new cases of fever, and four deaths, at Jacksonville on the 13th. Ten skilled nurses, with a supply of lemons, ice and other necessaries, arrived at McClenny from the Red Cross society at New Orleans on the 13th.

Over 500 refugees from Jacksonville arrived at Hendersonville, N. C., on the 13th, on their way north. No one was allowed to leave the train there.

Damascus Commandery of Knights Templar of Jacksonville, Florida, has sent an appeal to sir knights throughout the country for aid for the yellow fever sufferers. It is proposed to establish a hospital directly under the auspices of the Knights Templar. Henry E. Hosley of 567 Dorchester avenue, Boston, Mass., is designated as one who is to receive contributions from eminent commanders.

New Hampshire Items.

Capt. Moses Hoyt of Hopkinton, a noted militia officer in former years, is dead at the age of eighty-eight.

The republican Log Cabin on the railroad square at Great Falls was dedicated on the evening of the 13th. Addresses were made by Hon. Alonzo Nute of Farmington and Rev. Mr. Dutton of Great Falls. Several flags were hoisted, and the French band of Great Falls, the South Berwick cornet bandand a drum corps, furnished music. A great crowd attended.

The annual conclave of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of the state of New Hampshire will be held at the asylum of Mt. Horeb Commandery, Concord, on Tuesday, September 25th, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon.

Andrew McDonough of Dover has been appointed a railway mail clerk between Boston and North Conway.

A Harrison and Morton flag flying on Second street, Dover, was destroyed by a gang of democratic roughs on the night of the 13th inst.

Aaron King, for twenty-five years a conductor on the Worcester & Nashua railroad, was stricken with paralysis at his home in Nashua on the 12th inst.

News and Notes.

At an inquest on a Cheshire, Eng., farm servant it was testified that the deceased, only nineteen years old, had worked the whole of that week, getting only three hours' rest each night. A companion of the dead man said: "It is the custom. If you won't go somebody else will." And American farm laborers are asked to vote for free trade.

Mrs. Scott Parton, a North Carolina woman, was murdered, presumably by her husband, who was arrested, so the authorities thought, and imprisoned at Raleigh; but it was found that he was not Parton, and after lying a long time in jail has been identified as Robert Leeson Porter, the heir of an Irish estate. The fright and excitement due to the false imprisonment drove him crazy, and when he was released he walked over 100 miles in four days. He was placed in an asylum, and is likely to recover.

The greatest span of a cantilever bridge is that of the Forth in Scotland, which will be finished in October, 1889. It has two of 1710 feet each. Its extreme height will be 351 feet above high water, the foundations going ninety-one feet below high water.

Five years ago a Christian police association was organized in London. It has now a membership of 4000 and 153 branches, which extend as far as Singapore, Tasmania, South Africa, and Canada.

A German company of actors that recently appeared at Brussels produced a sensation with a bear, which pursued a terrified man across the stage and up and down the mountain passes, the man appearing to the spectators to be in imminent danger of falling into the deadly embrace of the animal. A bear lacking the necessary dramatic intelligence, and being a costly expense, the management has substituted a dog, clad, tail, legs and body, in bear skin, with a well-executed bear-mask. The dog has taken to the part with a good will, and terrifies the spectators.

At the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, held at Columbus, Ohio, on the 13th inst., Major William Warner of Missouri was elected commander in chief; Colonel Moses Neil of Ohio was elected senior vice commander; Rev. S. G. Updike of Dakota chaplain-in-chief; and R. M. Dewitt of Iowa, surgeon-general.

Alva M. Valencia, conductor, and Lawrence Hunter, porter, of the "Monarch" sleeping car running between Boston and Fabyans, have been arrested for the theft of a diamond pin left in the car by a passenger. The setting has been recovered. The porter says he swallowed the diamond. At a hearing at Woodsville, both waived examination, and were held in $800 each for the supreme court.

The cotton crop of the United States for year ended Sept. 1st, 1888, as compiled by the Financial Chronicle, amounts to 7,017,707 bales against 6,513,661 bales in 1887 and 6,550,215 bales in 1886. Of the crop of 1887 there was exported 4,683,981 bales, while spinners took 2,330,294 bales, leaving a stock on hand of 181,225 bales. The largest previous crop was that of 1882-83, which amounted to 5,992,230 bales.

The Prince of Wales owes $500,000. That may explain why the English-imitating dudes of this country never pay their tailors. It must be good form to be in debt.

The Lake Erie & Western railroad has issued an order to its employees forbidding them to flirt with the female patrons of the road. True it is that corporations have no souls.

It is stated that George M. Pullman had but $50 when he was twenty-ones years of age. That isn't worth bragging about, for thousands of men have less than that when they get to be fifty-one years old.

Laura Lent, nineteen years old, has been arrested in New York, charged with the larceny of diamonds valued at $800, from a jewelry store. She confessed.

Evaporating apples has become an immense business in and around Rochester, N. Y. Within a radius of forty miles from that city there are 1500 evaporators ready for use as soon as the apples come in. Five million bushels of apples are thus utilized, requiring 15,000 tons of coal and employing some 30,000 people in doing the work.

A volume of Matthew Arnold's miscellaneous essays, which have not hitherto been collected, will, it is said, be published about the end of this year.

Two young women have opened a drug store in Buffalo, and the number of young men who are so sick that they are constantly in need of pills and powders is simply appalling.

There are eight mission ships now cruising in the North sea, each a combination of church, chapel, temperance hall and dispensary.

About a month since a very handsome and valuable pair of cattle were stolen from Marshall Walker of Fryeburg, Me. On Friday, the 7th inst., they were driven through Newport, this state, and on the following Sunday parties arrived on their track, having followed them from Maine. They were overtaken in Charlestown, and the party having them in charge arrested. While being taken through the streets in Charlestown by an officer, the thief tripped up the officer, drew a pistol and made his escape. The thief had a large quantity of money with him, and had just made arrangements to sell the cattle when overtaken. He is evidently a desperate character. The oxen were shipped by rail from Charlestown to Fryeburg on the 12th inst.

Mme. Modjeska's trained bloodhound died in California, and was buried in an expensive coffin on the actress' ranch in Los Angeles county.

The chief reason for Moltke's resignation, expressed in his letter to Emperor William, is that "at my great age I am no longer able to mount a horse."

Mayor Hewitt will review the parade of Italians in New York, Sept. 20th, in celebration of the capture of Rome.

The minority report of the Congressional printing committee, which has been investigating the charges against public printer Benedict, makes most interesting reading. Soldiers have been discharged by wholesale, soldiers' widows and children have been grossly insulted, criminals have been knowingly and freely employed, records altered, and the whole public printing establishment turned into a wholesale vote factory for Cleveland and reform, while Benedict is shown to be guilty of many impeachable crimes. Such criminal conduct of a great public institution is absolutely unparalleled, and would disgrace the public service of Turkey or Egypt.

The Hon. Carl Schurz, who is now travelling in Germany, has written a letter to the National Zeitung, combating an article which appeared recently in the Kreuz Zeitung, on the corruption incident to American elections. Mr. Schurz attacks especially the assertion that the presidential election is from first to last merely an affair of money. He declares that this dishonoring suspicion cast upon the American national character is unjust, and denies that political life in the United States is in anywise so corrupt a pandemonium as the Kreuz Zeitung represents. The American nation, he says, is staunch, good-hearted and self-respecting.

Ex-Judge A. J. Dittenhoefer, as counsel for Margaret Mather Haberkorn, the actress, will immediately begin a suit against Manager J. M. Hill, to recover about $30,000, the amount of money he deducted from the actress' share of the profits of the first season she appeared under his management, to pay for the losses incurred in her long season at the Union Square theatre in New York. Judge Ingraham of the New York supreme court held that the manager and the star were not partners, and he refused to find, at the request of Hill's lawyers, that Mr. Hill had fully accounted to Miss Mather, that he was not indebted to her, or that the investments he made on her behalf were made with her consent.

Hotter the Weather Bigger the Proof.

As the weather grows warm, the sale of James Pyle's Pearline Washing Compound rapidly increases. This proves that many women recognize the fact that PEARLINE makes washing and cleaning very much easier than when done with the ordinary means. Proves also that summer clothing, being of delicate texture and color, will not stand the rough usage necessary when washed with soap, and establishes the fact that PEARLINE, in doing away with the rubbing, lessens the wear and tear and fills a very important place. Delightful for bathing in fresh or salt water. Its ingredients render it harmless to the most delicate skin. Especially during the hot weather it is to your advantage to use PEARLINE, and only humane to supply your servants with it, and thus lighten their labors; besides you insure much better results. Beware of imitations. JAMES PYLE, New York.

Peculiar

Many peculiar points make Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines. Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom. Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "One Hundred Doses One Dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's. Peculiar in its medicinal merits, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won for itself the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered." Peculiar in its "good name at home,"—there is now more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers. Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time, and retained its popularity and confidence among all classes of people so steadfastly.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Is Peculiar to Itself

MUSIC HALL.

The "Three Blind Mice" had a good audience at Music hall on Friday evening, and kept the audience convulsed with laughter from first to last, there being a steady improvement from the start to the close. There is a good deal of good music in the piece, and it was all finely rendered. It is a thoroughly amusing piece of absurdity, thickly sprinkled with pleasing musical gems.

NOTHING SERIOUS.

The alarm of fire from box fourteen, corner of Market and Russell streets, Friday morning, was occasioned by a slight fire at No. 7 Green street, in the tenent occupied by Daniel Barrett. The fire was caused by a young son of his playing with matches in a chamber, the bed clothes being set on fire. Fire was extinguished with a few buckets of water. Loss trifling.

PROBABLY A MURRER.

John Sarchfield, who was arrested in Salmon Falls on the 13th inst. on suspicion of having murdered his wife the previous evening, was born in Salmon Falls, and formerly worked in the Salmon Falls and Great Falls mills. He is a loom fixer, and is thirty-six years old. His wife was formerly Annie McDermott, and was twenty-six years old. They have been married about nine years, and have two children, girls, one aged seven and one two. Mrs. Sarchfield has been employed as a spinner in the Portsmouth Co.'s mill at South Berwick landing, and went out on Monday, the 10th, to attend the wedding of her brother. She told the overseer at the mill on the 12th that she would be at work on the 13th. Her husband has been employed as a loom fixer by the Portsmouth Co. since April last, until the 10th inst., when he was discharged for non-attention to duty. He has had occasional sprees, and his wife has left him several times on account of ill treatment. He denies having harmed his wife, his story being that he arrived home from Portsmouth about 6:30 o'clock on the evening of the 12th, somewhat intoxicated; ate his supper alone, and then went into the woodshed and found the woman there in distress; carried her into the house and went for help, but before help arrived she was dead. Sarchfield is a member of the South Berwick Cadet band, and was last year employed as a loom fixer in the Cocheco mill at Dover.

The coroner's inquest into the cause of Mrs. Sarchfield's death was begun on the afternoon of the 13th inst., with Samuel Hale, Edwin A. Stevens and Wm. R. Garvin as a jury. Doctors Ham, Sleeper and Gerrish testified that the woman met her death at the hands of some person armed with a blunt instrument. They testified that there were four contusions on the head, any one of which would have been sufficient to have caused death. There was one on the back of the head, one on each temple, and another extending across the forehead. In plain terms, the medical experts testified that the woman was murdered. The other evidence adduced tended to show that the woman's death was the result of a drunken row, she being sober and her husband drunk, and he the murderer. Hon. Daniel Hall of Dover conducted the inquest.

The jury at a late hour on the 14th returned a verdict to the effect that Mrs. Sarchfield came to her death from the effects of blows inflicted by the fists and feet of her husband, and from deadly implements in his hands, and he is guilty of murder in so causing her death.

RAILROAD ITEMS.

The following is from the Boston Advertiser: "The late decline in Eastern is believed to have been due to the selling of stock for the account of a once prominent Boston operator. This stock having been thought to come from insiders, induced traders to offer the stock down. We can state on high authority that the gross earnings of the entire Boston & Maine system for the first nine months of the fiscal year have increased $650,000 over the same period of last year. * * * The trustees of the Eastern railroad sinking fund have $600,000 in cash, and at the end of this fiscal year, September 30th, will have $100,000 more. But this is not usually included as an asset of Eastern, though continually reducing its debt. We cannot say that there is yet a dividend on Eastern railroad stock earnsd or assured of payment for the year ending September 30th, but we feel pretty certain that there is nothing new concerning the stock beyond the late selling and increase in gross returns. The increase in operating expenses we noted some time since. The cost of the Bradford disaster, of the 'Concord fight,' and of other extraordinary expenses has necessitated the borrowing of more than $500,000 in the loan market, and some $800,000 improvement bonds are expected to issue in a few months. But the gratifying fact remains that the volume of traffic is the largest ever handled, and increasing. Even the gross earnings of the Lowell road have increased. While for summer travel this has been an 'off' year, yet the passenger earnings of the Boston & Maine system are known to have increased in July. The net earnings of the Boston & Maine and Eastern increased in June by $65,000, giving promise of fair net returns for the last quarter of the year. Another year there should be an absence of the extraordinary expenses of this year, and Central Massachusetts, which failed to earn its expenses the first six months by $90,000 should do better, and the Worcester & Nashua should be less of a drag. Consolidation upon the basis of the present year's operations could hardly be satisfactory to the Eastern, and therefore this company has declined the recent proposition from the Boston & Maine."

General Manager Tucker of the Maine Central railroad, in his announcement of the withdrawal of the Boston and Mt. Desert vestibule train on the 10th inst. said: "The success of the limited train during the season of 1888 has fulfilled the highest hopes of its projectors. Its patronage, far exceeding that of the previous and initial year, has demonstrated the fact that such service is desired and appreciated, and completely establishes the Boston and Mt. Desert limited among the magnificent train services of the country. Confident that in retaining this train in commission until the above date the great tide of tourist travel is subserved, the management, in withdrawing it at the close of the season of 1888, wish to thank its patrons, and hope that they may renew their acquaintance with the limited in 1889."

Mr. Ezra Bradbury has resigned as station agent at Kittery Junction—the new name of what for many years has been Kittery Depot—his resignation taking effect Monday morning, Sept. 17th. Mr. George W. Damon of Kittery, for several years past the careful and efficient gate tender at the Noble's island bridge, has been appointed station master in his place—the promotion of a first-class man to a responsible position. Mr. Bradbury assisted in building the Portland, Saco & Portsmouth road, and has been in the employ of the company ever since, for over twenty years of the time as station master at Kittery. He retires now on account of age.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

The undersigned would inform his friends and the public that his place of business will be closed for a short time in order to make alterations and improvements. JOHN S. RAND,

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Moses, wife of Capt. John G. Moses of Maplewood avenue, has arrived home from a two months stay in the western states.

Mr. John Senter of Austin street, eighty-four years old, has gone to Kingston for a rest.

Post-office Inspector John H. Bano was in this city on Friday.

Mrs. James W. Wingate and daughter, Miss Annie M. Wingate, of Austins treet, are visiting friends at Allston, Mass.

The coasting schooner Chilion, Chickmaster, arrived at the Congress street bridge, Boston, Sept. 13th, in eight hours and seven minutes from York bridge. This trip is not to be beaten by every boat.

Information wanted of a boy named Howard H. Meyers, who ran away from home Aug. 29th and was traced to Springfield, Mass. He is supposed to be intent on going to sea. He is nearly fifteen years of age, about five feet high and looks delicate, has light grey eyes, dark brown hair, sallow complexion and has a corner broken off one of his upper front teeth. He is implored to return home, and any information about him will be gratefully received by his anxious parents.

The tug Cocheco is laid up at Jones' wharf preparatory to being repainted and having some alterations made. We understand that her engine will be changed from high to low pressure. During the time that the Cocheco is laid up the tug Ann will act in her place.

Following is a complete list of the Maine state senators and representatives elected in York county on the 10th inst., all of whom are republicans except the representatives from Biddeford and Kennebunkport, three in all: Senators—Robert Lord, Kennebunk; Lucius H. Randall's printing and bookbinding establishment an electric moter, to be used for running his presses. This is the first electric motor introduced in this city.

Mr. J. L. O. Coleman's handsome mare, which he recently purchased of Mr. John Parsons, has improved greatly in speed. Mr. Coleman has recently returned with her from a trip in the country, and under his direction she has developed into quite a promising trotter.

There was an auction sale of old material at Fort Constitution, Newcastle, on Thursday last, and a similar sale at Fort McClary, Kittery, on Friday. As the proposed sales had been made known only to the friends of the administration, the attendance was small, and the materials went at give-away prices. Whether the two useless forts were sold to the junk dealers, or not, we are not informed.

Don't Wait

Until your hair becomes dry, thin, and gray before giving the attention needed to preserve its beauty and vitality. Keep on your toilet-table a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor—the only dressing you require for the hair—and use a little, daily, to preserve the natural color and prevent baldness.

Thomas Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky., writes: "Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. Tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best hair-restorer in the world."

"My hair was faded and dry," writes Mabel C. Hardy, of Delavan, Ill.; "but after using a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it became black and glossy."

OH! MY HEAD.

The pain from Neuralgia and its companion disease Rheumatism is excruciating. Thousands who could be quickly cured are needlessly suffering. Athlophoros will do for others what it did for the following parties:

Williamsport, Ind., Oct. 2, 1887.

Having been afflicted with neuralgia for the past four years, and trying almost everything, but in vain, I finally heard of Athlophoros. After taking one bottle I found it to be helping me, and after taking four bottles of Athlophoros and one of Pills, I found that I was entirely well. I think the medicine is positively a sure cure.

WHAT IS SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms legs, or feet; which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

A CURE FOR POVERTY.

Richard A. Proctor's Plan for Preventing It—Everybody Eats Too Much.

Richard A. Proctor, in an article, "A Remedy for Poverty," in The Cosmopolitan Magazine, makes some original statements, which, if acted upon, might reduce the expenses of every household and in so doing alleviate some of the poverty. He finds that the dietary of soldiers, sailors, artisans and prisoners in England averages 143 ounces of solid and liquid food consumed daily per man. This amount modern doctors agree is in excess of the real daily requirements of a healthy man or woman, and that they would thrive better and enjoy life better on half the quantity.

During the Franco-Prussian war the government, desiring to have their soldiers in prime condition, supplied to each man daily a sausage, weighing one pound, made of pea flour, bacon, sage and other ingredients. This was all the solid food the army had during the arduous campaign, yet they thrived and grew fat, and worked harder and better than when rations were more liberal.

The improvement in health, if this forced regime is pursued, will be noticeable at once, and the expenses for eatables reduced almost one-half. It will also develop an appetite for plain and healthy things, and the poor man will take more delight in his frugal fare and experience more gastronomic pleasure in its consumption than the millionaire with all his epicurean delicacies at command.

It is urged that few people know what an influence this food question has had in determining the amount of freedom that the bulk of the community enjoys. The difference in effects must be distinguished between mere cheapness of food and abstemiousness in the use of food which enables men to put by a part of their earnings and so obtain independence.

It is not desirable to live in a country where life can be supported for a mere nothing, because the incentive to labor is lost and the people become lazy and improvident. In illustration of this, the Peruvians and Mexicans of old times lived chiefly on bananas, which grew as prolific as weeds. They throve for awhile and multiplied, until the overproduction of population brought them to a most degraded condition.

The workingman may not be able to become a capitalist by such savings as would result from halving—let us suppose—the amount of food that so many in all classes consume to their detriment, writes Mr. Proctor, but the saving of two or three dollars weekly in the expenses of the workingman and his family (supposed to include two or three other workers) would signify in the course of only a few years a sum which, to such a family, would be of great importance, not merely for what it could purchase, but for the anxieties that it would remove, even though for many years not a cent of it were touched, and it underwent no change but the increase resulting from the steady accumulation of interest.

It may seem to many readers that all this is very trite. It is nothing but the old lesson that we can most of us save a portion of our expenses, and that small savings, steadily made, mount up in the long run to large sums. There may be recognized, however, these points of novelty in what I have suggested:

First, the diminished outlay for food is not only indicated as an effective remedy against poverty, but as a means of securing improved health and longer lasting life, and secondly, the indirect gain is scarcely less than these direct advantages, nay, may even be regarded as greater, if we consider that life is scarce worth living without freedom, and that there can be no full freedom even under the freest form of government where the bulk of the community is hampered in means.

The effects, further, of the diminished struggle for life would be important, as depriving capital of much of that portion of its control over labor which must be regarded as unjust and injurious. Were such care shown in the due limitation of the food supplies of the bulk of the community as seems desirable, the steady though slow accumulations of small capital in the hands of the many would in the long run enable the working classes, without strikes or other undesirable interruptions of the progress of trade, to secure just wages—seeing that they would no longer have occasion to make forced sales of their labor, as practically they now so often do.

In the course of somewhat longer but quite measurable time intervals there would arise an appreciably more even distribution of capital than at present prevails. Labor would rise in relative value, while in absolute value capital would at least not diminish, even if it did not actually increase.—New York Journal.

A Noted Preacher's Method.

I take a great deal of outdoor exercise, either by walking or in a carriage. I retire early and rise early, invariably at the same hours every day. I indulge in light gymnastic exercises almost daily, and bathe three times a week during the summer in water that is comfortable to the feelings, and twice a week during the cold weather. I believe in the old saying that "cleanliness is next to godliness," for without it and attention to diet, it is of little use to try to keep from disease. There is nothing like a correct diet and a well regulated general regimen. Considering the many dangers to which the average man is exposed, it is surprising that he should remain in health so long as he does. But parental nature frequently repairs the injury, unknown to him. I believe that, if a man eats sparingly and drinks little, he is sure of bringing no ill health upon himself, and that a moderate supply of food nourishes the body best. The quantity of food which nature really requires for her support is small, and he that lives temperately and drinks moderately at each meal, as Hippocrates says, stands fair to enjoy sprightliness, vivacity and freedom of spirits.—Rev. T. De Witt Talmage.

Strength of Actresses.

Fanny Davenport is said to be the strongest woman on the stage. She has a powerful physique and the best of health. Modjeska, although very frail looking, is physically strong. She thinks that she developed her muscle as a young girl by breaking the loaf sugar for the family, and in after years by churning butter on her ranch in California.—Cleveland Leader.

When we consider the patronage of this great office, [the presidency,] the allurements of power, the temptation to retain place once gained, and more than all, the availability a party finds in an incumbent whom a horde of office holders, with a zeal born of benefits and fostered by the hope of favors yet to come, stand ready to aid with money and trained political service, we recognize in the eligibility of the president for re-election a most serious danger to that calm, deliberate and intelligent political action, which must characterize a government by the people.—Grover Cleveland.

An extensive domestic market for the surplus produce of the soil is of the first consequence. It is, of all things, that which most effectually conduces to a flourishing state of agriculture.—Alexander Hamilton.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * and on that broad question Mr Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

We must now place our manufactures by the side of the agriculturist. * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

Men and Women's Bones.

Joints and muscles may escape the agonizing tortures of rheumatism if they will but "take time by the forelock," and annihilate the symptoms of oncoming trouble with the benignant and highly sanctioned blood depurent and alternative, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Poisons mostly constitute the ordinary means of battling with this atrocious complaint. Avoid the risk of using these by resorting to the safe as well as effectual antiphlogistic and preventive. After exposures to damp, through drafts and other causes which encourage a rheumatic tendency, a wineglassful of the Bitters prevents ill effects. No surer preventive of malarial ailments like fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake exists, and it is, besides, a most genial recuperator of strength exhausted by excessive mental or physical effort. Miners, mariners, operatives and others whose avocations involve laborious work in rough weather out of doors, or close application indoors, find it invaluable.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

Didn't Want a Girl.

Last summer my wife's health was all run down, and she wanted me to hire a girl to the work. In a little while I found one I thought would suit her, when to my surprise she said I need not hire any one, as she felt much better, and thought another bottle of Snipher Bitters would cure her. Donald Grey, 41 Worcester square, Boston.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

We know of no mode of treatment which offers, to sufferers from chronic diseases, a more certain hope of cure than that which is comprehended in the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. For purifying and invigorating the blood, this preparation is unequaled.

The only time England can use a Celt is when he emigrates to America, and votes for free trade. — London Times.

Vincent Lundberg, of Stockholm, Physician-in-Chief to the King of Sweden, recommends Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer for the scalp and hair.

Our manufactures require the systematic and fostering care of the government. * * Equally important it is to provide at home a market for our raw materials.—James Monroe.

Hay Fever.

I have been afflicted with hay fever from early in August until frost. My eyes would run a stream of water and I sneezed continually. I was advised to use Ely's Cream Balm. It has worked like a charm and I can say I am entirely cured.—Mrs. Emeline Johnson, Chester, Conn.

I have been for several years a sufferer from hay fever and severe head colds. I have found nothing that can compare with Ely's Cream Balm. I would not be without it for any consideration. It is simply wonderful in its effect upon the nasal organs.—S. A. Burtt, Wilmington, N. C.

President Cleveland declines cautiously to dub himself a free trader, but he caters up a free trade position without disguise —London Saturday Review.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for coughs and colds does, is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. tuc12

It is certain that the arguments which President Cleveland urges are those which Cobden used to employ forty-five years ago, and which any free trader could employ now.—London Times.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. mon.wed.fri.eoj1

The Population of Portsmouth

is about 10,000, and we would say at least one-half are troubled with some affection of the throat and lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all our readers not to neglect the opportunity to call at their druggist and get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Trial size free. Large bottles 50c. and $1. Sold by all druggists. sep22 a man for groaning when he has Rheumatism or Neuralgia. The pain is simply awful. No torture in the ancient times was more painful than these twin diseases. But—oughtn't a man to be blamed if, having Rheumatism or Neuralgia, he wont use Ath-lo-pho-ros, when it has cured thousands who have suffered in the same way? It has cured hundreds after physicians have pronounced them incurable.

"The skill of five physicians could not cure me of Rheumatism which had settled in the hips, neck and shoulders. So intense was the pain that sleep was almost impossible. The first dose of Athlophoros gave me relief, and the third enabled me to sleep for four and a half hours without waking. I continued its use, and am now well."

It is now stated in New York that it was Mr. George Law, the millionaire, who recently gave $15,000 for the yellow fever sufferers.

Mrs. Mary C. Murray of Brooklyn, N. Y., has engaged counsel to bring an action for $50,000 damages against George Morford, a millionaire of Bridgeport, Conn., for breach of promise of marriage. She also brings suit against Morford for $10,000, the value of some diamond jewelry which she alleges he took from her after he had changed his mind about marrying her.

Shop without them. I consider your Sulpher Bitters a remarkable blood purifier. I know of several people, whose cases were considered hopeless, that have been cured by your medicine. The sale of Sulpher Bitters is so large here that I could not keep shop without them. E. S. Yates, Pharmacist, 99 Essex street, Lawrence, Mass.

Congress gave it entirely, and no without success, directed their attention to the encouragement of manufactures. The object is of too much consequence not to insure a continuance of their efforts in every way which shall appear eligible.—George Washington.

The only time England can use a Celt is when he emigrates to America, and votes for free trade. — London Times.

Vincent Lundberg, of Stockholm, Physician-in-Chief to the King of Sweden, recommends Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer for the scalp and hair.

Peculiar

In the combination, proportion, and preparation of its ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures where other preparations entirely fail. Peculiar in its good name at home, which is a "tower of strength abroad," peculiar in the phenomenal sales it has attained. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most successful medicine for purifying the blood-giving strength, and creating an appetite.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

The liver and kidneys must be kept in good condition. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a great remedy for regulating these organs.

The issue of Protection is incalculably stronger and greater than any man, as it concerns the prosperity of the present and of the generations yet to come.—James G. Blaine.

Ayer's Ague Cure acts directly on the liver and biliary apparatus, and drives out the malaria which induces liver complaints and billious disorders. Warranted to cure, or money refunded. Try it.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

SONG OF THE WHEEL.

Away from the office and desk at last,
The business haunted room,
The roar of a city, hurrying past,
The heat, the worry, the gloom,
To the glorious red of the sunset sky,
The sweet, cold wine of the air,
On the frozen road, my wheel and I,
A dusty, rusty pair!

Push, push, two birds in a bush
Are laughing to see me hop;
On with a bound from the frozen ground,
With never a sway nor stop.

Over and over the pedals fly—
"Come on!" to the twittering bird I cry,
As over and over the wheels fly past her;
Over and over, still faster and faster,
On through the ice cold stream of air,
On where the road is frozen and bare.

Roll—roll—roll—roll—
Silent and swift as a death freed soul,
Glide—glide—
On this smooth, black tide
Of the ocean of night flowing in from the west,
Over and over, and on without rest,
Swifter and swifter, till over the crest
Of the hill, and down to the valley below,
Through the murk of the mist and the white of the snow—
Now my steed falters, as, breathless and slow,
Up the steep hillside he labors and grinds,
Grinds—grinds—grinds—grinds—
Across and across he turns and winds,
Sand clogged and rock hindered, without hope or faith,
No longer a soul, but a sin burdened wraith—
Till, reaching the summit, he spurns the dark hill,
And onward he plunges, for good or for ill,
Over and onward, and onward and over,
He reels and he spins like a jolly old rover.

Roll—roll—roll—roll—
Backward he flies to our one dear goal,
Where the whirling shall cease, and the rider shall rest,
And soft trembling lips to my own shall be pressed.
Slow—slow—slow,
Slowly—more slowly—we go—
What, darling, so far on the road to-night,
To welcome us both with your eyes' sweet light!
The wheel no longer has need to roam—
Be quiet, old fellow, we're safe, safe at home.

Willis Boyd Allen in Outing.

END OF THE TRADE DOLLARS.

The Last "Melt" at the Assay Office. Samples for Assaying—Bricks.

On a recent Friday afternoon the last "melt" of the 3,495,533 trade dollars which have been received at the United States assay office in Wall street, since the act of congress authorizing their purchase went into effect, was completed and the limpid silver was poured into the molds and transformed into silver bricks, 1,100 to 1,200 ounces in weight. A "melt" of silver at the assay office means 5,000 ounces. Therefore, in order to make way with the whole number of this 3,500,000 of trade dollars about 700 "melts" were necessary. A reporter chanced to be present and stood near the crucible when these last representatives of a dead currency slowly lost their individuality and became a shapeless glittering mass. When the last "melt" of the trade dollars had been poured into the molds and made into brick, the reporter observed that two small quantities, perhaps of a grain or two each, were put into little receptacles and sent to the assaying room. "These," explained Assistant Assayer J. T. Wilder, "are the samples for assaying. Two are taken from each 'melt.' They are each assayed by different persons and their work must tally. If it does not, the work is repeated. If the two assays still fail to agree the whole melt is remelted and fresh samples taken. Then the process is gone through with again.

"The greatest care is taken," said Mr. Wilder, "to guard against inaccuracies. The assaying is done by the Gay Lussac method. The exact amount of metal is weighed and dissolved in nitric acid. Then enough chlorine is added to precipitate precisely a drachm of pure silver. The solution is then shaken for three minutes in a shaking machine (run by steam), after which it is allowed to settle. More salt water is added, every atom of which is taken account of, and if any silver remains in solution it shows a slight cloudiness. The operation is repeated until no cloudiness appears, showing that no silver remains in solution; that it has all been precipitated. Then a calculation is made as to the exact fineness of the samples of silver in the trade dollar, which is corrected by silver proofs. When the fineness is thoroughly ascertained it is stamped upon the bar or brick which has been formed by the melted dollars, together with the value, weight, melt number and number of the bar. Then the bar or brick is sent to the 'inclosure' before mentioned, where the other 'trade dollar' bricks are kept under a combination safe lock. The combination of this, as well as of the other safe locks in the building, is known only to Superintendent Mason and one other trusted official."—New York Tribune.

A Museum of Religion.

Parisians, who, in these latter days, at least, are not remarkable for the depth of fervor of their religious feelings, are about to have a museum of religion. The founder of this remarkable and interesting institution is a M. Guimet. The building is in the Graeco-Roman style of architecture, and with its pillared porticoes, its rotunda, its columns, and its caryatides, looks like an ancient temple. It is situated near the Trocadero, at a corner of the avenue d'Jena. The edifice has been constructed after designs which were taken from the last mosaics discovered at Pompeii. The religions of Greece and Rome are most strongly represented, and in the northern gallery is an atrium which is to contain the altar of a pagan divinity copied from an original model. In the lateral galleries will be exhibited objects appertaining to the religions of Egypt, India and China. In a garden attached to the building there is to be placed a large conservatory and a pond containing plants consecrated to religious uses.—Paris Cor. London Telegraph.

Not the Consumptive's Paradise.

In a letter read before a recent meeting of the Berlin Anthropological society, Dr. Schliemann energetically protests against the current belief in the salutary effect of the Egyptian climate in pulmonary troubles. He writes from Thebes: "Since my consumptive servant, Polops, whom I had taken with me in order to save his life, has died, and since I have observed in this city a number of consumptives whom, like the German Consular Agent Tedrous, I knew twenty-eight years ago, as robust men, I am entirely cured of the belief that Egypt is the paradise of consumptives, and I would much rather advise such patients to go to the Riviera than to Egypt."—Chicago News.

HUNTING FOR BEE TREES.

How the Stores of Honey are Found in the Western Wilderness.

In the great forests west of the Mississippi the wild bees swarm in countless numbers, feeding on the luxurious vegetation which skirts and intersects the prairies all along the alluvial bottoms of the rivers, and seeming to fulfill literally the Bible description of a "land flowing with milk and honey." Hollow trees are taken possession of by them, and honey stored into them in large quantities. If nothing disturbs them they remain in their old quarters for long periods at a time, laying up stores of honey for their own use, and, as is often the case, for the bears or the white men in the long run. The hunters who make a business of collecting the honey are the most merciless enemies that the little creatures have. Unlike Bruin, who discovers a hive of honey by chance, or through the aid of his sensitive nose, the bee hunters carry on their work systematically, watching the habits of the little creatures while gathering honey from the flowers, and then following them as they return to their home through the air. After an experience of a year or two in the business, the hunters can locate with wonderful accuracy the home of the bees, notwithstanding the fact that the hive is often situated in a dense forest, and in trees where no one would ever think of looking for honey. Like most other wild creatures, the bees betray their hiding place by their own action.

The hunters before starting out in quest of their rich booty provide themselves with the necessary equipments. These consist of axes, rifles, matches and a small piece of honeycomb. The rifles are carried along for their own protection, in case the hunters should be hunted by enemies other than honey bees. When an open glade near the edge of the forest is reached, the piece of honeycomb is placed on a low bush where it can be plainly seen by the passing bees. Its sweet aroma quickly fills the air round it, and attracts the little honey gatherers toward it. Like a miser, who has suddenly discovered a treasure of gold, they dive down into the little cells and begin to satiate their appetite. Then, without suspecting the trap set for them, nor stopping to inquire about the strange phenomenon of honeycomb growing on a bush, they dart away through the forest to deposit their load in the hive.

This is the hunters' opportunity. Noticing the direction in which the bees fly, they quickly start in pursuit, keeping the little creatures in sight with difficulty. Usually an old experienced bee hunter takes the lead, and his eagle like eyes can detect the small black specks in the air when the others have entirely lost sight of them. Through dense clusters of brambles and over wet and boggy ground they hurry, completely absorbed in the chase, and unmindful of all disagreeable surroundings. They have to make a bee line through the woods, and not to stop to consider whether there is better traveling in another but longer direction.

Even the most expert leaders of hunting parties will sometimes lose sight of the game, and the bees will escape without betraying the locality of their homes. After wandering about in the woods for a sufficient time, searching attentively on every tree for a sign of one of the little creatures, the leader becomes satisfied that he cannot find the hive without resorting to another trick. A small box with a glass top is then produced, within which are a number of bees, which the hunters have caught round the honeycomb before entering the woods. One of these is allowed to escape from the box, and the direction which it takes immediately followed by the party. A walk of several minutes is then kept up, the leader keeping his eyes fixed on a certain tree which he has marked in the distance. The others of the party glance about them to discover signs of the tree in which the hive is hidden.

A second bee is then allowed to escape from the box. Instead of flying in the same direction taken by the first one, it darts off to the right and pursues a course directly opposite to that adopted by its mate. This would be misleading to an inexperienced hunter, and he would conclude naturally that either the bees were from different hives, or the old saying about bees flying directly to their homes when liberated was all "bosh."

The leader of the hunting party, however, understands the mute language of the little insects. The party has passed the tree containing the hive, and a countermarch is immediately ordered. Double precaution is now taken to locate the exact spot of the hive, and in a very short time this is done.

But quite frequently it happens that the hunters when in the immediate neighborhood of the tree are unable to distinguish the right one from the others. The entrance to the bee castle is several feet above the ground, and the eyes of the hunters are unable to see it unless attracted by the bees coming in and out in numbers. The third step of the hunt is then taken, and the leader knows that this cannot fail. A fire is kindled and a piece of honeycomb placed upon a warm stone. In a few minutes the honey begins to melt, and the smell from it permeates the air throughout the forest, reaching even the bees in their snug home. As a result, the whole colony of bees begin to swarm out of their citadel and fly around the fire from which the sweet odor arises. Unconsciously they have disclosed their hiding place, and the hunters immediately mark the tree and prepare for work. The fire is allowed to burn, and while the bees are busy gathering the wasted sweets the ax begins to make the echoes ring throughout the woods. As if still suspecting nothing, the owners of the hives continue flying backward and forward, entering and reentering their home with their tiny loads of honey until the great tree begins to tremble. A sharp, splitting noise startles the whole colony from their work, and before they have time to ascertain the cause the huge tree crashes downward, carrying with it bees, honey and all.—Independent.

A Spring of Acid Water.

About fifteen miles south of Meridian, Miss., there is a spring near the foot of a hill. The water is almost as sour as lemon juice. With the addition of sugar it makes first class lemonade, with a slight taste of iron. The spring was recently discovered, and it is not supposed to possess any value except as a curiosity.—Scientific American.

OH, WHAT A COLD!

This is the season for sudden changes in the weather, and a great many "take cold" either in their Head or on their Lungs, causing Coughs, Hoarseness, and Sore Throat. These troubles can be soon relieved and cured by taking Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs, entirely removing these difficulties.

Cured his boy of Croup.

Capt. Brooks Lowell, Mass., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific as a cure for Coughs, Colds, and Croup. I used it in my family last winter with the best results. Two or three doses cured my little boy of Croup, for which I am very thankful."

You can cure that Cough in a short time. You can cure your Catarrh if you persist in its use, as it will stop the secretion of Catarrhal matter in the head; it will relieve Croup in from three to five minutes.

The best he ever saw.

"The best medicine for Coughs and Consumptive Complaints that ever I saw is Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific," so says JOHN MCLAUGHLIN, of Boston.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

TRADE S.S.S. MARK

An Important Announcement

About six weeks ago, while at business, I was suddenly attacked with excruciating pains in my feet, knees and hands. So severe the attack that I took my bed immediately, and in two or three days my joints were swollen to almost double their natural size, and sleep was driven from me. After suffering the most excruciating pain for a week, using liniments and various other remedies, a friend who sympathized with my helpless condition, said to me:

"Why don't you get Swift's Specific and use it. I will guarantee a cure, and if it does not the medicine shall cost you nothing."

I at once secured the S. S. S., and after using it the first day, had a quiet night and refreshing sleep. In a week I felt greatly benefitted. In three weeks I could sit up and walk about the room, and after using six bottles I was out and able to go to business. Since then I have been regularly at my post of duty, and stand on my feet from nine to ten hours a day, and am entirely free from pain. These are the plain and simple facts in my case, and I will cheerfully answer all inquiries relative thereto, either in person or by mail. THOMAS MANNLIN,

11 W. 18th street, New York City.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—I have warded off a severe attack of rheumatism by a timely resort to Swift's Specific. In all cases where a permanent relief is sought this medicine commends itself for a constitutional treatment that thoroughly eradicates the seeds of disease from the system. Rev. W. P. HARRISON, D. D.

NEW YORK, 81 1ST AVE.—After spending $200 to be relieved of Blood Poison without any benefit, a few bottles of Swift's Specific worked a perfect cure. C. FOURNIER.

VIENNA, GA.—My little girl, aged six, and boy, aged four years, had scrofula in the worst aggravated shape. They were puny and sickly. To-day they are healthy and robust, all the result of taking S. S. S.

JOE T. COLLIER.

LADY LAKE, SUMTER CO., FLA.—Your S. S. S. has proved a wonderful success in my case. The cancer on my face, no doubt, would have soon hurried me to my grave. I do think it is wonderful, and has no equal.

The Yellow Fever.

There were forty-three new cases of yellow fever, and twelve deaths, at Jacksonville on the 14th. Among the deaths were those of Louis I. Fleming, whose son died a few days before, and Henry A. Longle, chairman of the citizens' sanitation committee. Fleming was a brother of the democratic candidate for governor of Florida, and Longle was treasurer of the state.

The fever broke out in Hendersonville, N. C., on the 14th, among the refugees from Jacksonville.

The New Commander-in-Chief.

Major William Warner, the new commander-in-chief of the Grand Army, has represented the Kansas City district of Missouri in Congress for the last four years, and is a member of the committees on territories and on expenditures in the war department. He has been city attorney and mayor of Kansas City, circuit attorney, United States attorney, and presidential elector, and was the republican candidate for senator in 1883. He was born in Wisconsin in 1841, and served three and a half years in the war as a member of the Wisconsin infantry. He formed the first Grand Army post in Kansas City, and was the first state department commander. In 1884 he was chosen senior vice commander-in-chief. The national encampment made a good selection.

Lester Wallack.

The death of Lester Wallack may be said to close an era in the history of the theatre in this country, and the transfer to Mr. Palmer's hands of the play house that so long bore the name seems to emphasize the fact that the Wallack race has run its course, writes a correspondent of the Boston Transcript. The dead comedian's son, Arthur, never appeared upon the stage. He seemed to inherit none of the family aptitude for the footlights. He tried his hand at managing the theatre, but ill luck seemed to attend his efforts, and he has now gone into other business. One looks around in vain for any one who is to fill the place that Wallack occupied for so many years to the delight of tens of thousands. Who has his fine physique, his gallant, dashing bearing, his cool assurance, his devil-may-care air, his ease of manner, his perfect self-possession? Who, in a word, is to take his place as the juvenile hero, admired of the ladies of comedy? So far as one can see, the place will long remain unfilled. Probably the most popular comedian we now have is young Sothern, but his style is very different from Wallack's, and if he comes to fill as high a place in the estimation of the public as did Wallack, it will be an altogether different place. We shall have to wait, I am afraid, for Wallack's successor to be born.

Early in the present session of Congress Senator Chandler of this state introduced a resolution in the senate calling upon the secretary of the navy to transmit to Congress all the papers, estimates, drawings, etc., in connection with the construction of the cruisers Atlanta and Boston, and the despatch boat Dolphin. The documents called for have reached the senate at last, and the printing of the same will cost about $27,000. The democratic members of the printing committee object to it on the ground of extravagance, but the republicans will probably insist upon it, as they maintain that all the facts in the matter have never been laid before Congress. It is to be hoped that Ex-Secretary of the Navy Chandler will not "let up" on Whitney until his contemptible and dishonorable conduct in the case of the so-called John Roach cruisers is fully exposed. Whitney was able to, and did, kill John Roach, but Senator Chandler is younger and tougher, and abundantly willing to fight.

The steamer Sud America, from Montevideo, was sunk near Madrid, Spain, on the night of Sept. 13th, and eighty-one passengers and six of the crew drowned. She was run down by the steamer La France, which was very badly damaged by the collision.

THE PERFUMER'S ART.

Two Processes by Which Odors Are Extracted from Flowers—A Classification.

There are two chief processes by which odors are extracted and retained. One is by distillation, or what is called maceration—the essential oil or otto in which the perfume resides being extracted by vaporizing from the flowers, leaves and roots, or other portions of the plant containing it. The other, and by far more delicate and interesting, is by absorption or enfleurage. This is resorted to in the case of all the more delicate flowers, such as the rose, jasmine, tuberose and cassia, where the essence is so fine that it has by practice been found to be injured by heat. The principle of odor absorption from flowers is based simply on the established law of affinity which hydro-carbons—that is, beef and mutton fats—have for perfumes. When these have been highly purified they catch, and in catching concentrate and intensify, the odors communicated to them.

The modus operandi is of the simplest and is not at all times of the cleanest. The visitor to the perfume factory would see multitudes of wooden frames having rims about three inches in depth, in which are set several sheets of glass. These frames are lifted to a bench and all the glasses are spread over with layers of pure fat, somewhat less than a quarter of an inch thick, and over this fat are carefully shed the leaves of whatever flowers may be plentiful at the season, fresh and full of odor. After the flower leaves are spread out, the glasses are replaced in the frame, one on top of the other, till each frame looks like a solid box of fat. Next the frames are slid into boxes made to receive them, something like our strawberry boxes, and these are then closely shut. In a very short time the fat will have caught all the odor, and having caught it will hold it, too, so that it can be conveyed uninjured hundreds of miles.

The next question is to free the imprisoned spirit. The fat is cut up into small square portions and put into alcohol. The delicate essence at once parts from its coarser companion, and uniting ing itself to the alcohol is fit for the market.

Another method, but not so commonly followed, is to spread the flowers upon cloths saturated with oils, which, when the absorption is supposed to have ended, are placed in a press and the impregnated oil squeezed out.

In the preparation of scents the ancients, as in so many, many other things, anticipated in principle at least the most recent methods approved of science. The absorbing substance with them was ben oil, obtained from the Moringa, a tree growing in Egypt, India and Ceylon. It bears a pod containing several peculiar shaped, three cornered seeds, from which a pure and scentless oil is obtained. Cotton was soaked in the oil and placed in layers between the flowers and then pressed down in a water bath for about twenty-four hours.

Evidently, too, the method has not varied much in different periods, for Culpepper in his "English Physician," published in 1653, gives the following receipe for the process:

"Having bruized the herbs or flowers you would make your Oyl of, put them in an earthen pot, and to two or three handfuls of them pour a pint of Oyl, cover the pot with a paper and set it in the sun, about a fortnight or less, according as the sun is in hotness; then, having warmed it very wel by the fire, press out the herbs, etc., very hard in a press, and add as many more herbs to the same Oyl, bruize (the herbs, I mean, not the Oyl) in like manner, set them in the sun as before; the oftener you repeat this the stronger will your Oyl be; at last when you conceive it strong enough boyl both herbs and Oyl together till the juice be consumed, which you may know by its leaving bubbling, and the herbs will be crisp, then strain it while it is hot, and keep it in a stone vessel for your use."

The number of so called perfumes is without end and is largely a matter of fashion. Still, various standing divisions of odors have been made, the most elaborate of them all being that of Rimmel. His classification comprises only the pleasant odors, and is based on a principle that just as there are primary colors from which all secondary shades are produced, so there are primary odors with types, all other aroma being more or less closely connected with them. Of these types he finds eighteen groups.—San Francisco Chronicle.

"The trouble with an oyster stew," growled a lover of that composition the other day, "is that it is too hot at the beginning and too cold as the bottom of the dish appears."—Philadelphia Call.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating

Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." Importance of Paper.

Paper is becoming an important article to all manufacturers. The latest thing is the paper coffin, and it bids fair to take the place of wood, being light, durable and waterproof. The paper coffin can be made for a few dollars, and, with the proper veneering, is capable of a beautiful finish in imitation of any costly wood. All paper articles have the advantage of cheapness, while they last about as long as wooden wares. Manufacturers are now making paper water buckets and paper doors. These are very popular. The doors are waterproof and will not shrink or crack. For several years past we have seen paper car wheels and paper rowing boats. I can't say when the next innovation will be made, for only the other day I wiped my mouth on a paper napkin, and a few hours later saw a paper dress imported from Paris. The clerk told me that French women of the middle classes were stanch patrons of the paper dress. It will not be long before we shall be building paper houses, and for half the money we now pay out for homes.—Professor E. H. Smith in Globe-Democrat.

Composition of Bridal Wreaths.

The Roman bridal wreath was of verbena, plucked by the bride herself. Holly wreaths were sent as tokens of congratulation, and wreath of parsley and rue were given under a belief that they were effectual preservatives against evil spirits. The hawthorn was the flower which formed the wreaths of Athenian brides. At the present day the bridal wreath is almost entirely composed of orange blossoms on a background of maidenhair fern, a sprig here and there of stephanotis blending its exquisite fragrance. Much uncertainty exists as to why this blossom has been so much worn by brides; but the general opinion seems to be that it was adopted as an emblem of fruitfulness. The custom of using orange blossoms at bridals has been traced to the Saracens, among whom the orange blossom was regarded as a symbol of a prosperous marriage, a circumstance which is partly to be accounted for by the fact that in the East the orange tree bears ripe fruit and blossoms at the same time.—Demorest's Monthly.

A Ride in a Barrel.

The latest amusement at Brussels is riding on "Le Chemin de Fer de l'Armour," or the "Topsy-turvy" railway. It consists of an enormous barrel opened at the end, and grooved so as to run upon a set of rails which slope in the center. On each side of the barrel is a seat, and on each seat three passengers sit, being strapped round the waist, and having their feet in straps, while with their hands they hold on to the seats. The barrel is set in motion, and goes down the incline and up the other side, the passengers turning round and round with it. The journey is a short one, the barrel rolling completely over only four times, and then stopping with its passengers seated right side up again. The fare is 30 centimes. Many women ride in it, their skirts fastened by a strap at the ankle.—New York Sun.

JOHN LAIGHTON,

NO. 1 MARKET SQUARE.

George Houran and Frank Chapin, two respected young men of Bennington, Vt., accompanied by ladies, and in company with many other citizens of Bennington, arrived at that town by train from a fair at two o'clock in the morning on the 13th inst. As they alighted from the train they were assaulted by two half-drunken ruffians named William McGuire and McCarthy, McGuire slapping the face of the young lady in Houran's company, and striking him. Houran drew a pistol and sent the ruffian where he belonged. On the 14th he was held in $600 for the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter, the sheriff going on his bond. McCarthy, the rough who unfortunately was not killed, after giving his evidence against Houran in the court was fined for drunkenness on his own testimony.

Extinguisher Co. No. 6, Oliver W. Ham foreman.
Hook and Ladder Co. No. 1, George W. Green foreman; Hook and ladder truck.
Supply wagon, and company.
Mechanics' Fire Society, in carriages.

Procession to move at a signal from the fire alarm at eleven o'clock, passing up Pleasant street by the city building, to pass in review before the mayor, aldermen and common council, the officials then entering carriages and joining the procession; then through Market, Deer and Vaughan streets and Maplewood avenue to Dennett street, countermarch, through Maplewood avenue, Vaughan, Deer, Bridge, Islington, Cass, Middle, State, Pleasant, Water, State, Pleasant, Congress, Middle and Court streets to the grounds in the rear of the court house, where a clambake will be served at one o'clock. Clambake prepared and served by Mr. John H. Wells.

Steamer trials at three o'clock, on Market square, governed by the rules conformed to at all general firemen's musters.

Concert in the evening on Market square by the Haverhill City band, commencing at 7:30 o'clock, the programme being as follows:

"March of the First,"	Reeves.
Overture—"Orpheus,"	Offenbach.
Concert waltz—"La Gitana,"	Bucalossi.
Selection from "Erminie,"	Jacobowski.
Cornet solo—"Air Varie,"	McCosh.
E. C. QUIMBY.
Potpourri—"A Night in New York,"	Brooks.
Episode Militare—"The march past,"	Dodworth.
Introduction and Tarrantelle,	Rollinson.
Finale from opera "Ariel,"	Bach.
Galop—"Carousal,"	Collins.

MUSIC HALL.

To-morrow evening, in Music hall, the reunited Dalys will present "Vacation" to Portsmouth's lovers of fun. There is no plot to the piece worth mentioning, but its absence is not noticed in the whirlwind of mirth created by the pranks of the performers. For two and a half hours of laughter go to Music hall to-morrow evening. Tickets at Goodrich's.

SNOBBERY.

"Towle," the Washington correspondent of the Boston Traveller, writing under date of Sept. 14th says: "There is a curious and petty squabble going on at the navy department, in which Secretary Whitney has been forced to take a hand. Last week Cramp Bros., at Philadelphia, notified Acting-Secretary Harmony that the new cruiser, the Baltimore, would be ready for launching to-morrow. Commodore Harmony invited Mrs. Wilson, wife of Commodore Wilson, to christen the new vessel, a rather unusual selection as it has been the custom to choose unmarried ladies to perform this office. Mrs. Wilson, it appears, while a very estimable lady, formerly occupied a position as governess, and some of the high and mighty officers at the navy department have made up their minds that she shall not name the Baltimore. So much pressure was brought upon Mr. Whitney that he has concluded to postpone the launching until next week. In the meantime he will decide who is to christen the new cruiser."

Mrs. Wilson is not unknown in this city, she having been governess in the family of Medical Director C. J. Cleborne, U. S. N., at the time he resided here. She was then Miss Cara Selina Hubbard; and when Dr. Cleborne, on being detached from this station, moved with his family to Philadelphia, Miss Hubbard went to Washington and took the position of governess in the family of Chief Naval Constructor Theodore D. Wilson, to whom she was married on the 7th of December last year in the Church of the Incarnation at Washington. She is spoken of as being a lady of high education and especial refinement, and as she was the daughter of the late Capt. William Hubbard, R. N., a very aristocratic officer of Her Britannic Majesty's service, the objection of the American grandees to her lack of "aristocracy" seems rather absurd.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

The undersigned would inform his friends and the public that his place of business will be closed for a short time in order to make alterations and improvements.

JOHN S. RAND,
No. 11 Market Street.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Thomas Scott, wife and maid, of New York, are guests of Mr. Jos. W. Peirce and wife, of Haymarket square.

Mr. C. H. Marston of New York, formerly a dry goods merchant on Market street, arrived in this city last week on a brief visit.

Mrs. Wilbur J. Rockwood left this city last week to join her husband in Lynn, Mass., where they will take up their permanent residence.

Miss Alice Ollinger, of Florida, is visiting Mrs. H. C. Hewitt, of Pleasant street.

Mrs. Josiah Emery, and her daughter, Mrs. Florence L. Marshall of Newburyport, wife of Capt. Henry O. Marshall of the ship "Magellan," are guests of Mrs. Andrew Lynn, of Winter street.

Miss Calista M. Parshley and Miss Emma Parshley, who have been visiting Mrs. John Montgomery, have returned to their home in Pittsfield.

Mrs. Thomas W. Green of Chelsea, Mass., is the guest of Mrs. John O. Varrell, of State street.

Miss Annie R. Horne, Miss Jennie S. Horne and Miss Maggie Leary, of Court street, are visiting friends in Boston.

Mr. J. C. Shaw, for fourteen years past attached to the Rye beach station of the Direct United States Cable Co., was last week ordered to Boston, to take charge of the company's office there. Mr. Shaw's family will remain in Rye, at least for the present.

Mr. Edward C. Stickney, the athlete, who is building a house for his own occupancy in Swampscott, Mass., arrived in this city on Saturday to pass Sunday with his relatives here. Mr. Stickney, we are informed, will open a grocery store in Swampscott as soon as he gets his residence completed.

Mr. Edward W. Riley, formerly with Frye & Co.'s Express, has taken a permanent position with the Adams' Express Co., and has charge of the freight department of that company in the depot at Providence, R. I. Mr. Riley has taken up his residence in Providence; his family leave this morning for their new home, his furniture having previously been transported there.

Mr. Sampson J. Slaney and wife arrived in this city, their former home, last Thursday evening from Florida, and are stopping with Mrs. Slaney's uncle, Mr. Nathan Whalley. At the time the yellow fever appeared in Jacksonville the dispensary of St. Luke's hospital was in charge of Mr. Slaney, and the surgeon in charge of the hospital promptly abandoning his trust, Mr. Slaney was left to do the best he could with the terrible disease, whose victims died in large numbers at that hospital. Great difficulty was experienced by Mr. Slaney and wife in getting away from the afflicted city.

RAILROAD ITEMS.

In the case of the Manchester & Lawrence railroad vs. the Concord railroad, Judge Smith of the supreme court on the 15th inst. dismissed the writ of habeas corpus applied for by defendant's counsel for release of J. Frank Webster, cashier of the Concord road, who was technically under arrest for contempt in refusing to answer questions. The court decided that he must answer such interrogatories as have been asked him.

Quite a large excursion party from Salem and stations this side of that place, passed through this city by a train Saturday forenoon, bound to Alton Bay.

The train over the York Harbor & Beach railroad leaving the York terminus at 1:10 P. M. and this city at 3:25 P. M., has been discontinued.

There will be a grand excursion to Canada via Boston & Maine and Grand Trunk railroads this week; tickets good going by any regular train on the 18th and 19th of September, and good returning on any train until Oct. 16th. Fare from Portsmouth to Montreal and return, $9 00.

MARITIME NOTES.

The Appledore house closed for the season of 1888 on Friday; and the last of the help, and their baggage, were brought in to this city Saturday morning by the steamer Oceanic, when the landing stage and brow were towed in. Some of the help went away by rail, but a number made the trip to Boston by the steamer.

The steamer Oceanic, Capt. Robinson, was packed with passengers to the full limit of her licensed capacity when she left Appledore wharf for Boston on Saturday forenoon, and many intending passengers had to be refused. The day was a beautiful one, and the trip was correspondingly pleasant. The boat remained in Boston until Sunday afternoon, and arrived back with her party that night.

Among the charters reported last week was that of the schooner Thomas B. Garland, to take jute butts from Salem to New York at twenty-five cents per bale.

It is reported that the steamer Oceanic, instead of going to the southward to engage in towing until the opening of the season of summer travel next year, will winter at this port, taking a berth on the northerly side of Appledore wharf.

BASE BALL.

The Portsmouth base ball club defeated the New Bedford club on the grounds of the latter, last Friday, by a score of seven to six, in eleven innings. Willis pitched for the Portsmouths, and there was a large attendance of spectators. On Saturday the Portsmouths played in Fall River, Mass., and defeated the home club, eleven to three. All the players of the Portsmouth club have been reserved by the management.

Pears' Soap secures a fine complexion.

The annual meeting of the Portsmouth Athletic club, for the election of officers, takes place in the club room this evening.

The electric lights in the Methodist church were tried for the first time last Friday evening, and gave entire satisfaction.

The flag at the republican headquarters was lowered about nine o'clock Saturday evening, and while the lines were down a team in which were a gentleman and three ladies attempted to drive across them. The horse in some way got his hind legs fouled in the ropes, and for a few moments a serious accident seemed inevitable, but the driver succeeded in soothing the horse so he was extricated without any other harm being done than the giving of a fright to the ladies.

The reading room of the Mechanics' Association in Mechanics' block has recently had its walls tinted and the ceiling frescoed, electric lights put in, and other improvements made, and the room is now far more cheerful and attractive than ever before.

The Methodist church, which has been closed several weeks while the interior was being renovated and redecorated, was reopened for service Sunday forenoon, when a sermon was delivered by Rev. J. A. M. Chapman, D. D., of Philadelphia.

Mr. J. K. Lewis has just opened at Kittery Foreside, in Trefethen's block, a store for the sale of cigars, tobacco, confectionery, pastry and bread of all kinds; hot brown bread will be on sale every Sunday morning in time for breakfast.

Nearly a hundred members of the Sunday school connected with the 2d Christian church at Kittery had a picnic at Fort McClary on Saturday, going down in the steamer Mystic.

A despatch of Sept. 19th from Washington said: "The officials of the lighthouse board are greatly exercised over the fact that in case the resolution providing for a continuation of the appropriation for that service is not passed today they will be compelled to notify every lighthouse keeper in the United States that if they light their lights tomorrow night they will do so at their own expense. This is an unheard of state of affairs, as it places in jeopardy thousands of lives and uncounted millions of treasure." We guess it would bother the board to get their notices to all the lighthouses, say to Mt. Desert rock, Saddleback, Boon island or the Isles of Shoals, or to the numerous lightships along the coast, in time for a general shut-down within a few hours after the notice was issued; and if the notice was received it would be ignored. The lightkeepers are sworn to keep their lights going, and as they have always plenty of material on hand they would keep them going, appropriation or no appropriation. Congress may make a muddle of things, but the lighthouses will not be left in the dark on that account.

Chauncey M. Depew arrived home from Europe last week on the steamer Ems, and was welcomed in New York, by a large number of friends, mostly officials and employes of the New York Central road, including fifty members of the Union League club and a delegation of the Federal club. Mr. Depew will take an active part in the political campaign.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Jackson, of Danbury, will take part in the singing at the convention of Young Men's Christian Associations which will be held in this city this week.

The First Symptoms
Of all Lung diseases are much the same: feverishness, loss of appetite, sore throat, pains in the chest and back, headache, etc. In a few days you may be well, or, on the other hand, you may be down with Pneumonia or "galloping Consumption." Run no risks, but begin immediately to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.
Several years ago, James Birchard, of Darien, Conn., was severely ill. The doctors said he was in Consumption, and that they could do nothing for him, but advised him, as a last resort, to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. "After taking this medicine, two or three months, he was pronounced a well man. His health remains good to the present day.
J. S. Bradley, Malden, Mass., writes: "Three winters ago I took a severe cold, which rapidly developed into Bronchitis and Consumption. I was so weak that I could not sit up, was much emaciated, and coughed incessantly. I consulted several doctors, but they were powerless, and all agreed that I was in Consumption. At last, a friend brought me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. From the first dose, I found relief. Two bottles cured me, and my health has since been perfect."
Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,
PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles, $5.

OH! MY HEAD.

The pain from Neuralgia and its companion disease Rheumatism is excruciating. Thousands who could be quickly cured are needlessly suffering. Athlophoros will do for others what it did for the following parties:

Williamsport, Ind., Oct. 8, 1887.

Having been afflicted with neuralgia for the past four years, and trying almost everything, but in vain, I finally heard of Athlophoros. After taking one bottle I found it to be helping me, and after taking four bottles of Athlophoros and one of Pills, I found that I was entirely well. I think the medicine is positively a sure cure.

WHAT IS SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arm, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

NO. 7 PLEASANT ST. EXCHANGE BUILDING

PROCESS OF CANE PLANTING.

Methods Pursued on a Louisiana Plantation—Work in the Stubble Fields.

Let us follow in their sequence the processes of planting. First is the uncovering with plows of the furrows in which the seed cane has been buried since last fall, the pulling it out of the ground with great iron hooks attached to poles, and the loading it into carts. In the "hooking up" gang I observed two white men working with the negroes. They are Spaniards from the Terre aux Bœufs country, the other side of the swamps. There are two others who are neither whites nor negroes. They have a brown complexion, high cheek bones, regular features and straight black hair. These are "Manilla men"—natives of the Philippine Islands. The curiously mixed population of lower Louisiana includes 2,000 or 3,000 of them.

Big, stout carts, with broad tired wheels, haul the resurrected canes to the field prepared for planting. Here a gang of women called "droppers" take up the canes by armfuls and drop them in heaps at intervals beside the furrows. They are placed in the furrows by other women called "planters." Another gang passes along the furrows and chops up the canes with rude hatchet like knives. The object of this is to give the weak eyes a chance to draw strength from the stock which would otherwise be absorbed by those which have already a good start. About six tons of cane go to the planting of an acre. One acre of seed cane will plant three acres, and as the planting must be done every third year, one-ninth of the crop average of a plantation must but be given up to seed cane. When the seed cane is cut in the fall the stalks are laid between the rows of stubble and covered with a plow run on each side.

After the canes are laid and cut, they are covered with plows or with a machine called a rotary hoe, and the ground is then rolled to press the dirt close to the sprouting eyes. The first crop is called plant cane. Next year the cane sprouts from the stubble, and is called first ratoons. The second year it sprouts again, and is called second ratoons. The third year the stubble is plowed up and the ground sowed with field peas, which recuperates the land, as clover does northern farms. The fourth year it is again put in plant cane. A good yield to the acre is 25 tons of plant cane, 20 of the first ratoons, and 15 of second ratoons. On the upper coast, above New Orleans, it is customary to let the stubble ratoon but once. In Cuba it often ratoons six successive years, but the cane becomes constantly more woody and poorer in saccharine matter.

In the stubble fields the first spring, work consists in "barring off," or moving the dirt away from the roots of the cane with plows and hoes, to permit the light and air to hasten the germinating of the ratoons. By the middle of April there should be a good "stand" of the young sprouts. Then the dirt is worked back toward the rows, and there is constant cultivation with the plow till after the 1st of July, when the crop is "laid by." No more work is done on it till the cutting begins in September. Now the cane is so high that a man driving a mule is lost to sight between the rows. Soon it will be tall enough to swallow up a man on horseback. The rows are usually seven feet apart and always run parallel with the ditches—that is, from the river or bayou toward the swamp. July and August was formerly the time for cutting wood in the swamps to run the sugar mill during the grinding season, but now most plantations burn coal. The crop being "made," the planter feels that he can relax his vigilance, and if he has the means, he goes off to the north with his family to escape the two hottest months of the year in Louisiana and build up his health in a less enervating climate.—E. V. Smalley in The Century.

Description of a Naval Battle.

Those who have read the narrative of the battle between the Guerriere and the Constitution during the war of 1812 remember that the American frigate, although it received three broadsides from the British man-of-war, did not fire until she had come to close quarters. Then her fire was so rapid that in a few minutes the British ship struck her colors. The story of the capture, as spoken by a Frenchman speaking broken English, sets forth the main points of the engagement:

"You see, I vas come from Marseilles with sheeplead vine and cognac; I vas go to ze Levant trade. By'm-by Capitaine Dacre he come vith zat Guerriere, and he tak' my sheep; and he tak' all my vine an' my cognac in he's sheep; me an' my crew he tak' prisoners an' he burn my sheep.

"Pretty soon he say: 'Ah, Capitaine Dufosse, I go look now fo' zat Yankee frigate, ze Constitution!' Pretty soon he see zat sheep. 'Ah, Capitaine Dufosse,' he say, 'I'm goin' tak' zat sheep in twenty minutes!'

"Ven he come up with her he give von broadside; br-r-r-r-r-re! Zat Yankee he say nossing; br-r-r-r-r-re! ze other broadside. Ze Yankee he no say nossing!

"'Tonnere!' I say, 'what is zat?' Br-r-r-r-r-re! from ze Guerriere. Zat Yankee he no say nossing.

"Pretty soon when he came close—br-r-r-r-r-re! br-r-r-r-r-re! br-r-r-r-re!

"I go below. After ave I come on de deck. Capitaine Dacre vas giv' his sword to Capitaine Hull!

"I say, 'Ah, hn, Capitaine Dacre! You say you goin' tak' zat Yankee frigate in twenty minutes! He tak' you in tan!'"—Youth's Companion.

Druggists' Ingenious Device.

A very ingenious device is now generally adopted by druggists to prevent the frequent mistakes which occur at night in administering a dangerous medicine for a simple one. This is entirely obviated by putting up prescriptions containing powerful remedies or poisonous drugs in rough bottles as prickly as the coat of a gherkin. Any one rising in the dark is at once warned of his danger. Many lives have already been saved by this simple contrivance.—Globe-Democrat.

Compliment from the Bereaved.

"I think, Mr. Smith," said a friend of the family, "that your poor wife looked so lovely as she lay there at rest at last."

"Yes," replied the bereaved husband; "Mary always did look well in white."—The Epoch.

When we consider the patronage of this great office, [the presidency,] the allurements of power, the temptation to retain place once gained, and more than all, the availability a party finds in an incumbent whom a horde of office holders, with a zeal born of benefits and fostered by the hope of favors yet to come, stand ready to aid with money and trained political service, we recognize in the eligibility of the president for re-election a most serious danger to that calm, deliberate and intelligent political action, which must characterize a government by the people.—Grover Cleveland.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

"American wages for American workmen." Republican motto

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

When our manfactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C. Calhoun.

Men and Women's Bones,

Joints and muscles may escape the agonizing tortures of rheumatism if they will but "take time by the forelock," and annihilate the symptoms of oncoming trouble with the benignant and highly sanctioned blood depurent and alternative, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Poisons mostly constitute the ordinary means of battling with this atrocious complaint. Avoid the risk of using these by resorting to the safe as well as effectual antiphlogistic and preventive. After exposures to damp, through drafts and other causes which encourage a rheumatic tendency, a wineglassful of the Bitters prevents ill effects. No surer preventive of malarial ailments like fever and ague, bilious ailments, dumb ague and ague cake exists, and it is, besides, a most genial recuperator of strength, exhausted by excessive mental or physicial effort. Miners, mariners, operatives and others whose avocations involve laborious work in rough weather out of doors, or close application indoors, find it invaluable.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot resist while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

Didn't Want a Girl.

Last summer my wife's health was all run down, and she wanted me to hire a girl to the work. In a little while I found one I thought would suit her, when to my surprise she said I need not hire any one, as she felt much better, and thought another bottle of Sulpher Bitters would cure her. Donald Grey, 41 Worcester square, Boston.

An extensive domestic market for the surplus produce of the soil is of the first consequence. It is, of all things, that which most effectually conduces to a flourishing state of agriculture.—Alexander Hamilton.

We know of no mode of treatment which offers, to sufferers from chronic diseases, a more certain hope of cure than that which is comprehended in the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. For purifying and invigorating the blood, this preparation is unequaled.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

Hay Fever.

I have been afflicted with hay fever from early in August until frost. My eyes would run a stream of water and I sneezed continually. I was advised to use Ely's Cream Balm. It has worked like a charm and I can say I am entirely cured.—Mrs. Emeline Johnson, Chester, Conn.

I have been for several years a sufferer from hay fever and severe head colds. I have found nothing that can compare with Ely's Cream Balm. I would not be without it for any consideration. It is simply wonderful in its effect upon the nasal organs.—S. A. Burtt, Wilmington, N. C.

We must now place our manufactures by the side of the agriculturist. * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

It is certain that the arguments which President Cleveland urges are those which Cobden used to employ forty-five years ago, and which any free trader could employ now.—London Times.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

The Population of Portsmouth

Is about 10,000, and we would say at least one-half are troubled with some affection of the throat and lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all our readers not to neglect the opportunity to call on their druggist get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Trial size free. Large bottles 50c. and $1. Sold by all druggists. sep29

The Handsomest Lady of Portsmouth

Remarked to a friend the other day that she knew Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when other cough remedies had no effect whatever. So to prove this and convince you of its merit, any druggist will give you a sample bottle free. Large size 50c. and $1.

She Tried and Knows.

A leading chemist of New York says: "No plasters of such merit as the Ath-lo-pho-ros Plasters have ever before been produced." They are a novelty because they are not made simply to sell cheap, they are the best that science, skill and money can produce, and will do what is claimed for them. For sprains, aches, weakness, lameness, etc., they are unequaled.

Fulton St., Sandusky, O. Nov. 21, '87. The Athlophoros Plasters acted like magic. It is the best I ever tried and I have used many kinds. Our druggist said "plasters are all about the same" but I don't think so now. I sprained my arm and shoulder in Jy, and it has been painful since, but it does not pain me at all now. A Hint to Puny People.

From their arrival on this planet to their usually early departure from it, people of weak constitutions and angular physiques pass a sort of half-existence. Like dormice they burrow in their home retreats, afrid of heat, afraid of cold, constantly afraid that the shadow of the dread reapear will materialize and exact the forfeit which he demands from all, sooner or latter. No finer medicinal assurance of comparative vigor for the feeble exists than agorded by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Used with persistence—not with spurts and spasm—this genial and professionally commended tonic will do much toward infusing strength into a puny system, and rounding off scrawny angles in the human figure. Appetite, nerve tranquility and nightly repose are encouraged by it, and [a malarial, rheumatic, bilious tendency overdome. It re-establishes digestion and prevents kidney troubles.

Congress have repeatedly, and no without success, directed their attention to the encouragement of manufactures. The object is of too much consequence not to insure a continuance of their efforts in every way which shall appear eligible.—George Washington.

The only time England can use a Celt is when he emigrates to America, and votes for free trade. — London Times.

Vincent Lundberg, of Stockholm, Physician-in-Chief to the King of Sweden, recommends Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer for the scalp and hair.

Peculiar

In the combination, proportion, and preparation of its ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures where other preparations entirely fail. Peculiar in its good name at home, which is a "tower of strength abroad," peculiar in the phenomenal sales it has attained. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most successful medicine for puryifying the blood-giving strength, and creating an appetite.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

The liver and kidneys must be kept in good condition. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a great remedy for regulating these organs.

The issue of Protection is incalculably stronger and greater than any man, as it concerns the prosperity of the present and of the generations yet to come.—James G. Blaine.

Ayer's Ague Cure acts directly on the liver and biliary apparatus, and drives out the malaria which induces liver complaints and billious disorders. Warranted to cure, or money refunded. Try it.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

APACHE MEDICINE DANCE.

Splendid Specimens of Indian Manhood. A Medicine Woman's Invocation.

As the mellow outlines of Fort Marion came in view a ruddy reflection of the watchfire rose against the somber background of the sky, while shrill, wild cries were heard mingled with the steady beat of the tomtom. Passing through the old portcullis, as we entered the courtyard of the fort, a curious scene presented itself.

From the ramparts above hundreds of figures were seen standing, sitting, in every imaginable posture. Lining the stone staircase, crouched in groups upon the pavement of the court, the rest of the spectators smoked, chatted and enjoyed themselves. Occasionally the fire, heaped with fresh logs, blazed up fiercely, giving us a chance to recognize some of the dark faces. Around it two dancers whirled, both splendid specimens of Indian manhood. The firelight gleamed on their broad, naked chests, painted and tattooed with symbolic devices.

On their heads were fastened curious square head dresses, to which pieces of metal were attached; these clanged and jarred with every motion, while the face was entirely concealed by a thick woolen mask. Tall, straight as an arrow, their swift, supple movements showed the great muscular power they possessed. By sharp, wild cries the tribe signified their delight at any particularly daring act, as when one of the men leaned so far over the fire that he seemed actually in the midst of it.

For hours this dance was kept up, till the eye wearied of following their swift, whirling movements. Finally there was a short interval; and then began the "medicine dance." Emerging from the shadowy casement a tall, bent figure appeared, supported on either side. Led to a low seat prepared for him within the circle of light, the poor creature sank into it half unconscious, while the men of the tribe to which he belonged formed themselves into a line.

First came the two medicine men, Colie and Ustane, full of the dignity of their office, wearing the medicine jacket and cap. One of them carried a small tomtom, accompanying himself on this as he chanted the medicine song, a curious, monotonous measure; then came the chief, walking alone, followed by the rest of the men two abreast. After these came the women, and last of all the children. The most perfect order prevailed, the march around the invalid being performed in utter silence, except the low muttering of the medicine men and the occasional shrill, mocking cries of the dancers, who, running beside the line, looked and acted like evil spirits.

The marching was continued until from out the line a medicine woman advanced, and walking up to where the sick man lay began her chant. Weird and unearthly she looked in the dim light, her swarthy face, half hidden by masses of black hair, lifted to the starry heavens. Her voice, a veritable "voix des larmes," now raised in an agony of supplication or sunk to a low key of sobbing entreaty, rang out on the still night air. Strangely impressed, I noticed the reverent faces and moving lips of the Indians around me. Who will dare to assert that their prayers to the "Great Spirit," of whom even we, except by faith, can know so little, are worthless? At length she stopped, stepping back into her place in the line, while the march was recommenced.

This ended the "medicine dance," the invalid was removed and a fresh relay of logs heaped on the fire for the last feature of the programme, a dance in which all the tribes join. In separate lines the men and women stood facing each other. After a few preliminaries of crossing over and back each squw chose a brave, being obliged to dance with her partner all the evening. This festivity is generally kept up till morning, and as it was already well into the "wee sma' hours" we decided not to wait for its termination, although politely urged to take part, an invitation we were strongly tempted to accept.—St. Augustine (Fla.) Cor. Home Journal.

Professional Bondsmen.

The professional bondsman is one of the evils difficult to overcome that accompanies the present system of "bailing out." These bondsmen form a set of vampires of the meanest and lowest class, who are always ready to go bail for any and all of the unfortunate women locked up in the calaboose. It makes no difference whether or not they know them; they take the risk, and usually do so safely, as the persons released rarely fail to appear for trial. The bondsman keeps a pretty sharp eye on their whereabouts until they do so; but he requires something more. The most exorbitant rates of interest are demanded for the money loaned. For $25 and $50 deposited but a few hours at the police station they exact $5, $10 and sometimes even $15 in payment for their "disinterested" services. Something should be done to break up the nefarious business of these sharks. —Police Sergeant in Globe-Democrat.

Pinguitude at Marienbad.

If the visitor be desirous of seeing the very fattest women produced by the continent, let him run across the Bohemian frontier to Marienbad, and when the band plays he will see them rolling, literally rolling, along the paths in the forest to the orchestra, in all degrees of obesity, past the wildest imagination to picture. Marienbad has the credit of reducing fat. I sat at table d'hote one day there, wedged in among fat women, and saw and heard them eat. Then I ceased to wonder that they were fat, and my opinion of the Marienbad waters to reduce such vigorous and omnivorous eaters into moderate proportions rose to a high pitch.

This is what the fat lady opposite ate: Soup, boiled beef, veal cutlets, roast pork, raw herring and onions, baked veal, then ordered "gefullte taube," stuffed dove, and when she had eaten that was a gefullte taube herself.—Cornhill Magazine.

Tenure of Human Life.

Dr. Barr favors 100 years for the tenure of life, but makes these divisions: Boyhood, 10 to 15; youth, 15 to 25; manhood, 25 to 55; maturity, 55 to 75; ripeness, 75 to 85, and old age from 85 upward. Professor J. R. Buchanan places the attainable limits of longevity at 140, and he cites the fourteen people of that age found in Italy by a census under one of the later Roman emperors.—Brooklyn Eagle.

SEALS LEARNING TO SWIM.

A Pup's First Trial—Results of Perseverance—A Big Frolic.

Early in August, usually by the 8th or 10th, I noticed one of the remarkable movements of the season among the seals. I refer to the pup's first essay in swimming. Is it not odd, paradoxical, that the young seal, from the moment of his birth until he is a month or six weeks old, is utterly unable to swim? If he is seized by the nape of the neck and pitched out into the water a rod from the shore, his bullet like head will drop instantly below the surface, and his attenuated posterior extremities flap impotently on it. Suffocation is the question of only a few minutes, the stupid little creature not knowing how to raise his immersed head and gain the air again.

After they have attained the age indicated above their instinct drives them down to the margin of the surf, where an alternate ebbing and flowing of its wash covers and uncovers the rocky or sandy beaches. They first smell and then touch the moist pools, and flounder in the upper wash of the surf, which leaves them as suddenly high and dry as it immersed them at first.

After this beginning they make slow and clumsy progress in learning the knack of swimming. There is not the slightest supervision by the mother or father of the pup, from the first moment of its birth, in this respect, until he leaves for the north Pacific, full fledged with amphibious power.

For a week or two, when overheated in depth, the young pups continue to flounder about in the most awkward manner, thrashing the water as little dogs do with their fore feet, making no attempt whatever to use the hinder ones.

Look at that pup now, launched out for the first time beyond his depth; see how he struggles, his mouth open, and his eyes fairly popping. He turns instantly to the beach, ere he has fairly struck out from the point whence he launched in, and, as the receding swell which at first carried him off his feet and out, now returning, leaves him high and dry, for a few minutes he seems so weary that he weakly crawls up, out beyond its swift returning wash, and coils himself immediately to take a recuperative nap.

He sleeps, perhaps, half an hour, then awakes apparently rested, and at his swimming lesson he goes again. By repeated attempts, he becomes familiar with the water and acquainted with his own power over that element, which is to be his real home and whole support.

Once boldly swimming the pup fairly revels in a new happiness. He and his brethren play with a zest, and chatter like our own children in the kindergartens—swimming in endless evolutions, twisting, turning or diving—and when exhausted, drawing their plump, round bodies up again on the beach. Shaking themselves dry, as young dogs would do, they either go to sleep on the spot, or have a lazy, terrestrial frolic among themselves.—"Our Arctic Province."

Servility and Arrogance.

The Anglomania is responsible for the creation of a class of tradesmen in New York unique and conspicuous. They are essentially high priced and exclusive. They have no time or civility to waste upon practical economists, and questions and demurs as to prices are met with calculated impertinence. They are almost always English by birth, and have learned their trades in London. They have all the servility of an English tradesman combined with the overswelling independence of the naturalized American citizen, and it is a combination which gives them their peculiar and unparalleled character. Anywhere else than in the set of their customers they regard themselves as their customers' equals and the superiors of everybody. They are met at Long Branch, Saratoga, Richfield, and all the minor watering places this summer, but never at Newport or Lenox, and have the best places everywhere, and everywhere throw about their money with the air of dukes and the discretion of drummers. Almost everybody takes them at their own valuation, which is as high as arrogance and a full purse can force it. Only if they chance to meet one of their customers do they show a prompt change of front and become obsequious lackeys with tape measures. This is a character impossible to the American tradesman, but it pays when well done.—New York Graphic.

Where Longfellow was Born.

Any one in Portland will tell you that, down in that old square, hip roofed, rotting structure at the corner of Hancock and Fore streets, where when it was built the tide crept to the very threshold, on Feb. 27, 1807, Longfellow first saw the light. All the people here know that. They know it, too, in a lugubrious, deprecating sort of way, that seizes upon your interest as a strange freak, and they will friendly lighten your seriousness with any little bit of wit that can be recalled. Indeed, the old building is a sort of by word among them, and because a schoolmaster once asked his pupils where Longfellow was born, and a bright little Irish lad promptly answered: "In Patsy Connor's bedroom, sir!"—which was literally true, as the Connor family were then among the tenants of the old mansion—a wise smile is on the town when the same inquiry is made by the traveler.—Edgar L. Wakeman.

Coney Island Contrasts.

The curious fact about Coney Island is that it contains the highest priced summer hotel in the country and the cheapest refreshment booths. Millionaires go there on the same boats and trains with the poorest of our populace. A tourist asked how much it would cost to visit the place for an afternoon. "Oh, from $1 to $100," was the honest reply. The transportation is alike for all, half a dollar covering the round trip; but the viands range from rare dishes at prices above any charges known in Fifth avenue, to very filling chowder at ten cents a plate; the beverages differ between champagne and beer; and you can make a half dollar cover five dime side shows, or get rid of an indifferent sum at the Sheepshead bay races.—New York Letter.

The light from the top of Washington monument is visible twenty-nine miles distant, considerably farther than is the light on the Bartholdi statue of Liberty.

These troubles can be soon relieved and cured by taking Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs, entirely removing these difficulties.

Cured his boy of Croup.

C. M. BROOKS, Lowell, Mass., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific as a cure for Coughs, Colds, and Croup. I used it in my family last winter with the best results. Two or three doses cured my little boy of Croup, for which I am very thankful."

You can cure that Cough in a short time. You can cure your Catarrh if you persist in its use, as it will stop the secretion of Catarrhal matter in the head; it will relieve Croup in from three to five minutes.

The best he ever saw.

"The best medicine for Coughs and Consumptive Complaints that ever I saw is Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific," so says JOHN MCLAUGHLIN, of Boston.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., June 27, 1888—Swift's Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: In the early part of the present year, a bad case of blood poison appeared upon me. I began taking S. S. S. under advice of another, and to-day I feel greatly improved. I am still taking the medicine and shall continue to do so until I am perfectly well. I believe it will effect a perfect cure. Yours truly,

DOC. P. HOWARD, 111 West Sixth St.

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 7, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: I was a great sufferer from muscular rheumatism for two years. I could get no permanent relief from any medicine prescribed by my physician. I took over a dozen bottles of your S. S. S., and now I am as well as I ever was in my life. I am sure your medicine cured me, and I would recommend it to any one suffering from any blood disease. Yours truly,

C. E. HUGHES, Conductor C. & G. R. R.

WACO, TEXAS, May 9, 1888—Gentlemen: The wife of one of my customers was terribly afflicted with a loathsome skin disease, that covered her whole body. She was confined to her bed for several years by this affliction, and could not help herself at all. She could not sleep from a violent itching and stinging of the skin. The disease baffled the skill of the physicians who treated it. Her husband began finally giving his wife Swift's Specific, and she commenced to improve almost immediately, and in a few weeks she was apparently well. She is now a hearty fine-looking lady, with no trace of the affection left. Yours very truly, J. E. SEARS, Wholesale Druggist, Austin Avenue.

want to commence poultry raising, for the sake of open air employment? If so, get some reliable advice how to do it. An enlarged and much improved Poultry Raising Guide has just been printed. It contains practical information and many new features, which every person who keeps hens should have; such as records and accounts for each month of the year. It also contains a long series of very valuable articles, by A. F. Hunter, "how to make money with a few hens." Of him the Lowell, Mass., Journal says: "the most sensible poultry literature we have read, we find under the name A. F. Hunter. He evidently knows what he is talking about." These two features alone are worth ten times the cost of the book, which the publishers, I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom house street, Boston, Mass., send postpaid, for only 25 cents in stamps. The latest returns put the democratic majority in Arkansas at 14,981, as compared with a majority of 45,336 at the corresponding election in 1884, a net loss of 30,355. The democratic papers are not quoting Arkansas as an offset to Vermont nearly as much as they were.

The last New Jersey legislature passed a registration act for cities, also an act requiring the polls to close at sunset. The first will tend to check false personation, and the second make after-dark frauds difficult. Both may be reckoned as discouragements to democratic success.

The democrats have got a set back in their gleeful claim that the Methodist denomination would back the third party prohibitionists, by a recently published canvass of all the Methodist bishops, showing that twelve out of the sixteen will vote for Harrison, two for Fisk, and two are doubtful. The interest which the democrats take in the third party prohibitionists is very suspicious.

Says the Portland Express: The New York Sun accounts for the small space devoted to civil service reform in Cleveland's letter of acceptance by claiming that the Sun's office-cat took a 'mighty bite out of the best part of what Mr. Cleveland was expected to say' on the subject. If the cat really swallowed anything that Cleveland had to say on civil service reform, she did something that even the mugwumps have been unable to do lately."

Big guns come high. The average price is said to be about $1000 a ton, which would make a 57-ton gun cost $57,000. The giant guns, like human giants, are early affected with consumptive tendencies. Some officers estimate the vitality of a giant gun at two hundred discharges, while others say it is setting it too high. Assuming that a 57-ton gun discharge is therefore $285, in addition to expensive projectiles and cartridges.

Davis of Worcester, Mass., real estate in York for $8,500; George Goodwin of York to William D. Goodwin of the same place, real estate in York for $800. Wells—James H. West of Wells to Hannah N. Goodale of same place, farm in Wells for $1; Alberius B. Potter of Rollinsford, N. H., to Corydon O. Chamberlain of Brattleboro, Vt., land in Wells for $1.

The three-story dwelling of Mr. A. Jellison, situated near the camp grounds at Old Orchard, was burned last Thursday night, taking fire in the kitchen, probably from the stove; loss $2500; insurance $1000. Mr. Jellison and his two children were asleep in the second story when the fire broke out, it being near midnight, and when they awakened the whole lower story was on fire. Mr. Thomas A. Bowen of Portland, who was stopping at Old Orchard, was roused by the fire, and with the aid of several ladies got a ladder up to a window just in time for the family to escape.

Mrs. Eliza Dennett, aged ninety-two years, was fatally injured in Biddeford on Sunday last by being thrown from a carriage while on the way home from church.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating — Sick Headache — Heart-burn — Sour Stomach

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. PAGE, Watertown, Mass.

POLICE COURT---BATCHELDER J.

MONDAY, Sept. 17th.

Thomas Francis, for vagrancy, was ordered to the county farm for thirty days, and to pay $8.04 costs.

Alexander Eastman, for drunkeness, was assessed $8.76, fine and costs, and ordered to the county farm in default of payment.

THE ELKS.

George A. Reynolds, exalted ruler, Frank L. Avery, esteemed leading knight, George H. Lewis, esteemed loyal knight, H. E. Easterby, esteemed lecturing knight, W. W. O'Brien, esquire, D. J. Coyle, inner guard, John Nichols, tyler, George R. Stark, assistant to esquire, and H. J. Richardson, organist of the Hartford, Conn., lodge of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, arrived in this city on Monday morning. They were accompanied by George W. Simond of Bridgeport, district deputy ruler of Connecticut, and John Dee of Boston, district deputy ruler of Massachusetts. The gentlemen were met at the depot by Messrs. True W. Priest and D. M. Smith, and escorted to the Rockingham house, their headquarters for the day. In the evening they initiated the members of the new lodge of the order just formed in this city, and installed the following as officers:

Exalted ruler, True W. Priest;

Esteemed leading knight, S. Plummer Jones;

Esteemed loyal knight, J. Frank Magraw;

Esteemed lecturing knight, Arthur G. Brewster;

Treasurer, William J. Moat;

Secretary, Frank J. Seymour;

Tyler, Edward G. Green.

After the official exercises of the evening were over, the visiting brethren, representatives of the press and other invited guests of this city, and the members of the newly-instituted Portsmouth lodge, No. 97, to the number of about seventy in all, sat down to a supper at the Rockingham, of which it is enough to say that it was gotten up in Manager Hill's best style.

NEW HAMPSHIRE FIRE LOSSES.

The fire losses in this state for the month of August were twelve in number, and the total loss was $23,370. On this there was $11,916 of insurance paid. The greatest loss by a single fire was that of Littleton on the 2d ult., when $10,000 worth of property was destroyed. The fires reported included two in Manchester, two in North Conway, two in Nashua, one each at Littleton, Fitzwilliam, Plaistow, North Hampton, Hudson and North Weare. The August losses in 1887 were $178,525; insurance $38,352.

ROCKINGHAM BIBLE SOCIETY.

The annual session of the East Rockingham Bible Society is to be held in the Methodist church at Hampton, on Thursday, September 27th. The order of exercises has been arranged as follows:

Ten A. M., prayer meeting, led by the pastor of the church; 10:30, welcome by the pastor, and reply by the president; 10:45, business; 11:15, "How to receive spiritual benefit from the Bible?" by Rev. Edward Robie, D. D.; 11:45, "How to interpret the Bible?" by Rev. F. White; 12:15 P. M., adjournment and basket picnic; 1:30, "The Poetry of the Bible," by Rev. S. P. Heath; 2:00, "Bible work in New Hampshire," by Dea. W. G. Brown; 2:25, volunteer talks on the above topics; 3:30, address by Rev. A. D. Ayer, D. D.; 4:00, adjournment.

Capt. I. H. Washburne, U. S. M. C., started Monday on a trip of two weeks to the British provinces, on business and pleasure combined. He was to be joined at Portland by a party of gentlemen bound to the provinces.

Mr. Washington Stott has arrived home after a vacation trip of about a month to Canada and several places in "the states."

Arlo Bates, who has passed several weeks at Newcastle, returned to Boston on Monday.

John Albee, Esq., returned from a long stay at the Cichorua house in Tamworth on Monday.

Messrs. Lyford and Nute, state bank commissioners, are in town on business.

Mr. William C. Walton, teller in the New Hampshire national bank, returned on Monday and resumed his duties after an absence of two weeks, during which time he has visited Buffalo, Albany, and points of interest on the Hudson river.

Mr. Alfred N. LaBrie has resigned his position as organist and choir-master at Christ church.

Mrs. Hazebrook of Chicago is a guest of Hon. John R. Reding and wife of State street.

Miss Pearl Akermen, who has been passing several weeks with her grandparents, Hon. Jos. P. Morse and wife, returned to Boston on Monday to resume her studies at the Institute of Technology.

Mr. John P. Hart and wife, and Miss Clara L. French, who have been sojourning at the Jackson Falls house, Jackson, this state, for some time, have returned home.

Miss E. Anne Philbrook of Mark street is at the Pepperrell house, Kittery Point.

Chief Engineer William E. Hoyt, of the Rochester (N. Y.) railway, was in this city on Monday on a visit to his mother, Mrs. A. M. Hoyt, of No. 49 Pleasant street.

Mr. Martin Snow of Blair, Nebraska, formerly of this city, arrived here on Monday for a brief visit. He went from Blair to Columbus, Ohio, to attend the national convention of the Grand Army, and at the close of the convention thought that he had got so near to his old home that he might as well pay it a visit. Mr. Snow served in the navy during the war of secession.

Mr. William H. Lovell of Nashua, formerly for many years a resident of Portsmouth, was in this city on Monday.

Miss Clara M. Fowler is occupying her cottage at Little Boar's Head, vacated on the 15th inst. by Mr. Houghton of Cambridge, Mass.

It was reported on Monday that Mrs. John Swett of Maplewood, Mass., formerly Miss Kate Wilson of this city, who recently returned to her home with her little child after passing several weeks on a visit to Miss Kate P. Johnson of Rye road, was hopelessly ill, the physicians giving no hope of her recovery.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

The engines of the U. S. S. Kearsarge, at this navy yard, were started on Monday, and were run all day, with satisfactory results to those in charge of the test.

Commodore W. S. Schley, chief of the bureau of equipment and recruiting, paid an official visit to this navy yard on Monday forenoon, and received the regulation salute.

The visit of Ex-Secretary of the Navy Chandler to the navy yard yesterday caused great surprise among those who recognized him, and some suggested that he had come to take an inventory of the new ships, tools, etc., in view of the probable election of Harrrison and Morton. It may be stated, to establish the peace of mind of the sensitive democrats who feel that their places are not as secure as they would wish, that Senator Chandler's visit had no political phase, but that it was principally to visit his son, Lloyd H. Chandler, an ensign in the navy, and at present attached to to the cruiser Boston at the yard. The ex-secretary also made a social call upon Rear Adm. Gherardi, commandant of the station, and with him visited the new vessel at the wharves and also the new cruiser Maine, now in course of construction.—New York Tribune.

MARITIME NOTES.

The steamer Oceanic arrived back at her wharf on Sunday evening in six and a half hours from Boston. There was a heavy southeasertly sea running on the return trip, and though the boat behaved well, many of the passengers were made decidedly uncomfortable by the shaking up they received. A number of those who went to Boston in her missed her on the return, and came home by rail; and a good many of the others wished they had missed her, too.

Coal freights from Baltimore to this port on the 15th were quoted at $1.15 per ton.

A large four-masted schooner, coal-laden, anchored with several other vessels in the lower harbor on Sunday afternoon. Among them were some western-bound lumber-laden vessels. A coal

The steamer Oceanic will make an excursion trip up river and across Great bay next Sunday, leaving the wharf at 1:30 o'clock P. M. This trip is a beautiful one.

The steamer Minnecola was announced to make her last excursion from the Merrimac for this season on Sunday, with a party to this port, but she did not put in an appearance here. The day was not a favorable one for maritime excursions.

The four-masted schooner T. A. Lambert, which sailed from this port last week after discharging at Concord railroad wharf a cargo of 2500 tons of coal to J. Albert Walker, not only brought to this port the largest cargo of coal ever landed here by any vessel, but is the largest fore-and-aft rigged vessel in the world, her extreme carrying capacity being 2725 tons. She is 320 feet long over all, forty-seven feet beam, twenty-two feet depth of hold, and when down to her deep-load line draws twenty-two feet six inches of water.

Mr. Edw. C. Stickney, the athlete, has returned to his residence at Mountain Park, Swampscott, Mass. He is open to engagements, for single nights or any longer term, from now until next June, and has a standing offer of $100 to any person who will put up his heavy dumbbell, weighing 200 pounds, which no one but he has yet done. His post-office address is Lynn, Mass.

Mr. C. W. Taylor is putting a Magee furnace into the store of J. C. Carr on Market street.

Two young men who were driving on the road from this city to Rye, Monday afternoon, found lying in the road Mr. Chauncey Chapman of Water street, badly injured and unable to help himself, and took him to his home, from which he was in the evening carried to the Cottage Hospital, it being considered necessary to amputate one of his legs. He was engaged in hauling bricks from this city to the Dow farm at Rye, with a double team, and fell off in such a manner that a wheel passed over one of his legs.

The New York newspapers of Saturday did not arrive by mail, while the news agents, as usual, were supplied. For a while the Tribune was inclined to go astray; now the New York Times either disappears entirely, or is a day behind. The post-office department of course is not at fault; all the same, the papers fail to appear, at frequent intervals.

There was sent out to Greenland last week from the marble works of Hon. John S. Treat, corner of Vaughan and Deer streets, a slab of Columbian Falls marble ten inches thick, bearing the following inscription: "Rev. William Allen. Born in Boston, March, 1676. He was the first pastor of the Congregational church in Greenland, and was ordained July 15, 1707, being the fifth minister ordained in this state. He was pastor fifty-three years, but for the last four years of his life had for his associate Rev. Samuel McClintock. He died Sept. 8, 1760, aged 84."

The First Symptoms

Of all Lung diseases are much the same: feverishness, loss of appetite, sore throat, pains in the chest and back, headache, etc. In a few days you may be well, or, on the other hand, you may be down with Pneumonia or "galloping Consumption." Run no risks, but begin immediately to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Several years ago, James Birchard, of Darien, Conn., was severely ill. The doctors said he was in Consumption, and that they could do nothing for him, but advised him, as a last resort, to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking this medicine, two or three months, he was pronounced a well man. His health remains good to the present day.

J. S. Bradley, Malden, Mass., writes: "Three winters ago I took a severe cold, which rapidly developed into Bronchitis and Consumption. I was so weak that I could not sit up, was much emaciated, and coughed incessantly. I consulted several doctors, but they were powerless, and all agreed that I was in Consumption. At last, a friend brought me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. From the first dose, I found relief. Two bottles cured me, and my health has since been perfect."

A FAMILY ADRIFT.

Last Saturday morning a farmer living in the outskirts of Dover informed a police officer of the city that a man and a young girl, the latter dressed in boy's clothes, had been camping out in the woods in his region, sleeping in barns, and in fact stopping whenever night overtook them, and he thought something must be wrong. The officer started to investigate the affair, and soon met the suspects driving into the city in an open wagon, which contained, besides the man and girl, a cat and two kittens and a dog and two puppies, and was drawn by a horse which would evidently have to be leaned up against the fence if taken from the shafts, to prevent his falling down and breaking to pieces like an unbreakable lamp chimney. The pair were taken before Dover's city marshal, to whom they told straight stories, and there being nothing to warrant their detention they were allowed to depart. They reported themselves to be Frank McFarland, from a town in Maine, and his daughter, Sarah McFarland; they had been in Wells, South Berwick, Barrington, Great Falls and other places, seeking employment, and were looking further; the girl was not in boy's clothes, but had on her father's overcoat, which caused the error. The man had a bottle of anti-chill fluid with him, but was not at all intoxicated.

A Cup of Sanford's Ginger.

SANFORD'S GINGER, compounded of Imported Ginger, Choice Aromatics, and the best of French Brandy, is a most grateful stimulant to the stomach, speedily promoting digestion and assimilation of food, and hence fortifies the system against prostrating influences and summer ills.

It instantly relieves cramps and pains, speedily checks all forms of summer ills, prevents indigestion, destroys disease germs in water drunk, restores the circulation and digestion when suspended by a chill,—a frequent cause of stomach troubles,—breaks up colds and fevers, and wards off malarial, contagious and epidemic influences.

Never travel without SANFORD'S GINGER.

WHAT IS
SCROFULA
It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arm, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.
How Can It Be CURED
By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.
"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N.J.

An Epileptic Colony.

A short time ago I visited the "Bethel" Epileptic colony at Bielefeld, in the province of Westphalia, Germany. It is now nearly twenty years since Pastor von Bodelschwingh, a Lutheran clergyman, purchased a farmhouse, and with four epileptics established here a colony which, for nobility of conception and successful results, has nowhere an equal. From this small beginning there has been a gradual growth until today there are over 825 epileptic patients, and more than sixty houses upon the farm. The founder had long considered the unhappy lot of these unfortunates, who are usually burdens to their families, against whom the public schools are closed, whom none will employ in shops or apprentices to trades, and who are often necessarily deprived of social intercourse with their fellows by the nature of their malady, or find an asylum only in institutions for idiots or insane. It seemed to him feasible to create a refuge where these sufferers might be cured, if curable, might have a home if recovery were impossible, might learn trades, and the great majority become educated, useful and industrious citizens. Visitors are deeply impressed with the happiness, contentment and prosperity everywhere apparent among the inhabitants of this little epileptic world. No longer an experiment, it answers the previously unanswerable objections to such aggregations. Since its foundation more than 2,000 patients have been treated here, more than 150 cured, and more than 450 been discharged improved.

The employments in this institution are numerous and varied. Work not only ameliorates the mental and physical condition of epileptics, but the incurably afflicted are provided with occupations which they are not permitted elsewhere to follow. A school furnishes instruction to some 150 pupils of both sexes. All branches are taught.—Dr. Frederick Peterson in Medical Journal.

The Cries of the Elephant.

The elephant has been described by hunters as having three cries. A quiet study of him in his undisturbed home life shows that his variety of utterance is very great. A shrill blowing through the trunk, in some treatises described as a cry of pleasure, is in Ceylon, at any rate, the cry of rage and defiance. Trunk is a word derived from the French trompe, and means the trumpet; in old illustrations an elephant may be seen pictured having the end of his trunk trumpet shaped. A groan from the throat expresses suffering. A twitter with the lips, defined by the syllable "prut," is the low word of alarm which elephants pass from one to another when anything unusual appears in the forest.

A night alarm, which hurries them beyond this note of caution, excites them to produce a booming like the sound of an empty tun struck by a mallet. One observer believes this noise to be made by the elephant beating on his side with his proboscis. Another gentleman states that he has seen the sound produced by the animal striking the ground forcibly with the point of the trunk, which is then raised and pushed in the direction of the threatened danger, as if to detect its nature by the sense of smell. When the sound is heard in the woods, bellowing and trumpeting are usually mingled with it. It is remarkable that while an elephant disturbed in the jungle will burst away with a rush that seems to bear all down before him, the noise often sinks into absolute stillness, and the animal steals quietly away, carrying his enormous weight without a sound, almost without leaving the trace of disturbed foliage behind.—Philadelphia Call.

Gazing Into Shop Windows.

One young man was walking reflectively along, and the class of articles that seemed to interest him were very peculiar indeed. He stopped in front of a large display of laces and read with great satisfaction the sign, "Prices completely wrecked. Only five cents a yard." "Cheap enough," he muttered to himself, and passed on by window after window of smokers' articles, beautiful paintings, gentlemen's canes and hats, till he came to a display of ladies' gloves. Here he tarried a long time. A while after he was standing in front of a display of wall paper. What was he thinking about and why was he alone? Was he on the verge of some mental Rubicon, the crossing of which was connected in some way with the prices of laces, gloves and wall paper?

Perhaps the most interesting observation of human nature that can be taken during a walk by the shop windows, and one requiring no very keen powers of perception, is afforded by stepping up in front of any deserted window. It is not necessary that there be anything on exhibition. Let there be nothing inside but a bare shelf. Stand there a moment gazing within and soon somebody else will step up beside you, then another, and within a minute or two there will be several. The experiment can be repeated again and again with uniform success.—Chicago Herald.

Railroad Horses in England.

English railroads do the major portion of their own carting, collecting and delivering freight at the freighters' doors. One of the largest companies, the Midland, have in constant employment no fewer than 3,200 horses; and of these 1,000 are located in London.

Some of these horses are, however, employed in switching cars, at which business a heavy horse weighing about 2,000 pounds can do good service. They soon become very expert, and start the car by standing with the trace chain slack, and then, without moving their feet, throw their shoulders forward, when their weight starts the car. They also learn to judge when the car has acquired sufficient speed, and step aside without a word of command, letting the cars come gently together.—Scientific American.

Population and Morals.

The density or sparsity of population has much to do with morals. It is hard work to exercise faith in fetid air. It is a difficult task to be pious in a poisoned atmosphere. The slums of great cities are not congenial soil in which to cultivate moral and religious principles. If there is a sleepless, seething hell anywhere upon the globe, you can find the locale in the densely populated portions of great cities.—Rev. W. Forteus in Globe-Democrat.

When we consider the patronage of this great office, [the presidency,] the allurements of power, the temptation to retain place once gained, and more than all, the availability a party finds in an incumbent whom a horde of office holders, with a zeal born of benefits and fostered by the hope of favors yet to come, stand ready to aid with money and trained political service, we recognize in the eligibility of the president for re-election a most serious danger to that calm, deliberate and intelligent political action, which must characterize a government by the people.—Grover Cleveland.

Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

When our manufactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C. Calhoun.

Men and Women's Bones,

Joints and muscles may escape the agonizing tortures of rheumatism if they will but "take time by the forelock," and annihilate the symptoms of oncoming trouble with the benignant and highly sanctioned blood depurent and alternative, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Poisons mostly constitute the ordinary means of battling with this atrocious complaint. Avoid the risk of using these by resorting to the safe as well as effectual antiphlogistic and preventive. After exposures to damp, through drafts and other causes which encourage a rheumatic tendency, a wineglassful of the Bitters prevents ill effects. No surer preventive of malarial ailments like fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake exists, and it is, besides, a most genial recuperator of strength exhausted by excessive mental or physicial effort. Miners, mariners, operatives and others whose avocations involve laborious work in rough weather out of doors, or close application indoors, find it invaluable.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot last while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

Didn't Want a Girl.

Last summer my wife's health was all run down, and she wanted me to hire a girl to the work. In a little while I found one I thought would suit her, when to my surprise she said I need not hire any one, as she felt much better, and thought another bottle of Sulpher Bitters would cure her. Donald Grey, 41 Worcester square, Boston.

An extensive domestic market for the surplus produce of the soil is of the first consequence. It is, of all things, that which most effectually conduces to a flourishing state of agriculture.—Alexander Hamilton.

We know of no mode of treatment which offers, to sufferers from chronic diseases, a more certain hope of cure than that which is comprehended in the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. For purifying and invigorating the blood, this preparation is unequaled.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

Hay Fever.

I have been afflicted with hay fever from early in August until frost. My eyes would run a stream of water and I sneezed continually. I was advised to use Ely's Cream Balm. It has worked like a charm and I can say I am entirely cured.—Mrs. Emeline Johnson, Chester, Conn.

I have been for several years a sufferer from hay fever and severe head colds. I have found nothing that can compare with Ely's Cream Balm. I would not be without it for any consideration. It is simply wonderful in its effect upon the nasal organs.—S. A. Burtt, Wilmington, N. C.

We must now place our manufacures by the side of the agriculturist. * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

It is certain that the arguments which President Cleveland urges are those which Cobden used to employ forty-five years ago, and which any free trader could employ now.—London Times.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. mon.wed.fri.eod1yr

The Population of Portsmouth

Sold by all druggists. sep29

The Handsomest Lady of Portsmouth

Remarked to a friend the other day that she know Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when other cough remedies had no effect whatever. So prove this and convince you of its merit, any druggist will give you a sample bottle free. Large size 50c. and $1.

OH! MY HEAD.
The pain from Neuralgia and its companion disease Rheumatism is excruciating. Thousands who could be quickly cured are needlessly suffering. Athlophoros will do for others what it did for the following parties:
Williamsport, Ind., Oct. 8, 1887.
Having been afflicted with neuralgia for the past four years, and trying almost everything, but to vain, I finally heard of Athlophoros. After taking one bottle I found it to be helping me, and after taking four bottles of Athlophoros and one of Pills, I found that I was entirely well. I think the medicine is positively a sure cure.
CRADDUCK B. RENDICK.
Mt. Carmel, Ill., Dec 26 1887.
I have used Athlophoros in my family and find it to be the greatest medicine for neuralgia in existence, and having had its fangs fastened upon me for the past 30 years I know whereof I speak. MRS. JULIA WILTON.

A Hint to Puny People.

From their arrival on this planet to their usually early departure from it, people of weak constitutions and angular physiques pass a sort of half-existence. Like dormice they burrow in their home retreats, afrid of heat, afraid of cold, constantly afraid that the shadow of the dread reaper will materialize and exact the forfeit which he demands from all, sooner or latter. No finer medicinal assurance of comparative vigor for the feeble exists than agorded by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Used with persistence—not with spurts and spasm—this genial and professionally commended tonic will do much toward infusing strength into a puny system, and rounding off scrawny angles in the human figure. Appetite, nerve tranquility and nightly repose are encouraged by it, and a malarial, rheumatic, bilious tendency overdone. It reestablishes digestion and prevents kidney troubles.

Congress have eventually, and no without success, directed their attention to the encouragement of manufactures. The object is of too much consequence not to insure a continuance of their efforts in every way which shall appear eligible.—George Washington.

The only time England can use a Celt is when he emigrates to America, and votes for free trade. — London Times.

Vincent Lundberg, of Stockholm, Physician-in-Chief to the King of Sweden, recommends Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer for the scalp and hair.

Peculiar

In the combination, proportion, and preparation of its ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures where other preparations entirely fail. Peculiar in its good name at home, which is a "tower of strength abroad," peculiar in the phenomenal sales it has attained. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most successful medicine for puryifying the blood-giving strength, and creating an appetite.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this stare communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

The liver and kidneys must be kept in good condition. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a great remedy for regulating these organs.

The issue of Protection is incalculably stronger and greater than any man, as it concerns the prosperity of the present and of the generations yet to come.—James G. Blaine.

Could not Keep

Shop without them. I consider your Sulpher Bitters a remarkable blood purifier. I know of several people, whose cases were considered hopeless, that have been cured by your medicine. The sale of Sulpher Bitters is so large here that I could not keep shop without them. E. S. Yates, Pharmacist, 99 Essex street, Lawrence, Mass.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

Mobile Prizes. How—Where—When.

Mr. Frank McKeon, a clever gentleman, of McKeon & Menken, who operate a restaurant, said that it was a fact that he and Mr. Beyle held one-twentieth of ticket No. 33,469, the second capital prize of $100,000 in the last drawing of The Louisiana State Lottery. "The prize came in good time, as I needed the money badly, as you know I have had plenty of bad luck. We were burned out last fall. Another misfortune was losing $500 in a recent bank failure." The Southern Express Company collected it for Messrs. McKeon and Beyle.—Mobile (Ala.) Register, July 15th.

More than twenty years ago Adamson's Botanic Balsam was introduced generally throughout New England as a remedy for Coughs, Colds and Pulmonary complaints. Since its introduction it has constantly won its way into public favor, until now it is the universal decision that ADAMSON'S BOTANIC BALSAM is the best remedy for curing Coughs, Colds and Asthma.

LOVE'S INFINITUDE.

Can time, you ask, my heart from thine estrange?
The quality of loving do not mock!
Can hearts that love find time in time to change?
—That one tick of the great celestial clock
The angels hear—wherein we can but clasp
The thing we love and lay it in the tomb?
That breathing space, wherein we can but grasp
The key to Heaven, and lo! the gates uploom,
And we stand panting on the outer side?
Ask rather, can a breeze blow out the sun.
Love is eternal, Heaven is its throne,
Infinitude its limit, God its guide,
And time can only teach to thee and me
A golden prelude to a love to be.
—Orelia Key Bell in Detroit Free Press.

A WORD ABOUT SAVING.

Kindness and Charity Should be Guided by Prudence—Recreations and Dress.

Again, do not be too kind to your relations. I do not say that you should be selfish or mean, but only prudent. Before lending money to be used in their business, see that the business is a safe one; you may have the fullest confidence in the honest intentions of the borrower, but make sure that his capacity is to be depended on. Many teachers give their savings to help in the education of their brothers. Here, too, charity should be guided by prudence. It is no true kindness to help a stupid boy to a university education. You had much better help him in some other way. It is also bad for him to be allowed to take your savings without any recompense. In most cases you had better lend than give. The knowledge that he must repay out of his future earnings, what he now spends, will help to keep him from extravagance. And let all such transactions be conducted on a business footing; take receipts for your money and formal bonds for repayment. An affection that would think itself insulted by being asked to observe such forms is a very poor sort of thing.

Saving, as well as investing, should be done in a common sense way. It is penny wise and pound foolish to stint yourself in food or firing (I have known foreign teachers to do this sometimes), for the sake of adding a few pounds to your store. Live as simple as you like, but take care to keep yourself as far as you can in perfect health. Your health is part of your capital, and on its preservation depends your power of supporting yourself at all. Do not consider all recreations as extravagance; teachers often err in the matter of holidays, not giving themselves any real rest or change, and then wonder when they find themselves losing their freshness and interest in their work—deteriorating in value, in fact. Not only is this an injury to themselves, but also to their employers.

In dress, too, you are bound to keep yourself tidy; if your employers pay you a fair salary, they have a right to expect to find you fit to be seen. Too much economy in this direction will only injure you. Lastly, you may have opportunities of improving yourself by going abroad for a time, or by attending classes at home. Do not lose such opportunities from motives of economy; they are investments rather than spendings.—Cassell's Magazine.

A Metropolis of South America.

Nature never intended there should be a city where Valparaiso stands, but the enterprise of the Chillanos, aided by English and German capital, has built the finest on the west coast of South America, and commerce has made its headquarters there. The harbor is spacious, its surroundings picturesque, and ten months in the year shipping is protected, and in midwinter, when "northers" prevail, vessels are often driven from their anchorage and compelled to cruise about to avoid being dashed upon the rocks on which the city stands. A breakwater built across the entrance to the harbor might give ample protection, but the sea is so deep—more than 200 fathoms—that such a work is deemed impracticable. In the bay, drawn up in lines, like men of war ready for review, are hundreds of crafts, bearing the flags of almost every nation on the earth except our own.

The foreign trade is controlled by Englishmen, all commercial transactions are rendered in pounds sterling, the English language is spoken on the streets and in the shops, an English newspaper is published, and to a stranger the city seems like one of her majesty's colonies. There is a strong prejudice against the United States, growing out of the attitude assumed by our government during the war between Chili and Peru, which is stimulated by the English residents.——William Eleroy Curtis in Harper's Magazine.

Improvement of Current English.

It follows that improvement in the quality of current English is to be brought about, if at all, not by vain efforts to prevent the production or the disseminating of newspapers and novels, but by raising the average of those that are produced. Men and women of culture and of high aims must be brought into the business. Students in our colleges who are looking to book making or to journalism as a profession, must be urged to keep constantly in mind that whatever they write should, always and under all conditions, be their best; and that by best is meant, not merely English that will bear grammatical and rhetorical tests, but English that means something, and means it so strongly that a reader who has once begun the article or the chapter feels obliged to finish it.—Professor Adams Sherman Hill in Scribner's Magazine.

Volcanic Silver.

Professor Mallet has analyzed a specimen of volcanic ash collected on the Pacific coast of Ecuador, 120 miles west of Cotopaxi. The ash fell on July 23, 1885, and formed a deposit to the depth of several inches. The interesting feature in the composition of the material was the presence of a small amount of silver, probably as silver chloride; experiments showed that the silver was present to the extent of one part in 80,000 ash. This is the first time that silver has been identified in material ejected from a volcano.—Proceedings of Royal Society.

A Peculiar Water Plant.

A species of water plant which grows on the backs of living turtles has been described by Mr. M. C. Potter, of the Linnean society of London. It enters the crack of the shell, but is nourished from the water, and not from the animal juices.—Arkansaw Traveler.

THE THEORY OF STORMS.

An Easily Understood Description of How They Originate and Pass Away.

Sergt. E. B. Dunn, the signal service officer in charge of the station on the Equitable building, thus explained the theory of storms the other day:

"Storms are caused," he said, "first by the meeting and commingling of inequal atmospheric temperatures or pressures; second, by the rotation of the earth, and, thirdly, by unequal specific gravity of different layers of air. The first of these causes is the prime one; the other two are but of secondary and comparatively slight importance in the generation of a storm.

"It is a well known fact that warm air rises. It is equally well known that the earth becomes heated by the sun's rays falling upon it, and by the absorption and radiation of this stored up heat renders the temperature higher at the surface than at elevated points. For a time this hot air on the surface is kept down by atmospheric pressure, but there comes a time when the expansion becomes so great as to break through the cold air pressure, and the hot air goes up with a rush, rising sometimes to great height. As this warm air rises it creates a vacuum below, and the cooler air rushes in from all sides to fill its place. This cool air, as it gets gradually heated, also rises, and more cool air rushes in to again fill the vacuum. Right at this point where the hot air first rises is the center of a storm. The vacuum caused by the ascending hot air sucks into its vortex the air from every point of the compass, and this suction causes wind, but places affected by a storm thus formed, it will be seen, will have the wind from different points of the compass, according to their direction from the storm center. Thus, a locality directly south of a storm center will have the wind from the south, as it rushes north. When this warm air has accumulated at a sufficiently high altitude, and become surrounded by a cooler air, the moisture in it begins to condense, forming rain.

"The rushing in of the cool air to fill the vacuum caused by the rising hot air gives motion to the accumulation of warm air, and it begins to whirl about in a circle, but at the center all is calm and clear. Thus it is that sometimes we experience 'a lull in the storm,' as it is called. Such a brief respite is nothing more than the passing of a storm center directly over head, through which the sun even may shine unobstructedly.

"As this storm keeps whirling about over head it continues to gather energy, and grows by the accession of more heated air, exactly as a snowball is increased in diameter by rolling it in the snow. At last the accumulation becomes of such proportions as to feel the effects of the earth's rotation, and it begins to move. This rotation of the earth, being from west to east, gives all the storms of any extent the same general direction. Such general direction, however, from west to east, is liable to deflections from various causes, such as mountains, conditions of the atmosphere, by coming in contact with other storms or air currents, and by large areas of water.

"Nine out of ten American storms originate in the mountainous regions of the northwest, where the warm air of the valleys rises and comes in contact with the cool air from the great elevations of the Rocky mountains. These storms take a generally southeasterly direction until they get into the dry regions of Kansas, and there, becoming famished, as it were, for want of moisture, and as if scenting the water for which they long from the direction of the great lake region, they make a turn to the northeast and proceed to the great lakes, where they absorb abundance of moisture, and then travel on east, deluging us with this water from the lakes. All such general storms pass out from this country to the Atlantic, through the St. Lawrence valley. Within recent years these American storms have been actually traced across the Atlantic to Europe, and some of them even as far as Asia.

"All storms originate in the same way, whether on land or at sea; in summer or in winter. The undercurrent of air which rises need not necessarily be warm to make it rise; as, for instance, where the temperature is below the freezing point; but the undercurrent must be of a higher temperature than that above and surrounding it to force it to rise. In other words, a storm is originated by a commingling of unequal atmospheric temperatures."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

A Co-operative Kitchen.

The scheme has been actually carried into effect in New York, so far as some of the great apartment houses are concerned. In them there is one kitchen for many families, and it is presided over by a high priced cook, such a man as only the richest single families are able to employ. Provisions are bought wholesale, and there is a variety in the fare not possible in an ordinary household with its own kitchen. The housemaids are also supplied by the manager, in whose pay and under whose discipline they are, and the establishment furnishes, besides, mechanics and porters for the common convenience. Therefore, a family may obtain cookery and service which only the very rich are able to secure in another than a co-operative household.

Yet people who have lived in such apartment houses have often become dissatisfied with them. The cookery is restaurant cookery, and something of the character of the home is lost. Life is too easy, and women may sigh for the occupations with which the old fashioned household provided them. But the London writer is correct in his prevision when he says that something like associated homes is clearly indicated for the future.—New York Sun.

Stalking a Flagstaff

A Falmouth sportsman went out for beach birds recently. A glance across West Falmouth meadows showed him the long neck and head of a blue heron. Straightway he began to wriggle along the marsh toward the game. Every now and then he would raise his head to make sure that his prey had not flitted to fields more green, and then another rod of wallowing through green ooze and slimy mud. At last he came to an "nim," and raised to his knee—to find that he had been stalking the flagstaff and pennant of a sloop in West Falmouth harbor, a mile away.—Boston Journal.

OH, WHAT A COLD!

This is the season for sudden changes in the weather, and a great many "take cold" either in their Head or on their Lungs, causing Coughs, Hoarseness, and Sore Throat. These troubles can be soon relieved and cured by taking Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs, entirely removing these difficulties.

Cured his boy of Croup.

C. M. Brooks, Lowell, Mass., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific as a cure for Coughs, Colds, and Croup. I used it in my family last winter with the best results. Two or three doses cured my little boy of Croup, for which I am very thankful."

You can cure that Cough in a short time. You can cure your Catarrh if you persist in its use, as it will stop the secretion of Catarrhal matter in the head; it will relieve Croup in from three to five minutes.

The best he ever saw.

"The best medicine for Coughs and Consumptive Complaints that ever I saw is Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific," so says John McLaughlin, of Boston.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

He Would "Teach" the Voters.

Hon. Chauncey F. Black, president of the national association of democratic clubs, has received the following letter from President Cleveland:

My Dear Sir: The papers which you kindly sent for my perusal, touching the scope, method and purposes of the association of democratic clubs, have strengthened my belief in the extreme importance of such organizations as have been thus organized. The struggle upon which we have entered is in behalf of the people—the plain people of the land—and they must be reached. We do not proceed upon the theory that they are to be led by others who may or may not be in sympathy with their interests. We have undertaken to teach the voters as free independent citizens, intelligent enough to see their rights, interested enough to insist upon being treated justly, and patriotic enough to desire their country's welfare. Thus this campaign is one of information and organization. Every citizen should be regarded as a thoughtful, responsible voter, and he should be furnished the means of examining the issues involved in the pending canvass for himself. I am convinced that no agency is so effective to this end, as the clubs which have been formed, permeating all parts of the country, and making their influence felt in every neighborhood. By a systematic effort they may make the objects of the democratic party understood by a fair and calm discussion of the democratic position in this contest, among those with whom their members daily come in contact; and by preventing a neglect of the duty of suffrage on election day, these clubs will become, in my opinion, the most important instrumentality yet devised for promoting the success of your party. Yours very truly,

GROVER CLEVELAND.

Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb's Autumn Tours.

The enterprising firm of excursion managers, Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb, are meeting with great success with their admirably planned autumn tours. The September list is not yet exhausted, and the excursions announced for the closing weeks of the month are among the best of all. Four additional trips are now announced for October. One of these is an excursion to Washington, with an allowance of between five and six days in the national capital, and another is a trip to Niagara Falls in a magnificent train of vestibuled cars. Virginia, Canada, the picturesque region of northern New England, and other points of interest will be visited in the other tours. In addition to the shorter trips there will be two excursions to California—one over the Northern Pacific railroad, and the other over the Santa Fe Line,—and one to Colorado. The dates of the winter trips to California and Mexico are also announced. Descriptive circulars may be obtained by addressing W. Raymond, 296 Washington street, (opposite School street,) Boston.

Gen. George Stark of Nashua was stricken with apoplexy on Sunday night, and is in a precarious condition.

Charles Emerson of Great Falls, aged about thirty years, married, and employed in the Great Falls machine shop, left the Great Falls hotel about 11:30 o'clock Sunday night, and his dead body was taken from the river Tuesday morning.

The republican senatorial convention of the Dover district was held in Dover city hall on Tuesday, and John H. Nute of Sawyer Mills nominated.

The barn, stable and other outbuildings of George F. Wolcott at North Conway were burned Sept. 17th, with eight cows, by the breaking of a kerosene lantern; loss $1500.

The railroad shop in Contoocook was set on fire on the night of the 17th inst., but no great damage resulted.

RAILROAD ITEMS.

It is stated that Col. Charles A. Sinclair, as the representative of the estate of J. W. Johnson, and Hon. George B. Chandler of Manchester, have brought the directors from advancing, or paying money toward the construction of the Lake Shore road by the Boston, Concord & Montreal road. Perhaps Col. Sinclair's lawyers believe that Chief Justice Doe, to whom has been made the application for an injunction, may hold that Messrs. Sinclair and Chandler as minority shareholders in the B., C. & M. R. R. should be entitled to have their rights respected in this matter of leasing a railroad against their judgment and express objections. There is some such doctrine supposed to be held by the court in the case of Dow against the Northern railroad; the opinion in this case, we think, has never been promulgated. The Dow side of the case succeeded in breaking a lease of the Northern to the Boston & Lowell Railroad Co., but just how the bench holds the law to be in such cases, the bar does not appear to have discovered. The judges have with wonderful sagacity not yet found time to agree upon an opinion which they are willing should go forth as the finding of the court.

In the case of the Manchester & Lawrence railroad vs. Concord railroad, J. Frank Webster, cashier of the latter corporation, made his appearance before the court in Manchester on the 17th inst., and his deposition was taken. He made ready answer to all the questions that were asked. The matter was adjourned to some future date, acceptable to all the counsel engaged.

ELIOT ITEMS.

ELIOT, ME., Sept. 18th.

That was a glorious republican victory gained in this town on Monday of last week, and a still bigger one is looked for on the 6th of November.

Mrs. Murray Sprague, of Lowell, Mass., is the guest of her sisters, Mrs. William J. Paul and Mrs. William A. Lydston, for a few weeks. Also Miss Gracie A. Paul of Saugus, Mass., granddaughter of Mr. William A. Paul and wife.

Rev. James Lade and wife arrived home from England on Monday, the 10th inst., and a large reception was given them in the vestry of the Congregational church.

Rev. W. F. Marshall, pastor of the Methodist church at South Eliot, gave a lecture on Sunday evening last; subject, "Downward Grade." It was represented by a railroad, and the different stations on the way to degradation and destruction. On Sunday evening, the 30th, he will deliver another lecture, on "Up Grade," and the stations on the way to holiness and happiness. It will pay all who can attend, to make special effort to do so, for the recent lecture was very interesting, and the coming one will probably be no less so.

Mr. R. F. Dixon will move his family to Cambridgeport, Mass., on Tuesday, the 25th inst., where they will reside two years. His son, Dr. E. H. Dixon, is to attend the dental school; we shall greatly miss him, as he is a very fine dentist, and has been largely patronized since he began practice. We wish him all success through life.

Mrs. Herbert Spinney and son have been passing a few days at North Berwick.

Miss Mary Von Duthen left on Tuesday for New York, where she will pass the winter.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. FAGE, Watertown, Mass.

merrily through a quadrille Miss Kate fell over on the floor. She was carried to a sofa, where her fainting fit was found to have terminated fatally. The doctors discovered that Miss Crawford had been laced so tight that the blood-vessels beneath her stays had become congested and the exertion of dancing had produced a fatal lesion.

The soldiers of Liu Tsin Tao, governor of a province in Chinese Turkestan, having been without pay for six months, and being unable to induce the governor to receive a petition from their committee, chose eight soldiers by lot to blow up the governor's house. They laid a mine under the palace and charged it with 240 pounds of powder. Half an hour before the time set for the explosion one of the conspirators weakened and confessed. The mine was flooded, thirty soldiers were killed, and 100 more arrested and held for sentence.

Eleven Englishmen recently played at cricket with eleven ladies, the conditions of the match being that the men should use broomsticks for bats and should bowl left-handed. The game was a two-inning one and is said to have been very interesting, the women winning with eighty-three runs to eighty-one for the men.

THE FIREMEN'S PARADE.

The parade of the Portsmouth fire department will take place to-day, unless the weather should be hopelessly depraved and abominable; but the proposed route of the procession has been changed and shortened, and will be as follows:

From Court street through Pleasant, Market, Deer, Bridge, Islington, Cabot, Middle, State, Pleasant, Water, State, Pleasant, Congress, Middle and Court streets to the court house yard.

Other details of the day's exercises as before announced.

DEMOCRATIC COUNCILLOR CONVENTION.

Frank Emerson of Farmington was chosen president, and James Ryan of Dover secretary.

On a ballot being taken for a candidate to be supported at the polls, the following was the result:

Whole number of votes	59
Necessary for a choice	30
W. O. Junkins had	24
Joseph W. Roberts	35

And Mr. Roberts was declared the nominee of the convention. The candidate is a native of Rollinsford, and a commissioner of Strafford county.

ASSOCIATION ELECTIONS.

At the annual meeting of the Portsmouth Athletic club, held in the rooms of the club on the evening of the 17th inst., the following officers were chosen for the ensuing year:

President, James G. Ward;
Vice President, Goodwin E. Philbrick;
Treasurer, Joseph P. Conner;
Secretary, Wm. E. Pierce;
Directors, Eugene Sullivan, Charles E. Lear, W. Gay Smart, Myers Dempsey and Mortimer L. Raynes.

George W. Boardman was elected vice president, but owing to a press of business had to decline to serve.

The club has one hundred active members, and seventy-five associate members, at the present time.

The regular monthly meeting of the Portsmouth Teachers' association was held at the common council room last Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock, teachers to the number of eighteen or twenty being present. The annual election of officers took place, and resulted as follows:

President, F. W. Sweet;
1st vice president, John Pickard;
2d vice president, Miss Fannie Mathes;
Secretary, Miss Abbie L. Haven;

A committee consisting of W. P. Brown, Miss Wright and Miss J. B. Stewart, were chosen to outline a programme for the following year.

Adjourned to the call of the president.

BOOK BINDING.

For more than ten years past Portsmouth has been without a resident bookbinder or local bookbindery. In the two Town Directories published previous to 1834, no person is mentioned as carrying on that business here, but in the Directory of 1834 there are three, namely, Nathaniel & Oliver March, (in connection with a bookstore and printing office,) George Huntress, Jr., and Alfred Stearns. In the Directory of 1839-40 the name of Edward A. Mudge appears as a bookbinder; Mr. Stearns's name does not appear that year, nor afterward; the name of Mr. George Huntress, Jr., still appears. The first rotary stocking loom known in America was exhibited in Mr. Huntress' bindery by the inventor, Richard Walker, about the year 1838, and was then thought a wonderful piece of mechanism, as it was, and the perfection of stocking-weaving machinery, which it certainly was not, it having been hopelessly distanced before many years who in connection with a book and stationery store carried on the business of bookbinder up to the time of his death, and was a skillful and faithful workman. Mr. John D. Randall, in connection with his book and job printing office, has recently established a bindery, which supplies a want felt for a decade, as any work in that line can now be done within the limits of the city, without having to be sent out of the place.

MONTE-CRISTO.

The romantic drama Monte-Cristo, an adaptation of Dumas' greatest novel, will be presented at Music hall next Saturday evening, with Mr James O'Neill in the leading part. Of his characterization the Boston Transcript says:

Mr. O'Neill sustains the title role admirably, almost perfectly. It is a part which calls for a wide range of talent upon the part of the actor, and whether as the rollicking, free-hearted sailor, the calm outspoken priest, the man of society, or the heart-sore and passion-torn slave of memory and vengeance, Mr. O'Neill shows himself a careful, painstaking and intelligent actor.

Tickets now on sale at Goodrich's.

JUSTICE DOGBERRY STILL LIVES.

The republicans of Biddeford had a torchlight parade on Friday night of last week, in celebration of the great victory of their party in Maine on the 10th inst. While the procession was moving it was stoned by a gang of young hoodlums. Several persons were struck, one of them, Mrs. Annie Mackel, having an eye destroyed. The democratic police of the city saw nothing to call for their interference, but a republican deputy sheriff of the county arrested several of the young roughs, and the next day seven of them were arraigned before Justice Hamilton of the municipal court. They confessed to throwing the stones, but said they "only did it for fun, to put the lights out," and the judge, "being satisfied that they had no intention of injuring anybody by throwing the stones, discharged them on payment of costs." If that is a fair average specimen of the law and justice served out in the Biddeford municipal court, it is no wonder that the city police wink at offences against the laws.

THE "JAPANESE VILLAGE."

The Lynn Bee, under date of Sept. 7th, had the following notice of the Japanese Village, which opens in Franklin hall next Monday evening, and continues during the week:

"Notwithstanding the rush at both the theatres last night, Odd Fellows' hall was filled with no less than 1500 people, who came to visit the first exhibition in this city of a company of Japanese in their peculiar methods. The scene presented to the view of the observer on entering the hall is a most picturesque one, the theatorium being beautifully decorated throughout with lanterns, paintings, and foreign bric-a-brac, arranged in an artistic manner. Around the sides of the hall was arranged the group of Japanese workmen, all plying their special vocation."

With this troupe is an interpreter, Hayllsir, who is a Japanese himself, and has been educated in the English tongue and our own customs. The Orientals all wear their native costumes, and speak their own language. This village is known as the Rising Sun village, and is the only one that the Japanese government has ever allowed to leave its domains for that purpose. Incidental to the exhibition of the Japs, concerts are given by the Sanford Girls' orchestra, composed of four very pretty and talented young ladies, who give a most delightful entertainment on the stage. The whole affair is under the management of Mr. Rufus Somerby, the well-known theatrical manager, who is acting for William Austin of Boston.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

The regular term of this court was on Tuesday, the 18th. Judge Clark being slightly indisposed did not appear, and the court was adjourned by the marshal.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Carpenter, wife of Capt. Charles C. Carpenter, U. S. N., late of this city and now of Charlestown, Mass., is making a brief visit to Portsmouth.

Miss Mary Neil, of Middle street, is sojourning at Tamworth.

Mrs. M. P. Williams of Boston is visiting friends in this city.

Mr. Harry Shannon, formerly of this city but for a number of years past a resident of Boston, is with his family visiting relatives and friends here.

Mr. Adolph Nelson, who has been passing several weeks in this city, returned to New York on Tuesday.

Mr. George A. Cobbett and wife, of Northwest street, are on a two weeks visit to relatives in Belfast, Me.

Miss Emily I. Hoyt, daughter of A. C. Hoyt, Esq., has arrived home from an extended visit to cities in Pennsylvania.

Hon. Frank Emerson, of Farmington, is passing a few days with his friend and relative, Andrew Sherburne, Esq., at the Plains.

Capt. Rufus A. Preble of Newcastle is of a stock that has furnished to the navy, the merchant marine and the fishing industry and merchant fleets; and he has always been a democrat. He was in this city a few days ago, and in conversation with a friend said: "I voted to put President Cleveland in, and I shall vote to put him out; you may put me down for that."

The triennial session of the Supreme Council of the A. A. Scottish Rite commenced at Masonic Temple, Boston, Tuesday forenoon. Among those in attendance were John Christie of this city, the oldest living member of the 33° in America, and Charles Levi Woodbury of Boston, illustrious first lieutenant commander.

Mr. Frank W. Hidden, who is this season a member of the crew of the fishing schooner Agnes E. Downs, gave us a brief call on Tuesday. Mr. Hidden says he shall vote for Cleveland for president, but does not want to see a democratic governor and administration in New Hampshire, on the ground of temperance. He reasons that every voter should consider the bearing his vote may possibly have on the influences thrown round the rising generation, and regards the protection of the young from the temptations of strong drink as one of the duties which should not be slighted by their elders.

In Hampton, Sept. 15th, a boy four years old, son of Justin Moulton, while at play fell and broke both bones of his left forearm. Dr. Junkins set the bones.

Five workmen from the Portsmouth machine shop, under the direction of Mr. Charles A. Dewey, left this city Tuesday morning to work on the new county buildings of Strafford county, three miles from Dover, where they have a five weeks job putting in steam heating apparatus.

Housekeepers wishing to buy a first-class cooking range at a low price are referred to C. W. Taylor's new advertisement.

The Times was enlarged by a column on each page, Tuesday evening. Our State street brethren are publishing a big paper for a city of the size of Portsmouth.

The schooner Agnes E. Downs, Capt. Levi Downs, anchored in the lower harbor on Monday with a number of other mackerelmen and coasters, and remained over Tuesday on account of the storm. She took seventy-five barrels of good fish about a week ago off Cape Elizabeth, and is bound for Barnstable bay whenever the weather is favorable.

The Riverside Property on York river is being opened up for sale, and divided into lots for building purposes. Each lot has a complete set of drawings for a house suited to the location. These designs will be altered, or a new set prepared for the purchaser if desired. Careful estimates have been made of these houses, so that an exact figure can be given of the cost of house and lot complete. Each lot has stable space reserved on a stable lot, as well as an interest in a wharf and boat house. To those intending to build immediately, an ample supply of rough building lumber will be closed on the 17th.

The present fashion for ladies to carry cats about with them came straight from Queen Victoria. She recently took a number of her favorite cats from Windsor to Osborne. The Guelph folks are all rather fond of cats. Princess Louise brought an assortment with her to Ottawa when she came as governess general.

A jackdaw flew into a church at Monkton, England, during service, and took an active part in the responses, jabbering so merrily that pastor and people were convulsed with laughter.

The bank of England has been experimenting with the electric light, and likes it so well that it has determined to make it a permanent service instead of gas.

A Kentuckian went to a dance with a pistol in his pocket. The weapon exploded, and he died with his boots on.

Minister—"I hope you are a good little boy, Bobby, and always mind your father." Bobby—"Yes, sir, I always do what he tells me to when he begins to call me Robert."

Want of Sleep

Is sending thousands annually to the insane asylum; and the doctors say this trouble is alarmingly on the increase. The usual remedies, while they may give temporary relief, are likely to do more harm than good. What is needed is an Alterative and Blood-purifier. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is incomparably the best. It corrects those disturbances in the circulation which cause sleeplessness, gives increased vitality, and restores the nervous system to a healthful condition.

Rev. T. G. A. Coté, agent of the Mass. Home Missionary Society, writes that his stomach was out of order, his sleep very often disturbed, and some impurity of the blood manifest; but that a perfect cure was obtained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Frederick W. Pratt, 424 Washington street, Boston, writes: "My daughter was prostrated with nervous debility. Ayer's Sarsaparilla restored her to health."

The Original and only genuine Rising Son

JAPANESE VILLAGE.

A colony of original artists in native costume illustrating and reproducing the Arts and Industries of Japan. The Hall will represent with the various artisans busily engaged in creating multifarious marvels of match less mechanism and illimitable illustration of ingenuity.

The hall will be elaborately decorated and richly draped by the genius of fleet children of this mighty empire, and as the audience witness the raw material quickly transformed by cunning hands and skillful fingers into an endless variety of useful and ornamental articles, they are overcome by the emotions awakened and imagine themselves for the time being residents of the distant empire of the far off Orient. Two receptions daily, from 1 to 5, 7 to 10 p. m.

10 cents admits to all. 10 cents, no more no less. Seats for Stage Performance, 5 cents.

Special.—A Solitaire Diamond Ring will be given to the boy or girl not over 15 years old, who can make the largest number of words from the name "Japanese Village."

All lists of words must be counted and the total plainly indicated and sent addressed to Rufus Somerby, manager Japanese Village, Franklin Hall, not later than Friday morning, Sept. 23.

The ring will be presented at the Saturday reception. All contestants must appear in person.

In addition to the Wonders of the Japanese Village, a Grand Stage Performance will be given by The Sanford Girls' Orchestra!

Four in number.

Prof. Frederick and Miss Cornell.

Admission to Entire Entertainment, ONLY 10 CENTS.

Seats for Stage Performance, 5 cents extra. Stage Performance every hour.

SOME DOCTORS
honestly admit that they can't cure Rheumatism and Neuralgia. Others say they can but—don't. Athophoros says nothing but—cures. That's the secret of its success. Years of trial have proved it to be a quick, safe, sure cure.
Concord, N. H., Sept. 4, 1886.
In my own family Athophoros was used as a last resort, the user having suffered from rheumatism for years and having been treated for the disease by different physicians in this State and Mass., with results without even temporary relief. Upon my recommendation some of your pills were used with the most gratifying results claimed for it. C. H. WALKER.

WHAT IS SCROFULA
It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.
How Can It Be CURED
By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.
"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

Boils and Their Treatment.

That which in every day talk is called a boil, sometimes "bile" or "beel," technical writers call a furuncle. This word is of Latin derivation, the original signifying a petty thief, and in view of the fact that few trifles can so effectually rob a man of his peace of mind it would appear that furuncle were the better name for the trouble in question, which is a circumscribed inflammation occurring in the skin and tissues immediately thereunder.

Boils, like death, claim all seasons for their own, and may come singly or in groups. The coincidence of boils and general systematic diseases is common. When or however boils appear the victim should regard them much the same as a railroad man regards a danger signal and call a halt. Inquiry into the condition of a furunculous patient will, as a rule, reveal two facts—a vitiated condition of the blood and local violence, frequently in the way of chafing by close fitting neckwear or other clothing.

What has just been said makes it tolerably clear what those suffering from boils want to do. All sources of local irritation should be removed and tonics, good food, rest, change of air, etc., made use of. Heat and moisture are remedies the local use of which is very useful. A small bag of thin, old muslin does well to hold the time honored poultice with which it is well to incorporate a tablespoonful of lard or some other unctuous substance.

The simplest and best local application for boils is the pouring thereon of water as hot as can be borne. This gives much relief and no doubt hastens the formation of pus in the boil, an event whose occurrence is signalized by the cessation of the throbbing pain so familar to those who have suffered from furuncle. Boils may at times be nipped in the bud, so to speak, by painting around them very early with tincture of iodine.—Philadelphia Times.

Gypsies Do Not Mourn.

It is a singular fact that gypsies do not mourn the death of their young, much as they love and cherish the living. On one occasion, where a band had buried a little child in camp where I was visiting, hardly had the evening come before the jolliest of merry making was begun. The mourning family were especially made comfortable and plied with enlivening liquor until long after midnight. I discovered that the gypsy thought on all these matters was one of pure philosophy.

"Tak'n young, the sweet dearie,
Fonds the road, a' a-weary!"

That is, a dead child is beyond trouble, and no labor or effort is spared on the part of friends to emphasize this idea and turn the matter to some pleasurable account. It also holds good on the death of the elder gypsies, though in a lesser degree. While I have never been able, even through the most careful inquiry and observation, to discover in any gypsy I ever knew a definite faith in a future existence, or the possible reunion of kin, or the good, after death, a gypsy who has been an honor to his kind is buried with great ceremony. It is not infrequent that his entire portable effects are burned at or near his grave. "Hits better they be wi' him," or, "Owsumdever must 'im be wi'out naught but 'is hands crossed," are about all that can be got for the closest questioning. There is in it all, however, a ridiculous and grim deference to possibilities.—Edgar L. Wakeman's Letter.

How Sulphur Matches Are Made.

Nearly all the operations of match making are now carried on by machinery. The wood is first sawed into blocks of uniform length, usually one and a half inches long, or the length of the match. These blocks are then fed into the cutting machine, which cuts twelve matches at every stroke. To make round matches the wood is forced through perforations in metal plates. The splints are then pushed into slats arranged on a double chain 250 feet long. On this they are carried to the sulphur vat, dipped therein by a mechanical movement and then in the same manner to the phosphorus vat and dipped. Machines are also used for making the boxes and packing the splints therein.

As the consumption of matches is most enormous—being estimated at six a day for every man, woman and child in Europe and North America—they form an important article of commerce, and the invention of machinery for their manufacture has proved of great advantage. But the especial value of machinery is that it has so largely reduced the mortality caused by working over the phosphorus. The substance, when heated, throws off fumes which cannot be continuously breathed without causing disease. In large factories 144,000 small boxes of matches are often made and packed ready for shipping in a single day.—Philadelphia Times.

Clergymen's Sore Throat.

An English surgeon claims to have discovered the cause of clergymen's sore throats. No other speakers are affected in this way, and he has come to the conclusion that the malady is induced by speaking down to a congregation from an elevated pulpit, thereby depressing the vocal organs and causing irritation and congestion. If clergymen would hold the head erect and speak up they would never have throat trouble, and even if already suffering to some extent they may cure themselves by speaking in a right position. There are bad habits of phonation, breathing, etc., which a good teacher can easily correct, but the bending forward of the head and hanging over the sermon while reading it is worst of all, and any man can correct himself in it.—Living Church.

The "Parsee Chair."

The "Parsee chair" is announced as the successor of the hammock. A seashore correspondent who has seen one describes it as a sort of box or cradle of mahogany, with a high back and low sides. It is covered with Hindu rugs and two large, soft pillows worked in rich Turkish embroidery. At each corner the chair is supported by ropes which depend from the roof and which run through hollow pieces of mahogany, making the supports seem like slender and flexible wooden columns. "In the Parsee chair," it seems, "a lady may lounge and swing in the most luxurious of poses and the most picturesque of attitudes, without suffering that curvature of the spine which the hammock entails."—Detroit Free Press.

When we consider the patronage of this great office, [the presidency,] the allurements of power, the temptation to retain place once gained, and more than all, the availability a party finds in an incumbent whom a horde of office holders, with a zeal born of benefits and fostered by the hope of favors yet to come, stand ready to aid with money and trained political service, we recognize in the eligibility of the president for re-election a most serious danger to that calm, deliberate and intelligent political action, which must characterize a government by the people.—Grover Cleveland.

Defenders of American Industry.
We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protect against its destruction as proposed by the President and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

Take Ayer's Pills and be cured. Misery is a mild word to describe the suferings of body and mind, caused by habitual constipation. A moderate use of Ayer's Pills will invariably regulate the bowels.

When our manfactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C. Calhoun.

Canker humors of every description, whether in the mouth, throat, or stomach, are expelled from the system by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. No other remedy can compare with this, as a cure for all diseases originating in impure or impoverished blood.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

Didn't Want a Girl.

Last summer my wife's health was all run down, and she wanted me to hire a girl to the work. In a little while I found one I thought would suit her, when to my surprise she said I need not hire any one, as she felt much better, and thought another bottle of Sulpher Bitters would cure her. Donald Grey, 41 Worcester square, Boston.

An extensive domestic market for the surplus produce of the soil is of the first consequence. It is, of all things, that which most effectually conduces to a flourishing state of agriculture.—Alexander Hamilton.

Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam heals sore throat, reduces the swollen tonsils, and restores natural tone to the affected vocal chords. It soothes to natural and refreshing slumber, during which nature regains strength to combat disease.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

Hay Fever.

I have been afflicted with hay fever from early in August until frost. My eyes would run a stream of water and I sneezed continually. I was advised to use Ely's Cream Balm. It has worked like a charm and I can say I am entirely cured.—Mrs. Emeline Johnson, Chester, Conn.

I have been for several years a sufferer from hay fever and severe head colds. I have found nothing that can compare with Ely's Cream Balm. I would not be without it for any consideration. It is simply wonderful in its effect upon the nasal organs.—S. A. Burtt, Wilmington, N. C.

We must now place our manufactures by the side of the agriculturist. * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

It is certain that the arguments which President Cleveland urges are those which Cobden used to employ forty-five years ago, and which any free trader could employ now.—London Times.

A Hint to Puny People.

From their arrival on this planet to their usually early departure from it, people of weak constitutions and angular physiques pass a sort of half-existence. Like dormice they burrow in their home retreats, afrid of heat, afraid of cold, constantly afraid that the shadow of the dread reapear will materialize and exact the forfeit which he demands from all, sooner or latter. No finer medicinal assurance of comparative vigor for the feeble exists than agorded by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Used with persistence—not with spurts and spasm—this genial and professionally commended tonic will do much toward infusing strength into a puny system, and rounding off scrawny angles in the human figure. Appetite, nerve tranquility and nightly repose are encouraged by it, and a malarial, rheumatic, billous tendency overdome. It reestablishes digestion and prevents kidney troubles.

When our manufactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C Calhoun.

The liver and kidneys must be kept in good condition. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a great remedy for regulating these organs.

Congress have repeatedly, and no without success, directed their attention to the encouragement of manufactures. The object is of too much consequence not to insure a continuance of their efforts in every way which shall appear eligible.—George Washington.

The only time England can use a Celt is when he emigrates to America, and votes for free trade. — London Times.

Vincent Lundberg, of Stockholm, Physician-in-Chief to the King of Sweden, recommends Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer for the scalp and hair.

Peculiar

In the combination, proportion, and preparation of its ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures where other preparations entirely fail. Peculiar in its good name at home, which is a "tower of strength abroad," peculiar in the phenomenal sales it has attained. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most successful medicine for puryifying the blood-giving strength, and creating an appetite.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

The issue of Protection is incalculably stronger and greater than any man, as it concerns the prosperity of the present and of the generations yet to come.—James G. Blaine.

Could not Keep

Shop without them. I consider your Sulpher Bitters a remarkable blood purifier. I know of several people, whose cases were considered hopeless, that have been cured by your medicine. The sale of Sulpher Bitters is so large here that I could not keep shop without them. E. S. Yates, Pharmacist, 99 Essex street, Lawrence, Mass.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

AT NIGHT.

At sea at sun we felt the breath of night
Come with the salty seaweed up the bay;
We heard the curlews calling, far away;
We saw long lines of foam, and watched the flight
Of glittering gulls, and trailing snowy white;
The shrouded crane flew inland; dim and gray
The crags rose as the sun sank with the day,
And like a horn the moon hung o'er the height,
Steeped in her mists, and haloed in her light.
Blurred like a face in oils, or, like some dye,
Her beauty stained the canvas of the sky.
The winds turned seaward, and the stars were bright,
And when the tide went out—as tides must do—
Our hearts went with it, and we thought of you.

—Allan Simpson Botsford in Overland Monthly.

Fattening the Goose's Liver.

Little does the over fed sybarite know what cruelty is often practiced so that his dainty palate may be sufficiently tickled. Harper's Bazar has this to say concerning pate de foie gras: "Everybody knows that the pate de foie gras of Strasburg is the best in the world, but very few of us have more than a vague idea of the methods employed for enlarging the livers of the geese from which it is made. Now the liver of the goose so 'trained,' if we may use the expression, is twelve times as large as nature intended it to be. In order to obtain this result the unfortunate geese are subjected to torments unknown even to the early Christians. The first thing done is to nail the feet of the geese fast to planks, so that they may not arrest the desired tumefaction of the liver by even the slightest movement. Secondly, their eyes are put out, that no glimpse of the world they have left may disturb them. Finally, they are crammed with nuts, a delicacy of which they are extremely fond, but they are not allowed to drink a drop of water, although they suffer such tortures from thirst that they utter piercing cries of agony."—The Epoch.

Laughter Indicative of Character.

An authority on laughter says: It has been observed that laughter is indicative of a particular temper and character, according to the sound of the vowel that prevails in cachinnation. Persons that laugh in a broad Latin "A" are open hearted, honest people, fond of noisy jocundity, but perhaps of voluble mood. Excessive jerking laughter, however, is an evidence of vulgarity. Those laughing in a dry "A" are respectable, but little expansive, and a hard lot of people. When the Latin "E" prevails there prevails also a phlegmatic, melancholy temper. Timorous, unsteady people, also those imbued with malignity, laugh in a kind of swelling "I." Laughter in "O" is the utterance of proud, bold, imperative, somewhat bantering people. Beware of those that laugh in "oo" (u). They are traitors, haters, scorners.—New York Sun.

Cramp of the Pianists.

Certain functional diseases of the hand and arm have been observed in pianists by Mr. Vivian Poore. This cramp of the pianists he estimates to be eight times as common as the cramp of writers; and he finds especially liable to it those who practice with the wrist continually held rigid. The symptoms are painful stiffness of the shoulder and of the right arm, less frequently of the left side, cramps of the little finger and of the ring finger, sometimes with trembling—this distressing condition often persisting after exercise with the keys, and being brought back by the least exertion of hand or fingers. Cold, sedentary habits, weakness and predisposition to rheumatism and gout increase the liability to it.—Arkansaw Traveler.

Following Up Their Patrons.

The custom among business firms of following their patrons to different resorts is gaining rapidly. Dress goods and imported costumes are now exhibited in hotel parlors; embroidery and all devices in fancy work are spread upon hotel tables, and the city dealer in fancy wares has become a dangerous rival to Indians with their stock of gay baskets. It is said that modistes sometimes follow delinquent customers to the resorts on dunning bent; manicures have become a part of all fashionable hotels, and others make the most of summer marts, and often gain much profit from their enterprises.—Chicago Herald.

Almost every photographer's studio of any importance in the country has, at one time and another, been visited by some notable people, and there are not a few in the business who can tell very amusing stories about the whims of greatness when it sits for its picture. Politicians and members of the legislature are not, as a general thing, hard to please, as they are almost all so used to the proceeding that they grow careless about it, but actors, ministers, literary people and artists are in bad favor with the knights of the camera.—Chicago News.

Juvenile Astronomical Lore.

A young man home from college, wishing to inspire his little sister with awe for his learning, pointed to a star and said: "Sis, do you see that little luminary? It's bigger than this whole world!" "No, tain't," said Sis. "Yes, it is," declared the young collegian. "Then why don't it keep off the rain?" was the triumphant rejoinder.—New York Evening World.

The Secret of Eloquence.

Sixty years ago the leading pulpit orator of New York city was Dr. John M. Mason. During a visit to Scotland he heard Dr. Chalmers, and thought him the greatest preacher of the age. A friend asked him, on his return home, the secret of Chalmers' eloquence. "His blood earnestness," was the prompt answer.—Youth's Companion.

Italy's Coral Fishery.

The Italian coral fishery seems to be giving out. The 4,000 workmen who used to be employed have decreased to 1,000. Calcutta is now the chief market, America and Europe taking comparatively little.

The Grandest Instrument on Earth.

Professor George Davidson, of the United States geographical survey, accompanied by several friends, visited the Lick Observatory on Mount Hamilton, Saturday evening, by invitation of Professor Holden. The night was a splendid one for observation, but owing to the fact that 117 persons were also on the mountain, it being visitors' night, no length of time could be spent at the great telescope, as that is always the great attraction for visitors. It was the first peep through the 36-inch refractor that Professor Davidson enjoyed since the completion of the observatory, and to say that he was pleased with the experience is only half putting it.

"Yes, sir," he said the other day, when spoken to about the matter, "it is the greatest and grandest instrument on earth. I am not at liberty to divulge just now what I saw and what has already been accomplished by the astronomers on Mount Hamilton. That glory is for the astronomers themselves, and when they do make public their discoveries, which I hope will be soon, it will astonish the astronomical world as much as any one else. Some of the discoveries they have made are, in fact, so novel and wonderful that Professor Holden and his assistants are really timid about announcing them to the world until they are entirely satisfied that they really do exist and are not illusions of some sort. Important discoveries have been made in all of the departments—nebulæ, double stars, planets, etc.—and questions which have been subjects of doubt and speculation for generations have been entirely put at rest and accounted for. The telescope exceeds my most extravagant hopes and imaginations, and the only way to beat it is to build a bigger one, put it on a higher mountain and in a clearer atmosphere, all of which would be a difficult combination to get together."—San Francisco Bulletin.

Death and Burial in China.

When the Chinese wish to declare the extreme vexatiousness of any piece of work they say: "It is more trouble than a funeral;" the obsequies of a parent being reckoned the most maddening affair in human experience.

Infants are buried summarily, without coffins, and the young are interred with few rites; but the funeral of the aged, of both sexes, are elaborate in proportion to the number of the descendants and to their wealth. When a childless married man dies, his widow may perform all the duties of a son toward him, may remain in his house and may adopt children to rear as his heirs and worshipers of the family manes. If his widow proposes marrying again, a young male relative may, with the consent of senior members of the clan, undertake the services expected from a son and inherit the estate of the deceased.

When one is about to die he is removed from his couch to a bench or to a mat on the floor because of a belief that he who dies in a bed will carry the bedstead as a burden into the next world. He is washed in a new pot in warm water in which a bundle of incense sticks is merged. After the washing the pot and the water are thrown away together. He is then arrayed in a full suit of new clothing that he may appear in hades at his best. He breathes his last in the main room, before the largest door of the house, that the departing soul may easily find its way out into the air. A sheet of spirit money, brown paper having a patch of gilding on one surface, is laid over the upturned face, because it is said that if the eyes are left uncovered the corpse may count the rows of tiles in the roof, and that in such case the family could never build a more spacious domicile.—Adele M. Field in Popular Science Monthly.

Norway's Land and People.

The forest land in Norway is in extent as compared with the arable land as thirty to one. Of course the exportation of timber is one of the chief resources of the country, but the woods are well preserved, a forester resides in every district, and no waste or destruction of such valuable possessions is allowed, as has unfortunately taken place in America. The land that is cultivated, except in a few favored spots, seems poor, and the people themselves have, evidently, few of the luxuries of life. There are not many villages, Norway differing from Sweden in that respect; the farmhouses are scattered, and the dwellings of the peasants are usually small wooden huts, and often are ruinous.

But, though poverty is great, there is no beggary. We have never been importuned for alms, nor have fees been expected for trifling services, as in Italy or the rural districts of England. The people have a somewhat sad, or rather a subdued look, such as solitude often gives. The women, with handkerchiefs pinned over their heads, look at us with grave eyes. The little white haired children never shout after the passing carriage, or play monkey tricks to earn a cent. They are a gentle and quiet race, civil and pleasant spoken, but not jolly and talkative like the Germans. Their voices are of a peculiar melody—a musical rise and fall in the pronunciation of their words, which has been analyzed by the students of such peculiarities, and which it is impossible for a stranger to imitate.—Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

A Popular Summer Fashion.

That suitable garment for a tropical climate—the light woolen shirt—is fast making itself popular in our tropical summer weather. But the mandate of foshion still is that the woolen shirt is "not gentlemanly" in town or on the cars—the two places where it is most needed. A gentlemanly dress will never offend the sensibilities of others A neat flannel shirt is certainly less offensive than the sweat soaked handkerchiefs with which the wearers of laundered linen try to hide the wilted rag that was once a glossy and heat inclosing collar. A car full of gentlemen with pocket-handkerchiefs used as bibs is a ridiculous commentary on slavery to a foolish fashion.—New York Evening World.

Willow and Oak.

The willow which bends to the tempest often escapes better than the oak which resists it; and so in great calamities it sometimes happens that light and frivolous spirits recover their elasticity and presence of mind sooner than those of a loftier character.—Sir Walter Scott.

OH, WHAT A COLD!

This is the season for sudden changes in the weather, and a great many "take cold" either in their Head or on their Lungs, causing Coughs, Hoarseness, and Sore Throat. These troubles can be soon relieved and cured by taking Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs, entirely removing these difficulties.

Cured his boy of Croup.

C. M. Brooks, Lowell, Mass., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific as a cure for Coughs, Colds, and Croup. I used it in my family last winter with the best results. Two or three doses cured my little boy of Croup, for which I am very thankful."

You can cure that Cough in a short time. You can cure your Catarrh if you persist in its use, as it will stop the secretion of Catarrhal matter in the head; it will relieve Croup in from three to five minutes.

The best he ever saw.

"The best medicine for Coughs and Consumptive Complaints that ever I saw is Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific," so says John McLaughlin, of Boston.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 27, 1888—Swift's Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: In the early part of the present year, a bad case of blood poison appeared upon me. I began taking S. S. S. under advice of another, and to-day I feel greatly improved. I am still taking the medicine and shall continue to do so until I am perfectly well. I believe it will effect a perfect cure. Yours truly, Doc. P. Howard, 111 West Sixth St.

Columbia, S. C., July 7, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: I was a great sufferer from muscular rheumatism for two years. I could get no permanent relief from any medicine prescribed by my physician. I took over a dozen bottles of your S. S. S., and now I am as well as I ever was in my life. I am sure your medicine cured me, and I would recommend it to any one suffering from any blood disease. Yours truly, O. R. Hunt, Conductor C. & G. R. R.

Waco, Texas, May 8, 1888—Gentlemen: The wife of one of my customers was terribly afflicted with a loathsome skin disease, that covered her whole body. She was confined to her bed for several years by this affliction, and could not help herself at all. She could not sleep from a violent itching and stinging of the skin. The disease baffled the skill of the physicians who treated it. Her husband began finally giving his wife Swift's Specific, and she commenced to improve almost immediately, and in a few weeks she was apparently well. She is now a hearty fine-looking lady, with no trace of the affliction left. Yours very truly, — E. Shane, Wholesale Druggist, Austin Avenue.

The Yellow Fever.

The secretary of the treasury has received the following telegram from Surgeon-General Hamilton, dated at Camp Perry, Fla., Sept. 17th:

"Dr. Posey has yellow fever, contracted at McGlenny. Three cases are reported at Gainsville, and there are rumors of cases at Wellborne and Fernandina. Have sent to Wise to investigate. Dr. Guiteras returned on Saturday night. Refugees had great hardships on special train, and the whole seaboard is alarmed on account of these refugees breaking their patrol at Hendersonville. I do not think it advisable to send any more special trains. Camp in excellent condition, but needs enlargement. This is being done as rapidly as possible. Those here are comfortable and reasonably happy."

Tuesday, Sept. 18th, was the most terrible day in the history of Jacksonville, Fla., the new cases of yellow fever numbering 156, and the deaths reaching the appalling total of twenty-one; total cases to that date, 1203, with 153 deaths.

The panic throughout Florida is overwhelming; every town of any size is quarantined against all the rest of the state, and terrible suffering results.

AUSTIN, TEXAS, Sept. 19th. It was reported here last night that four cases of yellow fever developed in Galveston yesterday. A despatch from the health officer there to the governor denied the report, but the governor's secretary has left for the city, to investigate in person. Notwithstanding denials, the governor has positive information of the existence of the disease.

Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb's Autumn Tours.

The enterprising firm of excursion managers, Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb, are meeting with great success with their admirably planned autumn tours. The September list is not yet exhausted, and the excursions announced for the closing weeks of the month are among the best of all. Four additional trips are now announced for October. One of these is an excursion to Washington, with an allowance of between five and six days in the national capital, and another is a trip to Niagara Falls in a magnificent train of vestibuled cars. Virginia, Canada, the picturesque region of northern New England, and other points of interest will be visited in the other tours. In addition to the shorter trips there will be two excursions to California—one over the Northern Pacific railroad, and the other over the Santa Fe Line,—and one to Colorado. The dates of the winter trips to California and Mexico are also announced. Descriptive circulars may be obtained by addressing W. Raymond, 296 Washington street, (opposite School street,) Boston.

The republicans of Carroll and Coos counties raised a large flag and streamer labelled "Harrison & Morton," on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 15th, at the Twin Mountain house in the White mountains. Guests came in wagons and carriages from neighboring hotels and villages. The principal speech of the occasion was delivered by Hon. Henry D. Pierce of Indianapolis, a relative of the late Vice-President Hendricks, and late law partner of Senator Turpie of Indiana; and that same Judge Pierce was the person who made the speech on the occasion of the flag-raising at the same place in honor of Cleveland and Hendricks in 1884; he has been a life-long democrat, and is now driven out of the Cleveland ranks by the free trade craze of his old party.

The New York World says of the dollar-a-day-enough-for-the-laboring-man story: "Nobody of common sense ever supposed that he (Gen. Harrison) ever said so. There are some campaign lies which are transparent, and this is one of them." That is all right so far as the World is concerned, but is rather hard upon the other democratic sheets of the country, nearly all of which have adopted and repeatedly reiterated that transparent lie.

A new French-Canadian Catholic church was dedicated Sept. 16th at New Bedford.

[illegible] Esq., a well known and old and respected citizen of Waterford, Miss., called at The Avalanche office and exhibited a madstone that has a history. It was brought to Alabama from China in 1810 by Dr. William Barker, who used it with success for several years. At his death it was sold to Jarvis Milam, the father of The Avalanche's visitor, and four others. Milam moved to Mississippi in 1835, and took the stone with him, having bought out the interest of his partners. He died in 1849 and left the stone to his son. The present proprietor has used it in 1,280 cases, for bites of rabid dogs, cows and horses, besides spider and snake bites, and he asserts that it did not fail to effect a cure in a single instance when applied before paroxysms had set in.

The stone is porous, of a light cream color, an inch and a quarter in diameter and weighs one ounce. It has been broken in five places, and is mended with silver bands. When a person is bitten the wound is first carefully washed with warm water, a mop being used to guard against danger to the operator from infected blood or pus. The stone is then bound tightly upon the affected part and left there from two to fifteen hours, according to the freshness of the bite—the older it is the longer the time necessary. When removed it is found to have absorbed a quantity of blood or pus from the wound. It is then washed clean in warm water and dried before a fire or stove. Mr. Milam has been offered $5,000 for his treasure, but refuses to sell. He gets a good revenue from it, charging those patients who are able to pay, but its virtues are more frequently called into play to save the lives of unfortunates who have nothing to give in return. It is to Mr. Milam's credit that these are never refused, and that he values the stone most for the good it does to suffering humanity. He is greatly troubled lest at his death his children should divide it up and thus destroy its virtue.—Memphis Avalanche.

Bill Nye and His Work.

A literary character who has come to us from the west is making his way in popularity. Edgar William Nye, as his parents called him before he gave himself the simpler name of Bill Nye, has in all probability the largest daily mail of any newspaper man in New York. His letters are mainly from humorist cranks, a newly developed fraternity of fools who send him long pieces in as close imitation of his own writings as they are able to produce. These are sent neither for publication nor, as he says, "as an evidence of good faith," but simply, as it appears, to let the funny man know that others can be as funny as himself, or at least can try to be.

Bill Nye looks exactly like the pictures that are made as caricatures of him. He has enough hair at each side of his head for an affidavit that he is not bald, but the whole top of his head and his face are hairless. He is tall and heavy, but as ungraceful as Mark Twain. He is in the neighborhood of 41 or 42, has a wife and boy, and lives in more than mere comfort in an uptown brown stone house. His salary is $100 a week, and he has contracted to write only for one journal. He produces two articles—always one for Sunday and a shorter one for the middle of the week—and this he considers enjoying a vacation. Before he came to New York he wrote something almost every day. He makes acquaintances slowly, but is exceedingly liked by all who know him, mainly because he is thoroughly democratic and plain in his manners.—New York Cor. Chicago Herald.

New Device for Catching Nickels.

A new device for catching nickels is just out, which as a novelty eclipses its competitors in weighing machines, miniature steamboats and locomotives seen occasionally in hotel lobbies and public places where people congregate. This machine is automatic like the others, and consists of a stand of iron three feet high, supporting a square box made of wood, two sides being panels of glass to admit light and enable people to see the thing work. Inside is a sort of miniature metal wheelbarrow, tipped at an angle of about forty-five degrees. At the top of the box, directly over the wheelbarrow, is a square cut hole about an inch and a half wide by three inches long, large enough to enable one to drop a five cent piece through into a slot below, which is between the two handles of the barrow and about a quarter of an inch in width. If the money is poised carefully over the hole at the top and dropped so as to fall into the slot, the owner will see it roll into a little receptacle on the outside of the box opposite the end of the barrow, closely followed by another five cent piece, which is his prize, besides getting his first one back. Should it again be tried and the nickel strike the edges of the opening, which is about three or four times its thickness, of course it goes into the lower part of the inside of the box, thus adding to the treasury of the owner of the machine.—New York Evening Sun.

Amos F. Learned, a well know newspaper man of New York, has been sent to an insane asylum.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and effectually. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating — Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." Tariff Talk.

Tariff talk is a practice in which grown people should not indulge and which parents should not tolerate in children. "Is it worse than chewing tobacco?" I asked. "A thousand times," was the reply. "A girl will do enough chewing on a cent's worth of gum to masticate her food for a whole week. The hinges of the jaw are made for the ordinary work of an ordinary life and they won't stand any more. Chewing gum is something like drinking whisky—one nip calls for another and one craunch begets another. It excites the nerves which lie about the jaws to a kind of perpetual motion, which doesn't cease until their strength is exhausted. We haven't been chewing quite long enough to see its ill effect, but our jaws are made like the jaws of other people, and we might learn a true and useful lesson from history."—Chicago Tribune.

The Output of Our Mines.

It is a very imposing showing that the bureau of mining statistics makes in its report of the production of metals in the United States for 1887. The aggregate value of the output of our mines is set down at $588,056,345—figures whose significance can only be fully grasped by comparing them with values in other departments of production. It is difficult to estimate the amount of labor that went to the making of this enormous total. The census of 1880 ranked as miners some 234,288 persons, not including 7,340 oil well operators, and not counting at all those engaged in the care of mining machinery. It would probably be safe to put at 850,000 the number of those who are now directly engaged in all departments of mining industry, and such a calculation may at least serve as a basis for determining the productive value of the army of laborers thus employed.—The Epoch.

How Senatorial Speeches Are Timed.

President pro tem. Ingalls uses the old fashioned time glass to measure the five minute speeches of the senators. When the senator begins the glass is inverted, and when the sand has all run out he is stopped promptly. The other day a senator who thought his five minutes entirely too short demurred when the president pro tem. told him his time was up. "The chair is guided entirely by this glass," said Ingalls firmly, holding up the twin bulbs with the sand all in the lower one. As the president pro tem. is almost as absolute as a baseball umpire, nothing more was said. As Ingalls remarked afterward to another western senator, "It takes sand to run the senate."—Philadelphia Record.

THE WEATHER.

For New England to-day:—

Light local showers, slightly warmer, southerly winds.

THE FIREMEN'S SECOND ANNUAL PARADE.

The firemen had a very favorable day for their second annual parade, on Wednesday, the 19th, although the walking might easily have been better. The programme as previously published was successfully carried out; the firemen and their apparatus made a very fine appearance. The several "events" took place very nearly on time, and the clambake was extensive enough to furnish abundance for all, nearly 400 people partaking thereof.

During the trial of steamers on Market square in the afternoon, the Portsmouth flute and drum band and the Haverhill City band enlivened the proceedings by playing in the stand which had been placed on the square. Joseph Randall was judge for No. 2, C. F. Hall of Manchester for No. 3, Lemuel T. Davis for No. 4, and Edw. E. McIntire for the board of engineers. The playing, which was witnessed by a great throng of spectators, including many ladies, resulted as follows:

Moses H. Goodrich, No. 4. 182 feet;
Col. Sise, No. 2, 215 feet 8 inches;
Kearsarge, No. 3, 223 feet 9 inches.

After the result of the trial was announced the victorious company, carrying new brooms and accompanied by a crowd of boys similarly provided, headed by the Haverhill band and followed by their engine, made a short march about town and then proceeded to their engine house.

In the evening the band concert on Market square drew quite a large number of listeners, though the muddy state of the streets no doubt kept many persons at home.

The record of steamer No. 2 last year, when she won the contest, was 235 feet 8 3-4 inches.

Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION.

The 21st annual convention of the Young Men's Christian associations and Evangelical churches of New Hampshire commences in this city to-day, Sept. 20th, at the Middle street Baptist church, continuing through Sunday. The exercises will open at seven o'clock in the evening with a welcome meeting, presided over by Mr. John S. Rand, the programme being as follows:

7:20: Reading of the Scriptures by Rev. O. S. Bartlett; prayer by Rev. W. A. McGinley; reading of hymn by Rev. John A. Hainer; address of welcome, in behalf of the ministers and churches of Portsmouth, by Rev. W. H. Alden, D. D.; solo by George C. Stebbins; response to address of welcome, in behalf of the associations and churches of the state, by Luther P. Durgin, chairman of the state executive committee.

8:00: Address by Rev. J. Z. Armstrong, Ph.D., of Nashua; topic, "The stuff that men are made of;" solo by C. J. Jackson; benediction by Rev. J. S. Harrington.

The singing of the convention will be under the direction of George C. Stebbins and C. J. Jackson, and will be interspersed through the services.

POLICE COURT---BATCHELDER J.

WEDNESDAY, Sept. 19th.

Charlotte Toppan, charged with larceny of a purse and $6.70 in money from Jennie A. King, was discharged, the testimony against her being of the most flimsy character.

MONTE-CRISTO.

Saturday evening, at Music hall, Chas. Fechter's dramatization of "The Count of Monte-Cristo" will be presented, with Mr. James O'Neill, sole proprietor of the adaptation, in the leading part. The play is one of the best of all romantic dramas, and Mr. O'Neill is fully the equal of Fechter in the character of Edmund Dantes.

Our enterprising democratic neighbor, the Times, is fully up with the most advanced modern plan of "Editing by headlines,"—that is, giving by headlines in big type a totally different impression from what is conveyed by the telegraphic despatch or written communication which follows. In its issue of Sept. 19th is a despatch from Augusta, Me., headed "Manley writes. He tries to extract some consolation out of the Maine election," which says that Mr. Joseph H. Manley, chairman of the republican state committee of Maine, on the previous day sent to Chairman Quay of the republican national committee a despatch as follows:

Official returns of our late election given to the press this evening show that Burleigh received 79,513 votes, the largest vote ever cast by the republican party in this state. [If "Joe" Manley couldn't "extract some consolation" from the largest republican vote ever cast in the state, he must be a very hard man to console.] Putnam's vote of 60,108 is nearly 5,000 less than the democratic vote given to Gen. Hancock in 1880, and nearly 13,000 less than the democratic vote cast for Gen. Plaisted at the September election the same year. [The Cleveland free-traders are the ones to "extract consolation" from this state of affairs.]

The despatch concludes as follows:

The republican plurality on the congressional ticket, where the tariff issue was more directly involved, is 19,252. We have chosen a unanimous republican senate, and one hundred and twenty-five out of one hundred and fifty-one members of the house. On county officers, where there is always a vigorous struggle, the republicans have elected ninety-six out of a total of ninety-nine voted for.

It would seem that Manley, by hard trying, might manage to squeeze "some consolation" out of victories in every senatorial district in the state, and the defeat of the democrats in all but twenty-six of the 151 representative contests; and that he ought to be reasonably well satisfied with a republican victory in every county of the state, and the election of all but three of the ninety-nine candidates for county officers!

The fall term of Smith's Academy and Commercial College commences next Monday, Sept. 24th.

The frequent expressions of commendation by the graduates of this institution are the best testimonials to its worth. The valuable work done for practical education seems to be well appreciated by this city and surrounding towns.

The schooner John Rose, Allen master, arrived at the navy yard on the 19th inst. to take on board a partial cargo of old plate iron and other old junk, for Philadelphia.

The once famous "Salisbury beach gathering," which used to last two days and be attended by thousands of people from the surrounding country, will this year last but one day, and that day is today.

A cow belonging to Patrick Mahoney, who lives on the Greenland road, died on the 19th inst. from the effects of injuries received by being struck by a railroad train some days before.

Pears' is the purest and best Soap made.

Chauncey Chapman of Water street, who had one of his legs so badly injured on the 17th inst., by having a loaded team run over it, that it was thought amputation would be necessary, it is now said is doing so well that the leg will probably be saved.

An inquest on the body of Charles H. Eastman of Berwick, found dead in the river at Great Falls, was commenced Sept. 18th. The medical testimony tended strongly to show that he was beaten to insensibility or death, and then thrown into the river; that he certainly was not drowned. The last man in his company was Holton E. Wells, a second hand in the Great Falls cotton mills, who went with him to near the bridge where he met his death, and says he left him there. Cries for help were heard by several persons, but Wells says he did not hear any calls. No decision was reached by the coroner's jury.

Warren Rice of Saco, ex-consul of the United States at Panama, had a paralytic shock on the 19th inst., which it was thought would prove fatal.

News and Notes.

Twenty-four young Swedish women who arrived at New York on Monday, Sept. 17th, on the steamer Hecla, were found to have contracted through a matrimonial agency to marry men in this country, none of them having ever yet met their prospective husbands. The Castle Garden authorities were doubtful whether the Contract Immigration law covered such cases, and did not detain the women.

A full-blooded negro testified in a rich Irish brogue before a Brooklyn court the other day. He was born in Ireland.

The remains of E. Morris Wain, who with Charles L. Strong of New York, was murdered in Wyoming territory while on a hunting expedition, were buried on Tuesday, Sept. 18th, in Philadelphia, Penn. The body of Mr. Strong was sent to his relatives in New York. Jacob S. Wain, who brought the bodies to Philadelphia says the authorities of Rawlings, Wy. T., are on the track of the murderer, and may have him in custody by this time. There is little doubt that the crime was committed by "Red Bill," the cook who was engaged by the hunters when they left Wichita Falls last June.

The case against the alleged dynamite conspirators, John Hronek, Frank Capek, Rudlof Sevic, and Frank Chleboun, charged with plot to murder Judge Gary and Judge Grinnell, Police Inspector Bonfield and others, who were connected with the Haymarket affair, was called in Chicago Sept. 18th. On application of the prisoners' counsel the hearing in the four cases was postponed till the October term of court.

There was a free fight in the Westminster Presbyterian church at St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 16th, over the alleged immorality of the late pastor. The police quelled the riot.

At Augusta, Me., Sept. 16th, a boy named Joe Damarais accidentally shot himself through the hand, the bullet then fatally wounding a playmate named Frank Lemaury.

Jeremiah O'Neil, one of a gang of four white loafers who undertook to give two colored men an unprovoked thrashing in Providence, R. I., Sept. 15th, was fatally shot by one of the colored men.

Two Louisiana ladies, Mrs. M. L. Hering and Mrs. E. L. Newman, have been chosen as members of the school board of West Carroll, a parish in the northeastern part of the state. They are the first women in Louisiana to hold such a position, although women have been eligible as members of school boards since 1879. Efforts have been made from time to time to secure the appointment of women, but the former governor was opposed to it, and nothing was done. Governor Nichols is more in sympathy with modern ideas, and this good custom, once introduced, will be sure to spread.

A good fire is now a part of a tramp's outfit. He finds it useful when there is a barbed wire fence between him and something desirable.

A little girl of six years, very much interested in the political aspect from hearing the problem frequently discussed, asked a lady at the breakfast table recently, "Are you a republican?" "Yes, my dear; why do you ask?" "Because I'm a republican when you are; I want to be on the right side."

David S. Terry, who was committed to jail for six months for assaulting a United States marshal during the progress of the Sharon case at San Francisco, Cal., has been refused a revocation of sentence.

An Indian who arrived at Bismarck, Dak., on Monday, Sept. 17th, and who has been at the Cheyenne agency, brings discouraging news regarding the prospect for securing signatures at that agency.

The mayor of Leadville, Col., has licensed the gambling hells in that city, at $200 a month each. The dens have been closed five years.

At Manchester, Mo., Andre Rhuel, a farmer, was thrashed by Fred Fink, for talking about Mrs. Annie Fink, Fred's sister. Rhuel shot both the Finks dead, and then killed himself.

A committee from the Evangelical Alliance has petitioned the Boston school board that Swinton's "Outlines of History" be restored to its former place in the public schools.

At an examination for admission to the Free college, New York, seventy-eight per cent of the girls seeking admission passed a creditable examination, while

The Georgia rice crop has been almost destroyed by floods.

Mme. Christine Nilsson is an honorary member of the Young Woman's Christian Association of New York.

Mrs. Eliza A. Blaker, superintendent of the Indianapolis free kindergartens, lectured recently in Munich and Winchester, Ind., and formed free kindergarten associations in both places.

The Women's College, which has been built in North Baltimore at a cost of $120,000, will open with one hundred students. There are two buildings for physical training.

Mrs. Mary Ward died in Boston on the 16th, aged 101 years and nine months.

Unfavorable French crop reports caused a lively scene in the New York Produce Exchange this week. The market showed a strong advance at the close.

William Bohan of Rockaway, N. Y., has been convicted of gouging out his wife's eyes. The penalty is from five to fifteen years' imprisonment.

The opening of the national exposition at Augusta, Ga., has been postponed until Nov. 8th, on account of fever and floods.

The First Symptoms

Of all Lung diseases are much the same: feverishness, loss of appetite, sore throat, pains in the chest and back, headache, etc. In a few days you may be well, or, on the other hand, you may be down with Pneumonia or "galloping Consumption." Run no risks, but begin immediately to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Several years ago, James Birchard, of Darien, Conn., was severely ill. The doctors said he was in Consumption, and that they could do nothing for him, but advised him, as a last resort, to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking this medicine, two or three months, he was pronounced a well man. His health remains good to the present day.

J. S. Bradley, Malden, Mass., writes: "Three winters ago I took a severe cold, which rapidly developed into Bronchitis and Consumption. I was so weak that I could not sit up, was much emaciated, and coughed incessantly. I consulted several doctors, but they were powerless, and all agreed that I was in Consumption. At last, a friend brought me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. From the first dose, I found relief. Two bottles cured me, and my health has since been perfect."

WHAT IS SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATTERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

Gives the Hasty Ester a Scolding and a Bit of Good Advice.

If there is any truth in the adage that the "way to a man's heart is through his stomach," in nine cases out of ten it would be a hard road to travel. When you consider the enormous and varied amount of material that strews its path, you at once encounter many unpleasant obstacles. The man who gets outside of hot soup, boiled ham, fried clams, potatoes, pickled cabbage, pastry, ice cream, and tea in fifteen minutes, and then wonders why he feels so badly, is either an ass or an idiot—very likely a melange.

He cannot understand it, when he is so constantly taking those celebrated "after dinner pills," a title that is simply a cover for wrong doing. True, he paid extra to have his pills gelatine coated to retain their virtues the longer; but he evidently did not know that the tannin in the tea would convert that coating into a mass which the juices of the stomach are powerless to affect, and so no benefit is derived from the pills. He goes on, however, stuffing himself with food—and the delusion that the more one eats the stouter he grows. It is not the quantity we eat, but what is assimilated—that is, what the system is capable of burning up as fuel to increase our vital energies. If you smother your fire with too much coal, out it goes. Now the dyspeptic, the sufferer of that most common trouble, indigestion, may feel its presence by a thousand different signs. So numerous are they, that the mention of only a few must suffice here.

For instance, he wakes with a stuffy headache, a bad taste in his mouth, bolts his breakfast, and rushes off to business. His food "repeats," as our English friends say, his taste becomes sour and hot, and so does his temper, and he is not altogether the most amiable of mortals. As the day grows apace he has ill defined aches, and fancies his eye sight is failing, and his irritability increases. His clerks live on pins and needles, and his friends say, "what a bore he is getting to be, so full of ills."

Thus it goes on from bad to worse. Think of that man as a judge, and now he might "make wretches hang that jurymen may dine." No doubt many a verdict of today is largely influenced by poisonous butyric acid in the circulation of one who has too hastily consumed his fodder. Ultimately, if he does not switch off, he falls a victim to nervous prostration and melancholia, a fit tenant for any asylum, which he often cheates by drawing a razor across his throat. All from dyspepsia. There is no hyperbole in this picture; you will see many like it every day, if you but keep your eyes open.

The remedy? Certainly not indiscriminate drugging, a proceeding as foolish as to load your dog with an elephant's burden and expect him to carry it. If the stomach cannot take care of its natural guests it will resent the intrusion of foreigners.

The panacea is rest for the stomach by the use of light foods, and rest for the mind by anything which will draw attention from the suffering organ. Few things accomplish this latter better than the diversion of hearing good music. You may think it strange, but there is an eminent physician abroad who writes out a prescription for music much as we would for calomel. It possesses a wonderful sway over the lower orders of life, and you have often noticed the spirited action of a horse, the arched neck and proud canter, when hearing the strains of martial music.

Music cheers the soldier on the long march and renews his flagging energies. So will it aid the dyspeptic. The instrument is a matter of choice, the violin hardly to be recommended unless handled by a master, for no instrument is so capable of distracting wailings, when in the hands of a novice. The voice is, par excellence, the best of musical remedies, and four part songs are potent for good.

I dare say, you who have been victims of atrociously bad performances will not agree with me. But give the best a trial. Just go to some of the near by resorts that offer so many harmonious attractions and try the curative effect of a "concord of sweet sounds."—Richard Guefnsey, M. D., in Once a Week.

Expensive Funerals and Monuments.

Is it not about time that the societies and other efforts put forth to reform funerals and reduce the expenses of burials, included the conceited display of monuments? People never heard of beyond their street have the resting places of their bodies marked by stones that cost anywhere from $1,000 to $20,000. This cannot be the result of family affection, but is more likely to be family pride. There is but one possible advantage of such display—that is the creation of showy and interesting cemeteries. But people of sound sense are, nowadays, ordering that they themselves be buried without display and their graves marked in the simplest manner. The amount of wealth already unnecessarily stored in our cemeteries is high among the tens of millions, or even hundreds of millions. The mausoleums of the dead were in primitive times the earthly homes of the spirits of the departed; but we have no longer this excuse for unlimited expense. —Globe-Democrat.

Sheep Shearing by Machinery.

The process of sheep shearing by machinery is now performed in Australia by an ingenious kind of device, the results, as represented, being very satisfactory. The apparatus in question is a very simple one, being made on the same principle as the cutter of a mower or reaper, and the knives are worked by means of rods within the handles, these in their turn being moved by a core within a long flexible tube, which is kept in a rotary shaft, and wheels driven by a stationary engine. The comb is in the form of a segment of a circle, about three inches in diameter, with eleven conical shaped teeth. Each machine is worked by a shearer, and as the comb is forced along the skin of the animal the fleece is cut. The machine can be run either with a steam or gas engine, or by ordinary horse power, and does not easily get out of order.—New York Sun.

Not Expressed Just Right.

"I am so glad your sister enjoyed her visit to us, Mr. Smith."

"Oh, well, you know, she is the sort of girl who can enjoy herself anywhere, you know."—Life.

When we consider the patronage of this great office, [the presidency,] the allurements of power, the temptation to retain place once gained, and more than all, the availability a party finds in an incumbent whom a horde of office holders, with a zeal born of benefits and fostered by the hope of favors yet to come, stand ready to aid with money and trained political service, we recognize in the eligibility of the president for re-election most serious danger to that calm, deliberate and intelligent political action which must characterize a government by the people.—Grover Cleveland.

Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

"American wages for American workmen." Republican motto.

Didn't Want a Girl.

Last summer my wife's health was all run down, and she wanted me to hire a girl to the work. In a little while I found one I thought would suit her, when to my surprise she said I need not hire any one, as she felt much better, and thought another bottle of Sulphur Bitters would cure her. Donald Grey, 41 Worcester square, Boston.

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

Hay Fever.

I have been afflicted with hay fever from early in August until frost. My eyes would run a stream of water and I sneezed continually. I was advised to use Ely's Cream Balm. It has worked like a charm and I can say I am entirely cured.—Mrs. Emeline Johnson, Chester, Conn.

I have been for several years a sufferer from hay fever and severe head colds. I have found nothing that can compare with Ely's Cream Balm. I would not be without it for any consideration. It is simply wonderful in its effect upon the nasal organs.—S. A. Burtt, Wilmington, N. C.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

Canker humors of every description, whether in the mouth, throat, or stomach, are expelled from the system by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. No other remedy can compare with this, as a cure for all diseases originating in impure or impoverished blood.

An extensive domestic market for the surplus produce of the soil is of the first consequence. It is, of all things, that which most effectually conduces to a flourishing state of agriculture.—Alexander Hamilton.

Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam heals sore throat, reduces the swollen tonsils, and restores natural tone to the affected vocal chords. It soothes to natural and refreshing slumber, during which nature regains strength to combat disease.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, " " and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

Take Ayer's Pills and be cured. Misery is a mild word to describe the sufferings of body and mind, caused by habitual constipation. A moderate use of Ayer's Pills will invariably regulate the bowels.

We must now place our manufactures by the side of the agriculturist. " " Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla, Sold by all druggists.

It is certain that the arguments which President Cleveland urges are those which Cobden used to employ forty-five years ago, and which any free trader could employ now.—London Times.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. eow.wed.fri.6tjal

Mobile Prizes. How—Where—When.

Mr. Frank McKeon, a clever gentleman, of McKeon & Menken, who operate a restaurant, said that it was a fact that he and Mr. Boyle held one-twentieth of ticket No. 33,469, the second capital prize of $100,000 in the last drawing of The Louisiana State Lottery. "The prize came in good time, as I needed the money badly, as you know I have had plenty of bad luck. We were burned out last fall. Another misfortune was losing $300 in a recent bank failure." The Southern Express Company collected it for Messrs. McKeon and Boyle.—Mobile (Ala.) Register, July 15th.

A Hint to Puny People.

From their arrival on this planet to their usually early departure from it, people of weak constitutions and angular physiques pass a sort of half-existence. Like dormice they burrow in their home retreats, afrid of heat, afraid of cold, constantly afraid that the shadow of the dread reapear will materialize and exact the forfeit which he demands from all, sooner or latter. No finer medicinal assurance of comparative vigor for the feeble exists than agorded by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Used with persistence—not with spurts and spasm—this genial and professionally commended tonic will do much toward infusing strength into a puny system, and rounding off scrawny angles in the human figure. Appetite, nerve tranquility and nightly repose are encouraged by it, and a malarial, rheumatic, bilious tendency overdome. It reestablishes digestion and prevents kidney troubles.

When our manfactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C Calhoun.

The liver and kidneys must be kept in good condition. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a great remedy for regulating these organs.

Congress have urgently, and no without success, directed their attention to the encouragement of manufactures. The object is of too much consequence not to insure a continuance of their efforts in every way which shall appear eligible.—George Washington.

The only time England can use a Celt is when he emigrates to America, and votes for free trade. — London Times.

Vincent Lundberg, of Stockholm, Physician-in-Chief to the King of Sweden, recommends Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer for the scalp and hair.

Peculiar

In the combination, proportion, and preparation of its ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures where other preparations entirely fail. Peculiar in its good name at home, which is a "tower of strength abroad," peculiar in the phenomenal sales it has attained. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most successful medicine for purvifying the blood, giving strength, and creating an appetite.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

The issue of Protection is incalculably stronger and greater than any man, as it concerns the prosperity of the present and of the generations yet to come.—James G. Blaine.

Could not Keep

Shop without them. I consider your Sulpher Bitters a remarkable blood purifier. I know of several people, whose cases were considered hopeless, that have been cured by your medicine. The sale of Sulpher Bitters is so large here that I could not keep shop without them. E. S. Yates, Pharmacist, 99 Essex street, Lawrence, Mass.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

More than twenty years ago Adamson's Botanic Balsam was introduced generally throughout New England as a remedy for Coughs, Colds and Pulmonary complaints. Since its introduction it has constantly won its way into public favor, until now it is the universal decision that ADAMSON'S BOTANIC BALSAM is the best remedy for curing Coughs, Colds and Asthma.

MUST HUMANITY STARVE?

How Shall the Increasing Population of the World Be Fed?—An Illustration.

The troubles at the leading centers of population, the agitation of questions which are closely connected with wage earning, are all barometric indications of storms ahead. What shall be done with the rapidly increasing population of the world and how it shall be provided for so as to reduce the friction of bread winning to the minimum, are grave problems which may enlist with profit the leading minds of civilized countries.

Mr. Edward Atkinson, in The Forum, enters into a consideration of the doctrines of Malthus and Ricardo. If their concepts are to be received as demonstrations of science, what good, he asks, will result from the efforts to ameliorate the condition of mankind, to prevent war, to stop famine and to save life from diseases? If human passions and human nature lead to a disproportion of population in ratio to the means of subsistence, or if the mind of man applied as a factor to production cannot provide for this tendency of population to increase, without resort either to violent or to purely artificial methods of checking it, we might as well "eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we die," without taking any thought for the future of the race.

With these pessimistic doctrines Mr. Atkinson takes issue. He thinks they are based upon very narrow observation. If Malthus or Ricardo had conceived that within a short period, says Mr. Atkinson, ironstone would be converted into food for man and beast, by grinding into powder the phosphoric slag, which is the waste product of the iron furnace, neither would have ventured to present such hypotheses. Malthus held that the population of the world would increase faster than means of subsistence could be found for the additional number. Ricardo's theory was that a given area of land of high fertility when cultivated for a series of years in a certain manner would yield diminishing returns in proportion to the amount of labor and capital expended upon it.

Mr. Atkinson reviews these hypotheses very elaborately, and finally concludes as follows: "The mind of man when applied to the direction of natural forces is the principal agent in material production; in fact, the controlling element. Those who claim that labor is the source of all production are utterly misled, because they do not admit this fundamental principle. May it not, therefore, be more consistent with the concepts of an enlightened faith of any type in which order is recognized in the universe to present an hypothesis that as the mental faculties of a man are more developed and more intelligently applied to the conversion of the forces of nature into material products, the general struggle for life will become less and not greater?"

Mr. Atkinson takes the right view. It is optimistic, but at the same time is based on the experience of oriental nations. The soil is the great reservoir of man's subsistence. It is the foundation upon which all other industries are based. If the earth were rocky, and so sterile as to be absolutely unproductive, man himself could not exist. He lives virtually on the soil. There could be no animal life without the soil. For even the carnivorous animals indirectly draw their sustenance from mother earth. The soil supports those animals on which the meat eaters live.

Granting that the soil is the basis of all life, what is the proportion of danger that the theories of Malthus and Ricardo will ever be realized? It seems to be very small. Man is yet in the adolescent period of his intellectuality. He will in the future know much more about the forces of nature and how to govern and to practically apply them than he does now. All this knowledge will be turned into useful channels. We will understand how to fertilize and cultivate the soil so that it can never be exhausted and will produce the maximum. So long as the soil is productive so long will there be no fear that humanity cannot be supported.

Take, as an illustration, the case of China. The area is not more than one-third the size of the United States. It supports, however, six times as many people as we have in this country. It takes care of the increase without any difficulty. The most careful system of fertilization is observed, and the farmer there bestows as much care on his farm, which is more in the nature of a garden than a farm, as the flower gardener in the United States bestows on his exotics. Even Germany, as sterile as it is in many parts, can supply millions more people than it does now. The director of the German statistical bureau has recently submitted some very interesting figures on this subject. His conclusions, which are based on the statistics gathered, are that without any effort Germany will be able to care for its increase in population for a time so long in the future that it is removed from the realm of human speculation.

Think of the unoccupied lands in Asia, in North and South America, in Africa. It will be centuries and centuries before these lands are even all partially tilled. When it is tilled there can be no limit to the industries which will be supported by it and the people which will find in these industries their employment and happiness.—Detroit Free Press.

The Canadian "Sea Cucumber."

In the waters surrounding the Atlantic provinces a holothurian, pentacta frondosa, dagger, very similar to the trepang of the Malay and Chinese coasts, is found in great abundance. It is called by our fishermen the "sea cucumber" or "sea pumpkin." A few experiments have been made on it as an article of food, and it has been pronounced good, with the flavor of lobster meat. Trepang, in the east, is prepared by dipping the live "sea cucumber" for two minutes in boiling water, then cutting open, then throwing into a second caldron of boiling water and mimosa bark. It is finally dried in the sun and pressed for stowage. The market value has been quoted at from five to six dollars per hundred pounds, and the fisheries are considered of industrial importance. Will not some of our ingenious fishermen or fish dealers make a thorough test of our own "sea cucumber," and settle the question whether there is to be any Canadian trepang or not?—Educational Review.

Three horticultural schools, free to women, have been opened in Denmark.

Very Peculiar Wedding Ring.

Lieut. von Francois, the African explorer, has recently described a strange custom among the Bayanzi, who live for many miles along the Upper Congo. The custom would seem to make life a good deal of a burden to their married women. Brass rods, which are the favorite currency in the country, are welded into great rings around the necks of the wives. Many of these rings worn by the women, whose husbands are well to do, weigh as much as thirty pounds, and this burden must be carried around by the poor women as long as they live.

"Frequently," says Lieut. von Francois, "one sees a poor woman whose neck is raw and sore under the heavy weight, and in places the skin is rubbed off by the ring. This is a sure sign that the ring has been recently welded around her neck, for after a time the skin becomes calloused, and then the strange ornament produces no abrasion. But the weight is an inconvenience; they never get used to it, and it is a perpetual tax upon their energies. In every crowd of women may be seen a number who are supporting the ring with their hands, and thus for a time relieving their weary shoulders of the heavy burden. It may be said that with every movement of their bodies the rings give them discomfort.

"A ring is never put around a woman's neck until she is believed to have attained her full physical development. Once on, it is no easy matter to get it off. The natives have no such thing as a file, and, though they can hammer a lot of brass rods into one, it is very difficult for them to cut the thick mass of metal in two. Women who increase largely in flesh after the rings have been fastened on their necks are in danger of strangling to death, and instances of this sort have been known to occur.

"Yet these women regard the cumbrous ornament with pride, imagine that it enhances their importance and beauty, and wear the burden with light hearts. Brass is the money of the country, and by putting it around their wives' necks the men are pretty certain that it won't be stolen or foolishly expended. But it is an odd and cruel sort of a savings bank."—New York Sun.

Russia's Domination in Asia.

A great and motley throng of brownish Hindoos, dusky Afghans, pallid Persians and yellow Chinamen, together with the vari-hued complexions of the nomad tribes and minor nationalities of Central Asia, is preparing for the picturesque pomp and ceremonials of coronation at Samarcand, the historical capital of Tamerlane, of the great white czar of Russia, who will henceforth become also emperor of Central Asia.

This great forthcoming event, which the activity of the Nihilists three years ago postponed, is dwelt upon no less with interest by the impressionable and glamour seeking Orientals of Calcutta, Pekin, Cabul and Teheran than looked forward to with innate pride and gratification by the chief personage in the coronation, who thus contemplates the realization of a long cherished dream which has irradiated the slumbers and gilded the waking thoughts of the long line of Russian imperial rulers for generations. Now the completion of the Transcaspian railroad makes the project easy of execution, and all Central Asia is agitated with the coming event. At the coronation of the reigning emperor in Moscow a few years ago special care was taken to insure the presence of powerful Asiatics, who were duly impressed with the tremendous military display which they witnessed, and returned to spread abroad the fame and dread of Russia. The same effect will be produced in a more marked degree at Samarcand.

While in Turkestan this event will destroy the last vestiges of formidable opposition to Russia's domination, it will also create uneasiness in England, and even Germany will view with disquietude this extension of Cossack domination into Central Asia.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Big Rooster's Indignation.

A disappointed barn yard fowl is often as cross as if it could show its temper after the manner of human beings. The big dominique rooster was a very good natured fellow with hens and young chickens, and he seldom resented having kernels of corn, no matter how many, snatched out from under his beak, when it was done in a fair scramble. But if he had begun to crow, and a kernel was unexpectedly dropped where he certainly would have got it, had he not been so busy, it was too much to see his share taken away by any other fowl. He frequently pecked the offender as soon as he could stop crowing and showed general ill temper for a few moments. His indignation was so amusing that we fell into the habit of teasing him in this way, until, at last, the old fellow began to practice choking down the rest of his crow when corn was thrown in front of him. Gradually he managed to stop more and more quickly, and in the end he would swallow his voice with a gulp, and snatch a bit of food as promptly as if he had not been crowing at all.—Benjamin Karr in Popular Science Monthly.

Economical Locomotive Engineers.

"You have seen the cotton waste with which engineers rub up their engines? Well, that isn't as valuable as gold dust, but every engineer is as careful of it as if it were. He has a bag in his cab to keep it in, and when he has used it he puts it back in the bag with as much pains as an old lady would use with her quilt pieces. Quite the natural thing for him to do, you say; but there's where you are wrong. Unless men are trained to be careful about these things the natural way seems to be to throw away or otherwise lose more than they save. Now, suppose every engineer on the road saves 5 cents a day by an economical use of oil and waste, that amounts to a pretty penny when you reckon on the thousands of engines run by the road. You see how system and discipline pay! There's nothing like it!"—Philadelphia Times.

Campaign Against Saccharine.

The French sugar makers have commenced a campaign against saccharine, extracted from coal tar. Experiments have shown that it is not noxious, but the Society of Agriculturists have petitioned the government to forbid its manufacture, as prejudicial to the beet root sugar trade.—New York Sun.

OH, WHAT A COLD!

This is the season for sudden changes in the weather, and a great many "take cold" either in their Head or on their Lungs, causing Coughs, Hoarseness, and Sore Throat. These troubles can be soon relieved and cured by taking Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs, entirely removing these difficulties.

Cured his boy of Croup.

C. M. Brooks, Lowell, Mass., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific as a cure for Coughs, Colds, and Croup. I used it in my family last winter with the best results. Two or three doses cured my little boy of Croup, for which I am very thankful."

You can cure that Cough in a short time. You can cure your Catarrh if you persist in its use, as it will stop the secretion of Catarrhal matter in the head; it will relieve Croup in from three to five minutes.

The best he ever saw.

"The best medicine for Coughs and Consumptive Complaints that ever I saw is Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific," so says John McLaughlin, of Boston.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

SULPHUR BITTERS

The Best and Purest Medicine EVER MADE.

It will drive the Humor from your system, and make your skin clean and smooth. Those Pimples and Blotches which mar your beauty are caused by impure blood, and can be removed in a short time, if you are wise and use the great blood purifier, SULPHUR BITTERS.

SULPHUR BITTERS. Why suffer with Boils? Why pay big bills for Doctors? Why fill your system with Mercury? Why suffer with Rheumatism? What makes you feel so miserable? Your nerves are all unstrung and your blood is cooling to a state of stagnation. Use Sulphur Bitters and regain your health. Sulphur Bitters is not a cheap Rum or Poor Whiskey drink, but a concentrated Tonic, made of the purest and best medicinal herbs and roots. Do not poison your blood and destroy your health from other medicines, which eliminate only 1/10 of the poison from the system, and leave the other 9/10 to decompose and poison the blood. Sulphur Bitters will cure you where all others fail. Do not be deceived by worthless imitations. Sulphur Bitters. Take no other. Sulphur Bitters. They never fail to cure.

S.S.S. TRADE MARK — TRUE FOR THE BLOOD

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC

Is entirely a vegetable preparation containing no Mercury, Potash, Arsenic, or other poisonous substances.

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC

Has cured hundreds of cases of Epithelioma or Cancer of the Skin, thousands of cases of Eczema, Blood Humors and Skin Diseases, and hundreds of thousands of cases of Scrofula, Blood Poison and Blood Taint.

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC

Has relieved thousands of cases of Mercurial Poisoning, Rheumatism and Stiffness of the Joints.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 27, 1888—Swift's Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: In the early part of the present year, a bad case of blood poison appeared upon me. I began taking S. S. S. under advice of another, and to-day I feel greatly improved. I am still taking the medicine and shall continue to do so until I am perfectly well. I believe it will effect a perfect cure. Yours truly,

Geo. P. Howard, 111 West Sixth St.

Columbia, S. C., July 5, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: I was a great sufferer from muscular rheumatism for two years. I could get no permanent relief from any medicine prescribed by my physician. I took over a dozen bottles of your S. S. S., and now I am as well as I ever was in my life. I am sure your medicine cured me, and I would recommend it to any one suffering from any blood disease. Yours truly,

O. E. Hoover, Conductor C. & G. R. R.

Waco, Texas, May 9, 1888—Gentlemen: The wife of one of my customers was terribly afflicted with a loathsome skin disease, that covered her whole body. She was confined to her bed for several years by this affliction, and could not help herself at all. She could not sleep from a violent itching and stinging of the skin. The disease baffled the skill of the physicians who treated it. Her husband began finally giving his wife Swift's Specific, and she commenced to improve almost immediately, and in a few weeks she was apparently well. She is now a hearty, fine-looking lady, with no trace of the affliction left. Yours very truly, J. E. Shane, Wholesale Druggist, Austin Avenue.

"Reform."

Every one concedes that the removal of experienced men in our postal service, and filling their places with men entirely fresh and unacquainted with the duties of postal clerks, etc., has caused much delay, confusion and inconvenience in mail deliveries across the country. To further complicate matters, the civil service reform administration has summarily removed Superintendent R. C. Jackson of the second division of the railway mail service, a most competent officer of twenty-five years' experience, to give the place to a New York politician. The public long recognized the advantages of the service of Mr. Jackson, who had no control of patronage, and was eminently qualified for the place. But what of that? The administration wants votes, and not an efficient and satisfactory conduct of the post-office department. The business and other correspondence of the country must suffer, because Mr. Cleveland pretends one thing and does another.

A Free Ballot---For "Reform" Democrats.

The New York Press published a letter from R. B. Carl Lee, of St. Louis, in which he says he has just returned from Arkansas, where he took part in the Union Labor Party campaign. The democrats, it is alleged, stole the ballot boxes at the townships which gave a Union Labor majority, and shot and killed many voters of the ticket. At El Dorado, the county seat of Union county, they took the poll books away from the judges and burned them, and then held a new election at which no Union Labor man was allowed to vote. Mr. Lee adds: "You can use this letter as you see fit. Mind, it is not the republicans that have been counted out, but the Union Labor ticket. The republicans counted the democrats out while they were in power, and now the democrats count everybody out that is opposed to them. They have armed the democratic clubs, and made military companies of them."

New Hampshire Items.

Herald Thompson of Andover fell and broke one of his hips recently. He is ninety-nine years old.

Buildings of Samuel Titcomb near Hinsdale were burned Sept. 15th.

The Young Men's Christian association of Dartmouth college are to have a new building, to cost between $20,000 and $25,000.

The remains of the late William Barrett, who died in St. Paul, Minn., were brought to Nashua for burial, and the funeral was held Sept. 18th.

Dr. John N. Perley of Laconia died Sept. 18th, aged eighty-three. He was a native of Laconia.

The workmen in the Maynard & Washburn shoe factory, who were arrested under the new law against obstructing business, because they complained of an abusive overseer and caused his discharge, have been tried and acquitted.

The New Hampshire Baptist anniversaries will be held at Claremont, Oct. 16-18. They comprise meetings of the conference of Baptist ministers, historical society, Sunday school convention, and the convention of ministers and delegates from the churches.

The republican campaign organization at Penacook has taken the name of Goodell Guards.

Thomas P. Cheney of Ashland has obtained the republican senatorial nomination in the Plymouth district.

Col. Frank G. Clarke of Peterborough is the senatorial nominee of the republicans of the Peterborough district.

Raymond has a population of 1200, and within the precincts of the town there are eighty-eight residents over seventy years of age, fifteen of whom are past eighty, and two past ninety. Benjamin Poor, the oldest, will be ninety-three on the 24th of this month, and Mrs. Sally D. Tucker will be ninety-one October 17th.

Jacob Welch, aged fifty, of Lynn, Mass., connected with the Lougee Medicine company of Lynn, cut his throat on the night of the 18th inst. at Wadley's falls, near Nottingham, this state. The recent suspension of the company, where he money was invested caused the act. He leaves a wife and two children.

The republican convention of the 7th (Sullivan) senatorial district met at Newport on the 20th inst., and nominated George L. Bascom of Claremont for senator.

Something Every Voter Should Read.

BOSTON, Sept. 21. On Monday next, Sept. 24th, the Boston Globe will begin the publication of a striking series of articles devoted to a discussion of the tariff. They will appear daily throughout the campaign as the editorial leader of the day, and in short paragraphic form will explain every phase of the great issue, in the plain, common-sense style that every man who reads can readily understand: The history of the tariff; how and why it was made; what the two parties have had to say and do about it in the past; the influence of the tariff on wages; the exact provisions and probable effect of the Mills bill; the precise meaning of such terms as "free trade;" "tariff for revenue only;" "a revenue tariff with incidental protection;" "high tariff;" "low tariff;" "balance of trade," and the like commonly used but imperfectly understood phases; the exact truth about English and other foreign revenue and tariff laws, and their effect on the industries of the United States. All this and every other feature of the tariff controversy that has a live, practical interest for the working people of this country will be treated in a plain, direct, common-sense way in these Globe articles.

The Yellow Fever.

Responses to Jacksonville's appeal have been prompt and generous, but more help is still needed.

In Jacksonville on the 19th there were 130 new cases, and fourteen deaths; total cases to date, 1333; deaths, 170. A large proportion of the new cases were among the negroes living in the suburbs, and a much increased death rate was expected among this class, should cool nights continue. Gainesville reported no new cases on the 19th. At McClenny, Rev. Mr. Snowdon of the Episcopal church died on the 19th, but all other patients were doing well.

A despatch of the 20th inst. from Memphis, Tenn., said that ten cases of yellow fever had that day appeared at Decatur, Ala., 180 miles east of Memphis, and that the people were fleeing from the place in terror. Later reports confirmed this report.

Naval Intelligence

Commander A. G. Kellogg has been detached from the Washington navy yard, and ordered to command the United States steamer Ossipee on the 1st of October, relieving Commander W. B. Hoff, who has been placed on waiting orders.

Lieut. A. W. Grant has been ordered to duty in connection with the installation of the electric lighting plant of the gunboat Yorktown.

Ensign John Hood is ordered to the naval academy.

Lieut. S. E. Woodworth has been detached from steel inspection duty at Steelton, Penn., and ordered to duty at Phœnixville, Penn.

Ensign H. M. Dombaugh is ordered from duty at the naval war college, and ordered to the New Hampshire.

The orders of Lieut. C. R. Miles to the Richmond have been revoked, and he has been ordered to Mohican.

The United States steamer Ossipee, now at New York, has been ordered to proceed to Philadelphia for the purpose of towing the monitor Puritan to Norfolk. The Ossipee will be repaired at that yard for her winter cruise.

A survey has been ordered on the United States ship Galena, now at New York, which is represented as requiring extensive repairs.

Some of the democratic papers, most of them, in fact, have been jubilating aloud over the accession to the Cleveland party of that eminent republican George C. Gorham, ex-secretary of the United States senate. Our democratic brethren are apt to be a little too previous sometimes, but in this case they are not. Gorham was a republican for revenue only, and when he was displaced as secretary of the senate by Gen. Anson McCook, years ago, he became at once a blatant opponent of the party which made him all he ever amounted to. He "declared" for Cleveland in 1884, and voted for him. As a new recruit to the free trade ranks, he is a trifle stale.

"Molly Bishop's Family:" by Catherine Owen, author of "Ten Dollars Enough," and "Gentle Breadwinners." Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. Portsmouth, for sale by M. Goodrich; price $1.00.

This is a story of the trials and perplexities which beset a young mother, early left a widow, and of the manner in which by judicious energy she triumphed over all. It contains many valuable suggestions for mothers, or those expecting to become such, and incidentally gives some practical instructions about cooking certain nice dishes.

"A Modern Adam and Eve in a Garden:" by Amanda M. Douglass, author of "Out of the Wreck," "Foes of Her Household," etc. Lee & Shepard, Boston, publishers; for sale in Portsmouth by M. Goodrich; price, in boards, $1.50.

Miss Douglass is one of the best known authors of the day, and the readers of her numerous works are numbered by tens of thousands; and this new book will have many purchasers. Her Adam and Eve were brother and sister, but unlike their namesakes of old were not banished from the garden; on the contrary, they remained in it, and prospered much therein, through hard work. There are two love stories running through the book, and the whole is not only pleasant but wholesome reading.

News and Notes.

Over a thousand lives were lost, and many thousands of buildings destroyed, by the recent cyclone in Cuba.

A shepherd digging in a field near Dummer, Hants, Eng., has turned up a lot of relics of what seemed to have been an ancient cemetery. There are two perfect vases of curious baked pottery, fragments of several other vases, and a lot of bones, some of them of men and some of animals. All bear traces of being remains of a very ancient race.

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY CONVENTION.

The democratic county convention of Rockingham county was held in Exeter on Thursday, the 20th inst., and nominations made as follows:

Sheriff, Edward D. Coffin;

Solicitor, Samuel W. Emery;

County commissioners, John F. Magraw of Portsmouth, George W. Sanborn of East Kingston, Walter J. Dudley of Raymond;

Register of Deeds, Gilman B. Hoyt of Exeter;

Register of Probate, Andrew J. Brown of Exeter;

Treasurer, Thomas E. Call, Jr., of Portsmouth.

It was the largest democratic county convention ever held in the county, ninety-one out of ninety-three delegates being present. Chairman Stone of the democratic state committee made a speech; and "the major," of Portsmouth, presided.

MONTE-CRISTO.

To-morrow (Saturday) evening the eminent actor James O'Neil will appear in Music hall, as the central figure in the romantic drama "Monte-Cristo." Mr. O'Neil is the only person who is authorized to play this version, and his impersonation of the title role is one of the most impressive and powerful characterizations to be seen on the American stage. He produces the play with a brilliant cast of characters, realistic stage pictures, painted expressly for this play by two of New York's great scenic artists, with all the grand effects, correct appointments, and a car load of special scenery, making the production perfect in every detail. Tickets at Goodrich's.

THE JAPANESE VILLAGE.

During the entire coming week, Franklin hall will be occupied by the Rising Sun Japanese village, a colony of Japanese men, women and children in native costume under management of Wm. Austin of Boston. Of this unique attraction the Newburyport Herald says:

"The Japanese village opened at city hall to an audience limited only by the capacity of the house. To say that the vast audience was delighted would but feebly express the truth. They were in ecstacy as they gazed spell-bound and breathless at the marvellous ingenuity displayed by the genius-gifted children of the orient, as with deft and skillful fingers they created a multiplicity of useful and ornamental articles so rapidly and elaborately that expressions of wonder were heard on every hand. The Sanford Girls' orchestra interspersed a choice and pleasing variety of vocal and instrumental music, and the applause evoked by their frequent contributions to the evening's entertainment was a convincing proof of their rare merits."

REPUBLICAN SENATORIAL CONVENTION.

The republican convention of the 24th (Portsmouth) Senatorial District was held at the court house in this city at eleven o'clock in the forenoon on Thursday, the 20th inst.

Mr. Lewis E. Smith was chosen chairman, and Mr. John H. Locke secretary of the convention.

The convention immediately proceeded to business, and nominated by acclamation Mr. John E. Dimick, station agent of the Concord railroad in this city.

Hon. Marcellus Bufford and Mr. John H. Locke were appointed a committee to notify Mr. Dimick of his nomination, and the convention adjourned.

John E. Dimick, the nominee for senator, was born in Lyme, N. H., March 27th, 1836, and is fifty-two years of age. He has been for thirty years engaged in railroad affairs, ten years being passed as agent of the Passumpsic railroad at Wells River, fifteen years as passenger conductor of the Boston, Concord & Montreal railroad, and for the five years just passed, as agent of the Concord railroad in this city.

His duties have caused his residence at Wells River, Littleton, Lancaster and Portsmouth. Mr. Dimick is a staunch republican, and while living at Lancaster, a democratic stronghold in those days, was urged as the most available candidate of his party to run for representative to the legislature, and in 1875 was triumphantly elected, running largely ahead of his ticket; in 1876 he was re-elected. The first year he served as chairman of the committee on finance of the house of representatives, and the second year was chosen one of the auditors of the state treasurer's accounts. The republicans of the district are to be congratulated on his nomination, which puts success within their reach, and secures the services of a gentleman every way qualified to represent Portsmouth with ability and faithfulness. They enter the campaign without division, and will wage an aggressive contest from the start.

Pears' is the purest and best Soap made.

We do not like to growl, particularly when everybody else is growling; and the complaints in regard to the inefficiency of the "reform" mail service, when compared with that under republican administrations, have been so persistent and nearly universal, that we have held our peace in regard to the shortcomings of the service. But really, it does seem as though even the present inefficient administration might, by strenuous effort, get a letter posted at Kittery on Tuesday morning to this office before Thursday afternoon.

We have not heard of any organized movement in our city to aid the yellow fever sufferers at Jacksonville. Something should be done at once, if it is to be done at all.

The 100th anniversary of the completion of the Beverly bridge between Salem and Beverly, Mass., will be celebrated by the city of Salem and town of Beverly on the 24th inst.

The Portland Express of Tuesday, the 18th inst., says: "The schooner Mary Willey, at Bangor, was loaded with lumber Saturday night, and ready to sail, when she suddenly commenced leaking, and the water came in over the cabin floor. The captain could not account for the leak, but the schooner was unable to proceed. Yesterday she was hauled out at Rollins' yard, and it was found that a rat had eaten his way out through the stern of the vessel at the guards, thus causing the leak. The vessel is now undergoing repairs."

The Manchester Mirror says that "A prominent Concord lawyer, upon being asked to-day what the effect of the granting of the temporary injunction would be as prayed for by stockholders of the Boston, Concord & Montreal railroad in the bill in equity just filed, said that it would not stop the construction of the Lake Shore road. The only effect of the granting of the injunction would be to prevent those building the road from using the corporate name of the B., C. & M. R. R. The road, he said, would be put through anyway, according to the terms of its charter."

The moonlight excursion to the Isles of Shoals by the steamer Oceanic, Capt. Robinson, advertised to take place on Wednesday evening, the 19th inst., was postponed on account of the weather to this (Friday) evening. This will be the last steamboat excursion outside of this harbor this year.

Hartley Twombley, of No. 6 Myrtle street, while splitting wood on Thursday morning chopped off the first two fingers off his right hand (he is left-handed) with the axe.

Since the building of the big Deer street sewer the smelt fishing of the north millpond has revived, and the millbridge is now at favorable times of the tide lined with amateur fishermen of all ages, reminding one of old times, before the breweries polluted the pond and made the sewer a necessity.

J. V. Farrar, representing Herne's "Hearts of Oak" company, was in town on the 20th inst., and arranged for the production of the piece in Music hall on Wednesday evening, Sept. 26th.

Miss Carrie E. Dulin of Kittery Point died on Monday afternoon, Sept. 17th, after a sickness of nearly four weeks. The deceased was a member of the Freewill Baptist church, a devoted Christian, and a faithful worker for the cause; she had a large circle of friends and will be greatly missed, but our loss is her gain, for we know that Carrie is at rest. Miss Dulin was thirty years old, and an only child; she was soon to have become the wife of Manning P. Tobey, pastor of the Baptist church at Waterville, N. H. The afflicted ones have our deepest sympathy.

COM.

The Saco River Baptist association, comprising the churches of York county and a few adjoining New Hampshire towns, commenced its annual session on the 20th inst. in Limerick. The annual sermon was preached by Edward P. Burt of Buxton Centre, a recent graduate of the Newton theological school. A large number of delegates were present, and the following officers of the association were chosen for the ensuing year: Moderator, Rev. J. M. Batt, Buxton Centre; clerk, Rev. George B. Titus, Saco; treasurer, Asa L. Ricker, Biddeford. The session is devoted to reports from churches, discussions and sermons.

Mrs. Stephen A. Grant, of Grant's hotel at Limerick, Me., gathered a few days ago in the orchard of her father, Mr. George Moulton of York, a branch from an apple tree containing thereon in close proximity a fine bunch of apple blossoms and an apple.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY POINT, ME., Sept. 20th.

A small party went from this city to Boston last Saturday by the steamer Oceanic, and returned Sunday evening. They enjoyed the trip very much, which was more than some of the others did, as the return trip was quite rough.

Mrs. Mannett of Middleboro, Mass., formerly Miss Laura Foy of this place, died quite suddenly last Friday.

Mr. Isaac Foye returned to Middleboro, Mass., last Saturday, after a short visit here.

Services were held at the Christian chapel again last Sunday, as usual; the altar was nearly hidden by a large floral piece, composed of wild flowers, and by bouquets, ferns, etc., which looked very pretty.

There were one barque, one coal-barge, one coal steamer, two four-masted schooners, a number of three-masted schooners, several brickers, lumber loaded vessels, and a lot of fishing vessels, in the harbor during the storm of Monday and Tuesday.

The 1:31 P. M. train west bound, and the 3:37 P. M. east bound, over the York Harbor & Beach railroad, were discontinued on Monday, and our afternoon mail does not close now until 4:30; what next?

Miss Carrie E. Dulin died last Monday afternoon, after a sickness of nearly four weeks, and was buried from the Freewill Baptist church Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. G. S. Wasson has taken the sails off and the ballast from his yacht Bonnie Doon, which will soon be put on moorings for the fall

The hotel Pocahontas closed last Monday.

A party propose to go to York beach to-day (Thursday) on the 8:46 A. M. train, to have a grand picnic and good time in general, returning on the 5:50 P. M. train.

The residence of the late Sir William Pepperell is being partly reshingled.

The pleasant weather of last week was followed by some not quite so agreeable; it was raining Monday and Tuesday, with a little fog-horn music, which sounds better to a captain making the harbor in thick weather than a full band does playing Yankee Doodle. UNCLE MOSES.

The First Symptoms

Of all Lung diseases are much the same: feverishness, loss of appetite, sore throat, pains in the chest and back, headache, etc. In a few days you may be well, or, on the other hand, you may be down with Pneumonia or "galloping Consumption." Run no risks, but begin immediately to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Several years ago, James Birchard, of Darien, Conn., was severely ill. The doctors said he was in Consumption, and that they could do nothing for him, but advised him, as a last resort, to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking this medicine, two or three months, he was pronounced a well man. His health remains good to the present day.

J. S. Bradley, Malden, Mass., writes: "Three winters ago I took a severe cold, which rapidly developed into Bronchitis and Consumption. I was so weak that I could not sit up, was much emaciated, and coughed incessantly. I consulted several doctors, but they were powerless, and all agreed that I was in Consumption. At last, a friend brought me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. From the first dose, I found relief. Two bottles cured me, and my health has since been perfect."

WHAT IS SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

TRAVELING IN SIBERIA.

Miserable Horses of the Yakoots—The Gentle Reindeer and His Driver.

Reindeer are much swifter and more reliable than dogs or the miserable horses of the Yakoots. And yet these horses are not to be despised, for they supply a need that it would be difficult to reach with other animals. They are very hardy and require scarcely more attention than the wilder animals in that country. It is not necessary to provide food or shelter for them. They thrive and do much hard work upon dead grass, twigs and dried leaves that in winter they find by pawing off the snow from the ground. In summer it would be impossible to keep up communication with the Russian outposts in Siberia without these horses of the Yakoots. Upon them is packed the merchandise for trade with the outlying tribes, and they bring back the furs that have been gathered during the winter season. Upon the obscure trail through those wild Siberian wastes the summer traveler often meets long lines of these animals trudging patiently along, sometimes twenty-five or thirty in number, each one tied to the tail of his file leader.

During the winter, however, the gentle reindeer move gaily along at a swift and easy trot, two attached to each sled, and fastened by a line from the antlers of one to the sled in front of him. There may be but one driver for half a dozen or more sleds, and he sits on the right side of the leading sled, guiding his team with a line attached to a halter around the antlers and under the throat of the off leader. A steady pull directs the team to the right, and a series of jerks is a suggestion to go to the left. If, however, the leader neglects the signal, the driver jumps from his seat and runs alongside of the obstinate animal, which immediately makes a rush toward the opposite direction. An active and attentive driver occupies himself incessantly in keeping his team under full headway, and for that purpose wields a long, thin stick or wand with which he continually prods the poor reindeer in the rear. Eventually he gets a little sore place there by continued prodding, and plies his relentless rod upon that tender spot with the best results. The conscience that exists even in a Yakoot or Tunguse yemshik has inspired him to put a wooden or bone button upon the end of his goad to keep it from penetrating too far.

When a reindeer is tired, it lies down, and no amount of punishment will get it on its feet again until another is brought to replace it from a number of spare animals that are always tied behind the rear sled for that purpose. No matter how much exhausted the weary animal seems when removed from harness, it recuperates very rapidly while running behind the sleds, and is soon ready to take its turn at pulling. The usual gait of a reindeer team is a long, swinging trot; but when in a great hurry, which is seldom the case with those lazy people, the driver urges his team into a gallop, and under such circumstances it is not unusual for them to make over twenty verste (about fourteen or fifteen miles) an hour.—William H. Gilder in Outing.

In Their First Battles.

A young Bostonian has written to several prominent generals asking how they felt in their first battles. Gen. Sherman says that such questions are hard to answer. Admiral Porter says his first battle occurred when he was 12 years of age, and that he did not feel much afraid. Gen. Pleasonton remarks that his first battle was in Mexico in 1846, and that he felt that the sooner the enemy was thrashed the better it would be, while Gen. Averell says the battle of Bull Run, 1861, was his first, and that when he saw the enemy he thought that a great and useless crime was about to be committed. —New York World.

Fountains in Trees.

The great cottonwood trees in the swamps of Tennessee contain veins of clear, sparkling water which tastes somewhat like unsweetened soda water and which spurts forth as if under gaseous pressure when a vein is punctured. It is said to be deliciously refreshing, and hunters are in the habit of carrying gimlets with which to pierce the veins when they are thirsty. It is a point of honor with them to plug up the orifice when their thirst is satisfied, that the next comer may not be disappointed.—New York Evening World.

Indians of Arizona.

Extensive preparations are being made by the Presbyterian board of Indian schools to educate the Indians of Arizona. At Tucson they are building an $8,000 school house. Fifty acres of land have been bought on the Santa Cruz river, where the young Indians will be instructed in farming, and another building, to cost $6,000, will soon be erected, where 150 pupils can be accommodated.—Chicago News.

Catching Rattlesnakes.

A novel industry has been started by boys in the San Monica mountains in California. They catch rattlesnakes by means of a slip noose of cord, box them up and take them to Los Angeles, where they sell them. The Chinese are the purchasers. They use them as medicine, and the snakes sell for from fifty cents to $1 each. It is said that the Chinamen handle them fearlessly and never get bitten.—Chicago Herald.

Five Years Without Winding.

A clock has been invented, and is coming into use in Europe, which is warranted by its manufacturers to run for five years without either winding or regulation. The Belgian government placed one in a railway station in 1881, sealed with the government seal, and it has kept perfect time ever since.—The Argonaut.

Evolution of Words.

It is interesting to trace the evolution of words and expressions. Cultivated people say: "How do you do?" Those who are less precise say: "Howdydoo?" In the backwoods of Tennessee they say "Howdy?" The noble red man of the west says "How?" While the cat on the fence says "Ow?"—Norwich Bulletin.

When we consider the patronage of this great office, [the presidency,] the allurements of power, the temptation to retain place once gained, and more than all, the availability a party finds in an incumbent whom a horde of office holders, with a zeal born of benefits and fostered by the hope of favors yet to come, stand ready to aid with money and trained political service, we recognize in the eligibility of the president for re-election most serious danger to that calm, deliberate and intelligent political action which must characterize a government by the people.—Grover Cleveland.

Reducers of American industry:

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the free trade and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

"American wages for American workmen." Republican motto

Didn't Want a Girl

Last summer my wife's health was all run down, and she wanted me to hire a girl to do the work. I'd a little while I found one I thought would suit her, when to my surprise she said I need not hire any one, as she felt much better, and thought another bottle of Sulphur Bitters would cure her. Donald Grey, 41 Worcester Square, Boston.

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

Hoy Fever.

I have been afflicted with hay fever from early in August until frost. My eyes would run a stream of water and I sneezed continually. I was advised to use Ely's Cream Balm. It has worked like a charm and I can say I am entirely cured.—Mrs. Emeline Johnson, Chester, Conn.

I have been for several years a sufferer from hay fever and severe head colds. I have found nothing that can compare with Ely's Cream Balm. I would not be without it for any consideration. It is simply wonderful in its effect upon the nasal organs.—S. A. Burtt, Wilmington, N. C.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

Canker humors of every description, whether in the mouth, throat, or stomach, are expelled from the system by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. No other remedy can compare with this, as a cure for all diseases originating in impure or impoverished blood.

An extensive domestic market for the surplus produce of the soil is of the first consequence. It is, of all things, that which most effectually conduces to a flourishing state of agriculture.—Alexander Hamilton.

Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam heals sore throat, reduces the swollen tonsils, and restores natural tone to the affected vocal chords. It soothes to natural and refreshing slumber, during which nature regains strength to combat disease.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

Take Ayer's Pills and be cured. Misery is a mild word to describe the sufferings of body and mind, caused by habitual constipation. A moderate use of Ayer's Pills will invariably regulate the bowels.

We must now place our manufactures by the side of the agriculturist. * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

It is certain that the arguments which President Cleveland urges are those which Cobden used to employ forty-five years ago, and which any free trader could employ now.—London Times.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. eon,wed,fri,eu1al

Mobile Prizes. How—Where—When.

Mr. Frank McKeon, a clever gentleman, of McKeon & Menkon, who operate a respectable old, that it was a fact that he and Mr. Beyle held one-twentieth of ticket No. 53,469, the second capital prize of $100,000 in the last drawing of The Louisiana State Lottery. "The prize came in good time, as I needed the money badly, as you know I have had plenty of bad luck. We were burned out last fall. Another misfortune was losing $300 in a recent bank failure." The Southern Express Company collected it for Messrs. McKeon and Beyle.—Mobile (Ala.) Register, July 15th.

The Population of Portsmouth

Is about 10,000, and we would say at least one-half are troubled with some affection of the throat and lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all our readers not to neglect the opportunity to call on their druggist get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Trial size free. Large bottles 50c. and $1. Sold by all druggists. sep22

The Handsomest Lady of Portsmouth

Remarked to a friend the other day that she knew Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when other cough remedies had no effect whatever. So to prove this and convince you of its merit, any druggist will give you a sample bottle free. Large size 50c. and $1.

SOME DOCTORS

honestly admit that they can't cure Rheumatism and Neuralgia. Others say they can but—don't. Athlophoros says nothing but—proves. That's the secret of its success. Years of trial have proved it to be a quick, safe, sure cure.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 1, 1882.

In my own family Athlophoros was used as a last resort, the user having suffered from rheumatism for years and having been treated for the disease by different physicians in this State and Massachusetts without even temporary relief. Upon my recommendation some of your Athlophoros was used this month with the same results claimed for it. C. H. AYMOND.

Dubuque, Iowa, Jan. 1, 1883.

Athlophoros has completely cured me of nervous headache, and I feel thankful for all the good it has done me.

A Hint to Puny People.

From their arrival on this planet to their usually early departure from it, people of weak constitutions and angular physiques pass a sort of half-existence. Like dormice they burrow in their home retreats, afrid of heat, afraid of cold, constantly afraid that the shadow of the dread reapear will materialize and exact the forfeit which he demands from all, sooner or latter. No finer medicinal assurance of comparative vigor for the feeble exists than agorded by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Used with persistence—not with spurts and spasm—this genial and professionally commended tonic will do much toward infusing strength into a puny system, and rounding off scrawny angles in the human figure. Appetite, nerve tranquility and nightly repose are encouraged by it, and a malarial, rheumatic, billous tendency overdone. It reestablishes digestion and prevents kidney troubles.

When our manufactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C Calhoun.

The liver and kidneys must be kept in good condition. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a great remedy for regulating these organs.

Congress have earnestly, and no without success, directed their attention to the encouragement of manufactures. The object is of too much consequence not to insure a continuance of their efforts in every way which shall appear eligible.—George Washington.

The only time England can use a Celt is when he emigrates to America, and votes for free trade. — London Times.

Vincent Lundberg, of Stockholm, Physician-in-Chief to the King of Sweden, recommends Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer for the scalp and hair.

Peculiar

In the combination, proportion, and preparation of its ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures where other preparations entirely fail. Peculiar in its good name at home, which is a "tower of strength abroad," peculiar in the phenomenal sales it has attained. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most successful medicine for purvifying the blood-giving strength, and creating an appetite.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

The issue of Protection is incalculably stronger and greater than any man, as it concerns the prosperity of the present and of the generations yet to come.—James G. Blaine.

Could not Keep

Shop without them. I consider your Sulpher Bitters a remarkable blood purifier. I know of several people, whose cases were considered hopeless, that have been cured by your medicine. The sale of Sulpher Bitters is so large here that I could not keep shop without them. E. S. Yates, Pharmacist, 99 Essex street, Lawrence, Mass.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

ADAMSON'S BOTANIC COUGH BALSAM

More than twenty years ago Adamson's Botanic Balsam was introduced generally throughout New England as a remedy for Coughs, Colds and Pulmonary complaints. Since its introduction it has constantly won its way into public favor, until now it is the universal decision that ADAMSON'S BOTANIC BALSAM is the best remedy for curing Coughs, Colds and Asthma.

SCENES OF SENSUOUS BEAUTY.

Interesting People Who Loiter Their Hours Away in West Indian Tropics.

Hindoos, coolies; men, women and children—standing, walking or sitting in the sun, under the shadowing of the palms. Men squatting, with hands clasped over their black knees, steadily observe you from under their white turbans—very steadily, with a slight scowl. All these Indian faces have the same set, stern expression, the same knitting of the brows, and the keen, strong gaze is not altogether pleasant. It borders upon hostility; it is the look of measurement—measurement physical and moral. In the mighty swarmings of India these have learned the full meaning and force of life's law as we Occidentals rarely learn it. Under the dark forehead with its fixed frown the eye glitters like a serpent's.

Nearly all wear the same Indian dress, the thickly folded turban, usually white, white drawers reaching but half way down the thigh, leaving the knees and the legs bare, and white jacket. A few don long blue robes and wear a colored head dress. These are babagees, priests. All the men look tall; they are lithe, very slender, small boned, but the limbs are well turned. They are grave, talk in low tones and seldom smile. Those you see with very heavy, full beards are probably Mussulmans; they have their mosques and the cry of the muezzin sounds thrice daily over the vast cane fields. Some shave—Buddhists or followers of Hindooism—but the children of Islam never. Very comely some of the women are in their close clinging, soft, brief robes and tantalizing veils, a costume leaving shoulders, arms and ankles bare. The dark arm is always tapered and rounded; the silver circled ankle always elegantly knit to the light, straight foot. Many of these slim girls, whether standing or walking or in repose, present perpetually studies of grace; their attitude when erect always suggests lightness and suppleness, like the poise of a perfect dancer.

A coolie mother passes, carrying at her hip a very pretty naked baby. It has exquisite delicacy of limb; its tiny ankles are circled by thin bright silver rings; it looks like a little bronze statuette, a statue of Kama, the Indian Eros. The mother's arms are covered from elbow to wrist with silver bracelets, some flat and decorated, others coarse, round, smooth, with ends hammered into the form of viper heads. She has large flowers of gold in her ears, a small gold flower in her very delicate little nose. This nose ornament does not seem absurd; on these dark skins the effect is, on the contrary, pleasing, although bizarre. All this jewelry is pure metal; it is thus the coolies carry their savings; they do not learn to trust the banks until they become rich.

There is a woman going to market, a very odd little woman; is she a Chinobunco—a coolie or a Malay half breed? I do not know. She represents a type I have never seen before. She wears one loose soft white garment, leaving arms, ankles and part of back and bosom exposed, like a low cut sleeveless chemise, but less long. Her whole figure is rounded, compact, admirably knit, and her walk is indescribably light, supple, graceful. But her face is queer; it is an Oriental grotesque, a Chinese dream, oblique eyes and blue black brows and hair, very high and broad cheek bones. Singular as it is, this face has the veritable beaute du diable; it is a very young and very fresh face, and the uncommonly long, black, silky lashes give her gaze a very pleasing, velvety expression. Still, the most remarkable peculiarity she has is her color, clear and strange, almost exactly the color of a fine ripe lemon.—Lafcadio Hearn in Harper's Magazine.

A Full Orchestra Score.

Anybody who has ever looked at a full orchestral score must have been impressed with the immense labor involved in writing it, as well as with the profound knowledge of instruments that is required for the work. One reason why modern composers are not so prolific as those of the last century is due to this very fact. A hundred years ago the orchestras were of a much simpler form than they are at present. Not nearly so much attention was devoted to wood-wind instruments, and, besides this, a great many other instruments have been added to the full orchestra, and every modern composer feels bound to utilize every effect in his score. The music of today, therefore, is much richer in color than that of the past, as every concert-goer will appreciate who makes a mental comparison between works of Hadyn or Mozart and those of Wagner and Liszt.

In view of the immense amount of work and the kind of knowledge required to do it, the impression would be natural that scoring must be a well paid labor, but the reverse is the case. For the scoring of an ordinary march for full orchestra one does not need to pay more than $10 at the most, and it may be frequently had for $5, and the work will be in every sense satisfactory and complete. The men who do this kind of work are usually players in orchestras whose time is not entirely taken up with rehearsals and performances, and with pupils that they may have to instruct. They are glad of an opportunity to devote their evenings to odd jobs of scoring and arranging for the orchestra, and the competition among them is so great that the price is cut down to such a margin that ordinary composers, who do not strive after original effects, can better afford to have this work done by outside parties than to do it themselves.—New York Sun.

The Aqueducts of Peru.

Among the great water works of the world those of Peru were in some respects the most difficult achievements of any. The Incas built aqueducts from the slopes of the Andes for a distance of over 100 miles to the capital, carrying the water partly through tunnels cut in the rocks and partly on arcades on supporting pillars of masonry work to span valleys, the channels being composed of cut stone without cement. From these great aqueducts a number of branch conduits and furrows were laid laterally for irrigation purposes.—Scientific Journal.

The art of starching linen was introduced into England by a Mrs. Dingheim, a Flemish woman, in 1553.

The Armies of France Today.

Yes, France has made tremendous strides since 1870, and her military strength today has assumed really formidable proportions. One of the most praiseworthy acts of the war ministry was the immediate change effected after the war in the general staff, and the condition of this body of men is now on a par with any organization in Europe of the same nature.

Formerly the officers of the general staff were not taken from the army. They were first educated at the Polytechnic, or at St. Cyr, and then passed into the school of application for the general staff; thence they were sent for one year to an infantry regiment, one year to a cavalry regiment and latterly for half a year to the artillery, but it must be remarked that during this service they did no actual regimental duty. After they passed through these so called schools they at once entered the general staff as captains, and, unfortunately, usually as sides-de-camp to general officers. Now a man may be, socially, very amiable, and, socially, very accomplished, and therefore extremely well fitted to be an side-de-camp to a general, to manage his menus plaisirs, and yet not be in the least qualified for a staff officer in the proper sense of the word. So when many of the general officers were promoted and their sides-de-camp carried up a grade with them, it often placed these young officers in positions of immense importance, often calling for the performance of duties which they were incapable of performing. And these were the officers to whom the defending of many of the fortresses in 1870 was intrusted, and who had been ordered to their strengthening previous to the breaking out of hostilities.

What could one expect from such material? Today the armies of France are well officered, the condition of the line excellent, the esprit de corps good and the frontier defense formidable.—Godfrey Dynet Carden in San Francisco Chronicle.

Rock Crystal Watches.

A new and peculiar class of timepieces has lately been brought out which illustrates the steady progress that is being made in the arts of skill and precision. This is a watch of ordinary size, of which the case and plates are made of Brazilian pebble or rock crystal, thus rendering the watch transparent, and exposing to plain view the wheels and all other parts of the interior mechanism.—Scientific American.

England's Domestic Service.

About a seventh—15.7 per cent.—of the working population of England is engaged in domestic service. In America only 6 per cent. of the same population earn their living in this way. At least ten families are competing for one domestic in the United States where only four are bidding against each other in England.—Once a Week.

Names for Triplets.

This is the latest credited to W. S. Gilbert. A friend was bewailing in his company that his wife had just presented him with triplets, all girls. "What am I to do with them?" asked the poor man. "I don't even know what to name them." "Oh," said Mr. Gilbert, "call the first Kate, the second Duplicate, and the third Triplicate."—The Argonaut.

A Masseuse's Observation.

A masseuse who has practiced her profession largely among families of wealth makes the statement that in many years she has administered massage to only one woman whose ribs had not been displaced by corset wearing.—New York World.

Waste silk has been shown to be the most effective nonconductive covering for steam pipes. The price is high, but the demand is very great.

Bouquet throwing has been abolished in the London theatres.

The Paris census shows 6,915 Americans, 14,701 English and 35,708 Germans.

Writing a Composite Novel.

A new amusement is suggested by a club of young persons—sixteen in number. They are writing a book—a novel. So far the secretary is having the most fun out of it, but great expectations tremble way down in all the sixteen hearts. This novel is to have sixteen chapters, and each chapter is to be written by a different member. When finished the successive chapters are handed back to the secretary, who, consequently, is the only one who knows the various writers. They are all in fear and trembling lest the love making fall to their lot—that being considered the most difficult part to do justice to. There will certainly be much amusement afforded by the undertaking.—Chicago Herald.

Historian Bancroft's Longevity.

Mr. George Bancroft accounted for his own longevity the other day with three reasons: First, that he was the middle child in his father's family, equally distant from the youngest and the oldest; second, that he had always gone to bed at 10 o'clock, unless it had been impossible; and, third, that he had always spent four hours in each day in the open air, unless prevented by a storm. He added that his riding, of which the newspapers had made so much, was primarily for the purpose of being out of doors, and not of being on horseback.—Frank Leslie's.

Big Armor Clad Ships.

The French government has again taken up the building of great armor clad ships. Eight are now being pressed forward to completion. Admiral Pallu de la Barriere has caused a vessel to be built encased with cocoanut fibre instead of armor plates. It is said to have greater power of resistance than steel.—Paris Letter.

King Theebaw's Chair.

Among the loot taken from King Theebaw's palace in Burmah and about to be sent to London is a carved ivory chair, which, as it took two years to make, was not completed when the king was captured. It was composed of twenty-five elephant tusks and worth many thousands of rupees.—Chicago Herald.

OH, WHAT A COLD!

This is the season for sudden changes in the weather, and a great many "take cold" either in their Head or on their Lungs, causing Coughs, Hoarseness, and Sore Throat. These troubles can be soon relieved and cured by taking Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs, entirely removing these difficulties.

Cured his boy of Croup.

C. M. BROOKS, Lowell, Mass., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific as a cure for Coughs, Colds, and Croup. I used it in my family last winter with the best results. Two or three doses cured my little boy of Croup, for which I am very thankful."

You can cure that Cough in a short time. You can cure your Catarrh if you persist in its use, as it will stop the secretion of Catarrhal matter in the head; it will relieve Croup in from three to five minutes.

The best he ever saw.

"The best medicine for Coughs and Consumptive Complaints that ever I saw is Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific," so says JOHN MCLAUGHLIN, of Boston.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., June 27, 1888—Swift's Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: In the early part of the present year, a bad case of blood poison appeared upon me. I began taking S. S. S. under advice of another, and to-day I feel greatly improved. I am still taking the medicine and shall continue to do so until I am perfectly well. I believe it will effect a perfect cure. Yours truly,

O. K. HOWARD,
Doc. P. HOWARD,
111 West Sixth St.

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 7, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: I was a great sufferer from muscular rheumatism for two years. I could get no permanent relief from any medicine prescribed by my physician. I took over a dozen bottles of your S. S. S., and now I am as well as I ever was in my life. I am sure your medicine cured me, and I would recommend it to any one suffering from any blood disease. Yours truly,

O. E. HYONES,
Conductor C. & G. R. R.

WACO, TEXAS, May 3, 1883—Gentlemen: The wife of one of my customers was terribly afflicted with a loathsome skin disease, that covered her whole body. She was confined to her bed for several years by this affliction, and could not help herself at all. She could not sleep from a violent itching and stinging of the skin. The disease baffled the skill of the physicians who treated it. Her husband began finally giving his wife Swift's Specific, and she commenced to improve almost immediately, and in a few weeks she was apparently well. She is now a hearty fine-looking lady, with no trace of the affliction left. Yours very truly, J. E. STONE, Wholesale Druggist, Austin Avenue.

The Yellow Fever.

In the national house, Sept. 21st, Mr. Dougherty of Florida called up the joint resolution which unanimously passed the senate a few days ago, appropriating $100,000 for the relief of the yellow fever sufferers, but Congressman Kilgore of Texas, democrat, interposed an objection and prevented its passage.

At Jacksonville on the 20th there were reported 131 new cases and fifteen deaths; at McClenny, five new cases and one death.

It was telegraphed from Decatur, Ala., on the 20th, that but one death from the fever had occured there, instead of ten as reported.

Three cases of yellow fever developed at Jackson, Miss., on the 20th, among residents who have not been absent from the city for months, caused the wildest panic ever known there, and a headlong flight from the city commenced in a few hours.

A despatch of the 20th inst. from Natchez, Miss., says: "The city is in a fever of excitement at yellow fever reports from Jackson, and the shot-gun quarantine will be established at once. A large excursion party from Natchez, which visited Jackson, are shut out from their home. All trains on the Natchez, Jackson & Columbus railroad beyond Hamilton, have been stopped. A special train was sent out last night, to bring the Natchez people from Cooper's Mills, Harrington, and other points along the road, who have not been to Jackson."

A despatch of the 21st from Nashville, Tenn., says: "Refugees from Decatur and vicinity will not be permitted to stop at Nashville. Railroad men report that the geatest excitement prevailed at Decatur on Wedunesday night, the 19th. The people are leaving the city in all directions, going in vehicles and on foot, as the trains are not permitted to stop in that city. At a late hour last night seventy refugees, who boarded the Lawrence & Nashville train two miles south of Decatur, Ala., arrived in this city. Officers met the train sixteen miles out, and informed the refugees they could not be permitted to stop at Nashville; twelve of the number had tickets for this city. Those who did not pass through Decatur were allowed to leave the train here. The conductor reported several stopped at towns along the road. It is reported that 100 more refugees from Decatur are coming to this city to-day. They will not, however, be allowed to get off here. Most of those who went through are bound for points north of the Ohio river."

Congressman McKinney's Cadetship.

Some time ago Congressman McKinney of this district gave notice through the papers that the nomination to a West Point cadetship was in his hands, and that on a specified day a competitive examination would be held in Manchester, by a committee, of all boys in the district who could meet the requirements as to age, physical condition and mental requirements, who should contest for the prize. Mr. McKinney was under no obligation to do this, the old style having been for a congressman to appoint some relative or friend to the cadetship, and let the West Point authorities do the examining; but in calling for a competitive trial, there was of course an implied promise that the victor in the contest should receive the appointment.

The examination took place as advertised. Just how many contestants appeared we do not know, but believe there were seventeen. When it closed the examiners gave the several boys the rank to which they were entitled, and sent the list to McKinney. A few days latter it was announced that a young Irish-American who had received his education in the parochial schools in Manchester had distanced all his competitors, stood at the head of the list, and would receive the appointment. This was duly chronicled in the papers, and was telegraphed far and near, not only as evidence of the brightness of the young man but of the superiority of the school in which he had been trained. This was all very well. But now it is being whispered about that his appointment was a piece of trickery and fraud; that instead by the examiners, as was stated at the time, he was tenth or eleventh, and that McKinney jumped him over the heads of nine or ten others who had beaten him before the committee, and were entitled to receive the appointment before him.

We are not willing to believe that Mr. McKinney would be guilty of so dishonorable a piece of trickery as this, and shall look with interest for authoritative denial of the story; and that denial it will give us much pleasure to publish.

Something Every Voter Should Read.

BOSTON, Sept. 21. On Monday next, Sept. 24th, the Boston Globe will begin the publication of a striking series of articles devoted to a discussion of the tariff. They will appear daily throughout the campaign as the editorial leader of the day, and in short paragraphic form will explain every phase of the great issue, in the plain, common-sense style that every man who reads can readily understand: The history of the tariff; how and why it was made; what the two parties have had to say and do about it in the past; the influence of the tariff on wages; the exact provisions and probable effect of the Mills bill; the precise meaning of such terms as "free trade;" "tariff for revenue only;" "a revenue tariff with incidental protection;" "high tariff;" "low tariff;" "balance of trade," and the like commonly used but imperfectly understood phases; the exact truth about English and other foreign revenue and tariff laws, and their effect on the industries of the United States. All this and every other feature of the tariff controversy that has a live, practical interest for the working people of this country will be treated in a plain, direct, common-sense way in these Globe articles.

The "Suspicion" Does Exist.

The Boston Post, Cleveland organ, innocently remarks; "The sudden removal by order of the postmaster-general of R. C. Jackson, superintendent of the second division of the railway mail service, who has been connected with the postoffice department for twenty-five years, ought to be explained. His resignation is asked 'for the good of the service,' and it is quite possible that the removal is to be accounted expedient; but, if this is the case, while the responsibility for it must rest in the direction of the appointing officer, some clear and convincing evidence of it ought to be given. When an official of long experience, and against whom no definite complaint appears to have been made, is removed a few weeks before a national election, suspicion is aroused that politics may have had as much to do with the change as the good of the service. It is to be hoped that there are no grounds for such a suspicion."

Our big brother in Boston is wonderfully "fresh" if it thinks to deceive anyone, by such talk as that, into believing that it does not know Grover Cleveland as the most shameless spoilsman who ever sat in the presidential chair. He went into office as the pretended high priest of civil service reform of the George William Curtis brand; but he long ago commenced to run the administration and its distribution of patronage with an eye single to securing his own renomination, and since he was renominated, his sole end and aim has evidently been to secure his re-election as president. "Public office is a public trust," with him, to secure the re-election of President Cleveland.

Money Made Keeping Hens.

Hundreds of farmers who never kept an account, would kill every "pesky hen" on the farm, if it was not for the "women folks." The women intuitively know that the hens do not "eat their heads off every six months," but properly kept pay better than any other farm animals.

This is true. A record, simple to keep, so it would be used and show the facts in detail, would prove that every hen paid a profit. They could be made to pay, from one to three dollars each. Mr. James L. Burgess, Nashua, N. H., reported to the Nashua Telegraph, that his wife made a clean net profit last year, of $36.59 for eggs alone, from only sixteen hens. He thinks her success was largely due to using Sheridan's Condition Powder, a much advertised preparation to make hens lay.

Do your hens pay like that? Do you want to learn how to make them pay better? Are you in delicate health, and want to commence poultry raising, for the sake of open air employment? If so, get some reliable advice how to do it. An enlarged and much improved Poultry Raising Guide has just been printed. It contains practical information and many new features, which every person who keeps hens should have; such as records and accounts for each month of the year. It also contains a long series of very valuable articles, by A. F. Hunter, "how to make money with a few hens." Of him the Lowell, Mass., Journal says: "the read, we under the name A. F. Hunter. He evidently knows what he is talking about." These two features alone are worth ten times the cost of the book, which the publishers, I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom house street, Boston, Mass., send postpaid, for only 25 cents in stamps. Send to Johnson & Co. for testimonial circular free.

The Greek fleet has been ordered to Turkish waters, in consequence of the seizure of a Greek vessel by the Turks.

Francis Newby, a coachman at the Royal Hotel, Attleborough, Eng., dreamed that he would meet his death near a certain lodge gate. It impressed him so that he took every pains to avoid the place, and even when once he had to drive by there, got a lady in the carriage to hold the reins until the spot was passed. The other day he had to go past the spot with a remarkably kind and gentle horse. Just in front of the gate something in the road upset the cart he was driving, and he was thrown out and killed.

The women of Washington territory have one element of solid comfort in their disfranchisement. They are suffering "for righteousness' sake." Their votes have been taken away from them not because they misconducted themselves at the polls, not because they became "unsexed" or stirred up domestic discord, not because the bad women voted and the good women stayed away; but expressly because the good women did vote, and voted for good things. Thus all the disreputable elements of the territory became united in a solid phalanx against them. Woman suffrage was pronounced unconstitutional the first time on the appeal of a convicted gambler, and the second time on that of a saloon-keeper's wife.—Woman's Journal.

Be Sure

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other.

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." MRS. ELLA A. GOFF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

Corresponding Secretary, Miss Mary E. Rees.

INJUNCTIONS CONTINUED.

The Dover liquor dealers who are under temporary injunctions from the supreme court have had their injunctions from being made permanent. They were represented in court at Dover on the 20th inst. by Messrs. Frink of Portsmouth and Dodge of Dover, who attempted to raise questions and offer objections of a serious nature. Judge Carpenter informed them that all such questions and objections could be considered by the full bench at the law term, and that meanwhile the injunctions would continue in force. This means that the liquor dealers were defeated, and will still remain under the injunctions of the supreme court until further notice.

The bonds of four of the dealers who were enjoined and "signed the waiver," but who afterward sold liquor again, and then cleared out to avoid the penalty, have been defaulted at this term of the court; their names are as follows: Neil Sheehan, bonds $400; Jeremiah Goggin, $400; Charles Nason, $600; Jacob N. Young, $500. Robert Broadbent, another signer of the "waiver," had his place raided on the evening of the 19th inst., and liquors and beer found; but he was not found the next morning, when the police went after him.

SOMETHING THEY HAVE NOT NOTICED.

When Hon. Thomas B. Reed, congressman and congressman-elect from the first district of Maine, was in New York on his way to Washington after the late election in Maine, a Tribune reporter asked him for his impressions regarding the Maine election, to which he replied: "I should think you would want my impressions as to the Maine election. As I have watched the progress of the democratic editor from consternation to doubt, from doubt to cheerfulness and from cheeerfulness to satisfaction and rapture, it has seemed to me as if some information from a native might really be desirable. If the Maine election has put on nothing but a neutral tint, the Maine democrats do not know it. They know that in 1884 they made no fight, had no money and no organization, and this year their organization has been of the best, and if they wanted any more money than they had it must have been because they desired to use money in a way horribly inconsistent with their high though recent reputation for economy and reform. No democrat, even the most timid, expected we should have 13,000, and no republican, even the most sanguine, expected more than 15,000. All above that last figure is a clear expression on the particular issue of this campaign. While the democratic editor can figure himself into a state of happiness over the returns from the state, none of them seem to have noticed that the plurality in the first district has risen from 1188 to 2456. You would have to go back twenty-two years to find any such figures. Twenty-two years ago the democrats, having some faint impression that they had gone wrong during the war, lost interest in politics and let everything go by default. This year they fought as well as they knew how, but, nevertheless, were in like manner gathered to their fathers."

Pears' is the purest and best Soap made.

Joseph W. Roberts of Rollinsford, nominated as the democratic candidate for councillor from this district by the convention held at the court house in this city on the 18th inst., declines to run.

A sample of Orange Sweet apples from the garden of John Nutter, Esq., left in the editorial chair one day this week when the editor was out of it, were found to be particularly good.

The wild geese have commenced to fly southward.

Mr. John S. Whidden has been appointed a deputy sheriff by Sheriff Coffin, and has filed his bonds, which have been duly accepted.

The Portsmouth Shoe Co. are to put in their manufactory a new boiler of 125 horse-power, made by the Swamscot Machine Co. of South Newmarket. The new boiler will furnish the power for the shop, and one of the old boilers will be used for heating and the other kept in reserve. The foundation for the new boiler is being put in, and the boiler room will be extended toward the railroad track fifteen or eighteen feet.

Mr. Elvin Newton has come in from Lunging island, Isles of Shoals, with his fishing crew, having given up the business there for this year. He reports the season as having been but moderately successful. Some of the fishermen, not a few of them, in fact, say that there have been as many mackerel as usual off the coast this year, but that they have been shy, and failed to "school," which they attribute to the seining operations of late years; and they—the fishermen, not the mackerel—think likely a return will have to be made to the hand-line fishery of former days, before the destructive purse-seine was introduced.

The fog-horn could be heard in this city with much distinctness through Friday night.

The proposed ocean excursion trip of the steamer Oceanic on Friday evening, the 21st inst., postponed from the previous Wednesday evening on account of the weather, did not come off, Friday evening's sample of weather being immeasureably worse than that of the evening first set for the trip. The harvest moon does not amount to much apparently.

The Times holds that it would be a good plan to have a joint discussion between the democratic candidates for congress in the first district. Perhaps Mr. McKinney has the most wind, but Nute has the most sense. How would it do to try the experiment between the candidates in the second district?

There are but fifteen prisoners in the Portsmouth jail, and most of them are waiting the October term of the supreme court.

Mr. John Canney of South Newmarket, who has for a year or two past been employed in the boiler shop at this navy yard, died at his boarding house in this city on the night of the 19th inst. Interment in South Newmarket.

The selection of the day for the firemen's parade was very fortunate; had it not been held that day the clams would have spoiled, if the parade hadn't, before there would have been another chance.

In expectation of some torchlight processions this fall a club was formed, recently, called the Schooner Club of the West End. But in consequence of some opprobrium being cast upon the euphonious name, it was thought best that it should be suppressed, and orders have gone out accordingly. It was a democratic club.

The long-talked-of meat refrigerator for Swift & Co., of Chicago, will be erected on the corner of Vaughan and Green streets in this city immediately. The contracts have been awarded, the mason work to Mr. Enoch J. Conner and the carpenter work to Mr. Joseph W. Marden.

Stackpole's block in Dover, described as a five-story fire-trap, was damaged to the amount of $8000 by fire and water on the 19th inst.

Willie Kelly, a boy six years old, fell into the river at Dover during the fire on the evening of the 19th inst., but was rescued by George Richards, a bridge builder, who jumped in and brought him ashore.

William Warren, the famous and favorite actor of the Boston Museum for so many years, died Sept. 21st.

Want of Sleep

Is sending thousands annually to the insane asylum; and the doctors say this trouble is alarmingly on the increase. The usual remedies, while they may give temporary relief, are likely to do more harm than good. What is needed is an Alterative and Blood-purifier. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is incomparably the best. It corrects those disturbances in the circulation which cause sleeplessness, gives increased vitality, and restores the nervous system to a healthful condition.

Rev. T. G. A. Coté, agent of the Mass. Home Missionary Society, writes that his stomach was out of order, his sleep very often disturbed, and some impurity of the blood manifest; but that a perfect cure was obtained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Frederick W. Pratt, 424 Washington street, Boston, writes: "My daughter was prostrated with nervous debility. Ayer's Sarsaparilla restored her to health."

A Cup of Sanford's Ginger.

SANFORD'S GINGER, compounded of Imported Ginger, Choice Aromatics, and the best of French Brandy, is a most grateful stimulant to the stomach, speedily promoting digestion and assimilation of food, and hence fortifies the system against prostrating influences and summer fills.

It instantly relieves cramps and pains, speedily checks all forms of summer bile, prevents indigestion, destroys disease germs in water drunk, restores the circulation and digestion when suspended by a chill,—a frequent cause of stomach troubles,—breaks up colds and fevers, and wards off malarial, contagious and epidemic influences.

WHAT IS SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the man- other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

Eat With Comfort and Be Happy.

It is by no means uncertain, but on the contrary, a well ascertained fact, that upon the well being of man's stomach depends that modicum of happiness which is vouchsafed to him in this world. Dyspepsia, the foe of all others to the stomach's tranquility, and most to be dreaded, is a complaint to the preliminary relief and eventual cure of which Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is specially adapted. It enables those who use it with a reasonable degree of persistence to eat with relish, because it imparts a healthful appetite; to digest with ease, because it strengthens the stomach; and to assimilate the food which is eaten and digested, thus benefiting health, promoting flesh and sustaining the exercise of the physical and mental faculties. It, moreover, facilities the secretion of healthy bile, actuates without discomfort the habit of body, and tends, when taken upon retiring, to produce healthy slumber. Malaria is conquered by it.

Congress have evidently, and no without success, directed their attention to the encouragement of manufactures. The object is of too much consequence not to insure a continuance of their efforts in every way which shall appear eligible.—George Washington.

It Won't Bake Brea.—In other words, Hood's Sarsaparilla will not do impossibilities. Its proprietors tell plainly what it has done, submit proofs from sources of unquestioned reliability, and ask you frankly if you are suffering from any disease or affection caused or promoted by impure blood or low state of the system, to try Hood's Sarsaparilla The experience of others is sufficient assurance that you will not be disappointed in the result.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

If you would have a desirable head of hair, use Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer, the most wonderful discovery of modern times for the hair and scalp.

The issue of Protection is incalculably stronger and greater than any man, as it concerns the prosperity of the present and of the generations yet to come.—James G. Blaine.

When the system is debilitated by disease it should be strengthened and renewed with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine invariably proves itself worthy of all that can be said in its favor. Sold by druggists and dealer in medicines. Price $1. Six bottles, $5.

The only time England can use a Celt is when he emigrates to America, and votes for free trade. — London Times.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

HAWKS AND HYDROPHOBIA.

The Theory Advanced by a Practical Observer—Is He Correct?

I captured and raised a nest of young hawks. One female survived and became tame, following me devotedly around my garden. She learned to eat "cut worms" and was of very great service in consequence. She also kept birds from my strawberries, and by catching mice and young cats protected my chickens. She would not permit a dog to come on my grounds. The way in which she treated them and the effect her treatment produced may throw some light on the blindness and madness of foxes and wolves, and possibly be a clew to a cause of madness in dogs.

Her method with dogs was peculiar and must have been hereditary, as she had had no training. When she observed a dog near her she would thrust out her head, draw up one foot out of sight and drop her wings. If the dog advanced to attack her she would spring into the air by a quick movement of her wings, and catch the dog by the end of the nose, using the foot that had been hidden under her breast feathers. On this she supported her weight, steadying her body with her wings and threatening either eye that should open. I witnessed her encounters with two small lapdogs, a large fighting black and tan, bull terrier and a very large buff English mastiff. Each dog gave up on his third experience with her talons. The small dogs disappeared from town. No one knew where they went to. The terrier ran to his master's blacksmith shop, where he retired behind the forge.

Soon his master, Mr. James P. Hill, of Waterville, Me., came and asked me to go and see the dog. He had witnessed the fight with me only a few minutes before. On reaching the shop I found his dog cowering behind the forge in a pool of water, and as wet as though a bucket of water had been thrown upon him. I said to his master, "I would not throw water on him, he is frightened enough now." He replied: "I have not thrown any on him; that is sweat, the first I ever saw from a dog, and that is what I wanted you to come for." I saw the dog a few days after, with a thick viscid saliva hanging to his mouth, leaning against some infant school children, looking into their faces, receiving their caresses and acting very restlessly. Knowing his savage nature—the man's own children could not caress him up to the fight with the hawk—I went and called him into my garden and quietly ended his troubles with my pistol.

The mastiff was a noble dog of rare qualities, very intelligent, docile and obedient, would run errands better than a boy, and never played truant. He was owned by a gentleman in Winslow, Me., who said $100 would be no temptation for him to part with the dog.

I was called upon by this gentleman for professional services. His dog came with him. Knowing the hawk's love for a fight, I asked the man to bring the dog in. He wanted to know why. I told him. "I want to see the bird that can whip my dog," said he, and, seeing, nothing would do but "see the feathers fly." He did not see a feather disturbed, but his noble dog, after the third bout, ran for home, and the man could not stop him. The next week he came again. He had shot the dog "on the verge of madness." "A changed dog," "all afraid of him," "no longer mind."

"When I got home," said he, "I found the dog had come straight home and crawled in behind a pile of wood, which I had to take down to get him out. The dog, and the ground about him, were as wet as though a bucket of water had been thrown there; his eyes were bloodshot, and he growled and showed his teeth, a thing he was never known to do before. I had to kill him, for we were all afraid of him." I had told him what the result would be, still I could not help feeling sorry for him, and saying so. "Well, it was no fault of yours. If I had not seen the fight I could not have thought it possible. I would not have taken $100 that day for the dog. It was a pretty fight and worth the cost."—G. F. Waters, M. D., in The Swiss Cross.

Summer Camp for Invalids.

But perhaps the most curious, and certainly the most pathetic, of our summer colonies out of doors is that which is recruited from the hospitals. Whenever a hospital has a garden attached to it you will find tents pitched on the grass. In some cases they will be large army tents, and through their open flaps you may see rigid figures stretched on mattresses on the floor, while neat and noiseless nurses pass to and fro among them. In other instances they will be roofs of canvas, under whose shelter feeble, white faced men and women swing in cots or hammocks. The New York hospital has one of its spacious roofs covered with canvas awnings, beneath which patients who are beginning to mend are quartered, in order to have nature assist in the cure. It is a very recent institution, this summer encampment of the sick, but it is, I am told, already established as a valuable part of the process of cure. The trouble is that few of the hospitals have spare ground enough to carry out the plan properly. Some, too, which have the space, are so hedged in by other buildings that the sanitary value of their open air is seriously impaired.—Alfred Trumble in Pittsburg Bulletin.

The "Canals" of Mars.

At a recent meeting of the Paris Academy of Sciences there was presented a series of drawings of the planet Mars made by M. Perrotin, director of the observatory at Nice. In the discussion which followed, M. Fizeau offered an explanation of the singular canals observed on the surface of Mars, which resemble slightly canals used for irrigation. The explanation which he gives is, that on the surface of Mars there must be large glaciers similar to those which exist on the earth, but of an extent far greater, and that the movements and crevasses are much more pronounced. This hypothesis, as M. Fizeau claims, accords perfectly with our present knowledge of the planet. We know, first, that the seasons are twice as long as on the earth; second, that the force of gravity is feeble; third, that the temperature is probably much lower than that of the earth; and, fourth, that the atmosphere is less developed than that of the earth, less extended, and consequently less able to absorb and preserve the solar heat.—Science.

"NERVOUS" MODERN CIVILIZATION.

It is a very significant aspect of modern civilization which is expressed in the word "nervous." Its original meaning is "possessing nerve; sinewy, strong, vigorous." One of its derivative meanings, and the one which we by far most frequently meet, is "having the nerves weak or diseased; subject to, or suffering from undue excitement of the nerves; easily excited; weakly." The varied and complex phraseology by which the peculiar phases of nervous diseases are expressed has become by this time familiar in our ears as household words.

There is no doubt that civilization, as exhibited in its modern form, tends to undue nervous excitement, and that nervous diseases are relatively more common than they were a century ago. But what we have now to say does not concern those who are specially subject to nervous diseases, but to the general mass of Occidentals, who, while not in any specific condition of ill health, are yet continually reminded, in a great variety of ways, that their nervous systems are a most conspicuous part of their organization. We allude, in short, to people who are nervous, and we understand this term to include all our readers, and, in general, all the people who live in the lands from which we have come. To the Anglo-Saxon race at least it seems a matter of course that those who live in an age of steam and of electricity must necessarily be in a different condition as to their nerves from those who lived in the old, slow days of sailing packets and of mail coaches.

Ours is an age of extreme activity. It is an age of rush. There is no leisure, so much as to eat, and the nerves are kept in a state of constant tension, with results which are sufficiently well known. Business men in our time have an eager, restless air—at least those who do their business in occidental lands—as if they were in momentary expectation of a telegram—as they often are—the contents of which may affect their destiny in some fateful way. We betray this unconscious state of mind in a multitude of acts. We cannot sit still, but we must fidget. We finger our pencils while we are talking, as if we ought, at this particular instant, to be rapidly inditing something ere it be forever too late. We rub our hands together, as if preparing for some serious task which is about to absorb all our energies. We twirl our thumbs, we turn our heads with the swift motion of the wild animal which seems to fear that something dangerous may have been left unseen. We have a sense that there is something which we ought to be doing now, and into which we shall proceed at once to plunge as soon as we shall have dispatched six other affairs of even more pressing importance.

The effect of overworking our nerves shows itself, not mainly in such affections as "fiddler's cramp," "telegrapher's cramp," "writer's cramp," and the like, but in a general tension. We do not sleep as we once did, either as regards length of time or soundness of rest. We are awakened by slight causes, and often by those which are exasperatingly trivial, such as the twitter of a bird in a tree, a chance ray of light straggling into our darkened rooms, the motion of a shutter in the breeze, the sound of a voice, and, when sleep is once interrupted, it is banished. We have taken our daily life to rest with us, and the result is that we have no real rest. In an age when it has become a kind of aphorism that a bank never succeeds until it has a president who takes it to bed with him, it is easy to understand that, while the shareholders reap the advantage, it is bad for the president.—North China News.

The Drying of Mosses.

The power of the mosses to endure repeated desiccation has recently been experimentally treated by G. Schroder, who obtained the interesting result that many of these plants cannot only resist months of dryness without any harm, but also that they do not perish even under the strongest desiccation carried on in a drier with the aid of sulphuric acid. Plants of Barbula muralis, which were exposed for eighteen months in the drier, after a few wettings resumed growth in all their parts. Other species of barbula behaved similarly.

A curious experiment was performed with Grimmia pulvinata, in which a stock which had been cultivated for some time in a moist atmosphere under a bell glass was suddenly exposed to a warm and perfectly dry current of air. It became so dry in a short time that it could be pulverized. Then it lay in a drier for ninety-five weeks. But the quickening moisture was still competent to awaken it to renewed life. The most rapid drying which could be performed in the laboratory could not destroy the plant. It even showed greater power of resistance than would correspond with its real necessities, for so speedy and complete a drying out as was effected in the experiments never counts in nature.—Popular Science Monthly.

Letters 4,000 Years Old.

A remarkable discovery has been made in Egypt of tablets or letters, which compose a literary correspondence of 3,500 to 4,000 years ago, carried on between Egyptians and Asiatics. The tablets now in Vienna represent letters and dispatches sent to Egypt by the governors and kings of Palestine, Syria, Babylonia and other countries of Western Asia. The find is remarkable every way, and opens the people of that age to us with freshness and familiarity. It is clear that the literary spirit is very ancient, and Professor Sayce surmises we shall yet find libraries of clay books. One town in Judah was called "Book Town," or "Library Town." The momentum of this discovery will be marked. Rich men should hesitate no longer to aid in unearthing the vast treasures of the Orient.—Globe-Democrat.

Hiring Wedding Outfits.

Among the oddest developments of New York's haberdashery is that shop where underlinen may be hired for trousseaux purposes, and where the finest of garments may be had for the honeymoon only, if the intending wearer will lay down cold cash sufficient to buy outright a moderate outfit. — New York Commercial Advertiser.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., June 27, 1888—Swift's Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: In the early part of the present year, a bad case of blood poison appeared upon me. I began taking S. S. S. under advice of another, and to-day I feel greatly improved. I am still taking the medicine and shall continue to do so until I am perfectly well. I believe it will effect a perfect cure. Yours truly,

DOC. P. HOWARD, 111 West Sixth St.

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 7, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: I was a great sufferer from muscular rheumatism for two years. I could get no permanent relief from any medicine prescribed by my physician. I took over a dozen bottles of your S. S. S., and now I am as well as I ever was in my life. I am sure your medicine cured me, and I would recommend it to any one suffering from any blood disease. Yours truly,

O. E. HUGGER, Conductor C. & C. R. R.

WACO, TEXAS, May 9, 1888—Gentlemen: The wife of one of my customers was terribly afflicted with a loathsome skin disease, that covered her whole body. She was confined to her bed for several years by this affliction, and could not help herself at all. She could not sleep from a violent itching and stinging of the skin. The disease baffled the skill of the physicians who treated it. Her husband began finally giving his wife Swift's Specific, and she commenced to improve almost immediately, and in a few weeks she was apparently well. She is now a hearty, fine-looking lady, with no trace of the affliction left. Yours very truly, J. E. EARLY, Wholesale Druggist, Austin Avenue.

The Yellow Fever.

A despatch of the 22d from Jacksonville says; "Another hot day, but with promise of rain. There have been fifty-three new cases reported up to ten o'clock this morning. Jacksonville has become a great hospital. No business is being done, save to doctor and nurse the sick and relieve the distressed. All pretence of isolating houses has ceased. No more yellow flags are put up. The whole city is practically sick with the fever, or has had it."

Mayor Reese of Montgomery, Ala., telegraphed on the 22d that recent developments show the fever to be epidemic at Decatur, Ala., another proof, he says, of the inefficiency of the quarantine service in the southern cities. He asks that the government quarantine service be put in force in Decatur without delay to protect Montgomery.

LOUISVILLE, KY., Sept. 22d.—At a meeting of physicians and others, called by Mayor Jacob, it has been decided to open the gates of Louisville to the yellow fever refugees. A train brought in 135 from Decatur this morning. There is no excitement here. At the meeting of doctors it was the sentiment that Louisville was in no danger, and that the city should not be quarantined, but that it should rather repeat its humane act of 1878 in welcoming the refugees with open doors.

MEMPHIS, TENN., Sept. 22d.—The strict non-intercourse quarantine regulations adopted by the city authorities yesterday against all passenger trains on all the railroads on the east side of the Mississippi river are being rigidly enforced. Governor Taylor at Nashville was telegraphed to this morning asking him to call out the militia of the city, and place them under orders from the city authorities to aid in the enforcement of quarantine orders. A special train from New Orleans containing 500 fleeing refugees from that city, Vicksburg, and other points along the line of the Louisville, New Orleans & Memphis railroad will arrive at Lake View, Miss., twenty miles south of Memphis, this afternoon. A special detail of police will meet the train, and coaches have been provided by the several lines over which they may have tickets, and the transfer will be made there, and each coach will be locked and the passengers guarded through Memphis and sent on to their destination. No one will be allowed to stop here. Supt. R. B. Pegram of the Memphis & Charleston railroad is in receipt of a telegram from Decatur, Ala., which says there are now eight cases of yellow fever there.

In answer to an appeal from the Masons of Jacksonville for aid, the grand master of Masons of Maine, and the grand commander of Knights Templar of the state, have called upon all lodges and commanderies under their jurisdiction for contributions.

RAILROAD ITEMS.

Thomas T. Oakes was on the 20th inst. elected president of the Northern Pacific railroad, in place of Mr. Robert Harris, resigned.

Robert Harris has been chosen chairman of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific railroad. It is understood that the salary of $20,000 formerly paid to Mr. Harris for his services as president, is to be continued.

A new and very handsomely furnished railway mail car was run out of the Boston & Maine shop at Salem, Mass., last Thursday, and is to be put on the Boston & Bangor run. It is numbered 76, and is the finest and best equipped postal car in New England. It is finished in ash, with cherry stands and tables, and has a Baker steam heater. It makes its first trip on Tuesday night of this week.

In the supreme court at Alfred on the 22d inst. the jury gave a verdict of $2000 in favor of James Burnie against the Boston & Maine railroad, on account of injuries received by him at the Main street crossing in Biddeford on Nov. 26th, 1886, by being struck by a train which at the same time killed W. K. Benjamin and Daniel G. S. Hooper.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Mary Willey, Capt. Williams, before reported as having been detained last week at Bangor after getting all ready to sail, to stop a leak caused by rats, arrived at her wharf in this city Sunday morning with a load of lumber to John H. Broughton.

The yacht Whistler was towed down the river from Exeter on Thursday last by the steamer Undine, with half a dozen gentlemen on board, three of whom intended to start on Friday with the yacht for Boston, where she will go into winter quarters. The whether on Friday not being favorable for yachting excursions, the Whistler did not sail that day.

The schooner A. Hooper, from Calais, Me., arrived at this port on Sunday with 131,000 feet of planed hemlock boards to John H. Broughton. The cargo of the Mary Willey, which arrived from Bangor the same day, consisted of 500,000 shingles and 50,000 feet of long lumber.

[illegible] on Wednesday and Thursday of last week with the Baptist church in Plaistow.

Mrs. Charles F. Chase, of Hampton Falls, received on Wednesday of last week a telegram announcing the sudden death of her son, Mr. Charles H. Chase, and that his body was on the way home in charge of Odd Fellows, but giving no particulars of the manner of his death. Mr Chase went west as an engineer last May, to take a place on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, whose former engine men were out on a strike. He had some trouble, and a stone thrown at him on his engine on one occasion struck his fireman in the breast. His wife was with him in the west.

The following is a list of the officers elected at the recent annual meeting of the Newmarket Manufacturing company: Timothy M. Joy, clerk; J. H. Sawyer, treasurer; William D. Pickman, Benj. W. Crowninshield, John D. W. Joy, George Z. Silsbee, William Northey, Samuel A. Haley, William F. Wharton, directors.

The Penny Post of Saturday evening had the following: "The Biddeford democratic committee appointed to borrow the flags and emblems at the Kittery navy yard for decorations for the proposed torchlight parade last evening, which did not come off, were obliged to furnish bonds to the amount of $1000 for their safe return."

A fine granite monument was last week erected to the memory of Hon. Hugh Wentworth Green, in the Proprietors' burying ground. The monument was furnished by the Westerly Granite Co. of Rhode Island, and the design was from a famous sculptor of Rome.

Col. Thomas B. Rand, of the St. Cloud hotel, New York, was in this city on Saturday, on his way to join his family at North Conway.

A correspondent—one of our most prominent and respected citizens, by the way—in a communication makes complaint of the lack of energy displayed by the police. Having no fruit trees in our garden for the hoodlums to plunder, and no front steps on which loafers can conveniently congregate o' nights, we cannot speak from experience in regard to the nuisances in those directions of which he complains; but we can assert that never within the past twenty years has the sidewalk-loafer nuisance been more prevalent and annoying than during the last few months.

We have received from the republican national committee through Senator Wm. E. Chandler, a large pamphlet entitled "Protection Echoes from the Capitol." It is a very valuable publication, and copies should be in the rooms of every republican club in the country. From the same gentleman we have also received "The Republican Campaign Text Book for 1888." The two books contain a vast amount of material of value to every republican editor, and a careful perusal of their pages would tend to induce repentance in the heart of the most hardened free trader.

We are glad to see that Assistant Naval Constructor John E. Hanscom of the navy has been nominated by the president for constructor. Mr. Hanscom is a native of Eliot, is a son of the late Samuel Hanscom, who was a shipbuilder on the Piscataqua, and is a competent constructor, having been assigned to duty heretofore in several important positions.

The September term of the supreme court of York county convened at Alfred last week. Burlington Paul of Kittery and Augustus Paul of Eliot were among the grand jurors, while John B. Trefethen of Kittery, William P. Titcomb of York and Joseph F. Kennard of Eliot were among the traverse jurors.

New money-order offices will be established in connection with the post-offices at Kittery Point and Sanford, York county, the first of next month.

Francis Warren Rice, ex-consul of the United States at Panama, died in Saco on the 22d inst., at the age of seventy-three years. He was born in Buxton, York county, Me.

Patrick McCarthy, the Biddeford florist who left his green house and family so mysteriously more than a year ago, [illegible] his own hand. He says he went away to get rid of domestic complications.

The grand jury of York county reported to the court at Alfred on the 21st inst., and were discharged for the session. They returned thirty indictments, among them one against the town of Sanford and one against Limerick, for defective highways.

Large quantities of crude opium are imported into British Columbia, paying a small duty. It is then manufactured and sent to the Canadian border, and from there smuggled into the United States.

After a three weeks' session, the democrats of the second congressional district of South Carolina renominated Congressman Tillman, a pronounced anti-Cleveland democrat and a protectionist. In accepting the nomination, Tillman re-affirmed his opposition to Cleveland's policy, and asserted that his renomination was an indorsement of that opposition.

LITERALLY THE STAFF OF LIFE.

Another greatly superior quality possessed by the Royal Baking Powder is that by which the preservation of important elements of the flour is effected in raising the bread by the mechanical operation of the gas, without fermentation.

Yeast, and all baking powders that produce the leavening gas by fermentation, as is well known, destroy a portion of the nutritive elements of the flour, and particularly those which are the most healthful and the greatest aids to a perfect assimilation of the food.

The Royal Baking Powder, while perfectly leavening, retains without change or impairment all those elements which were intended by nature, when combined in our bread, to make it literally the "staff of life."

No leavening agent or baking powder, except the Royal Baking Powder, possesses these great qualifications.

WHAT IS SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

PUBLIC MEETING.

All citizens willing to assist in aiding the sufferers by yellow fever at Jacksonville, Florida, are requested to meet at the city rooms Monday evening, Sept. 24th, at 7:30 o'clock.

GEORGE E. HODGDON, Mayor.

Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION.

[The following is a condensed report of the secretary of the Y. M. C. A. convention held in this city last week:]

The Young Men's Christian Associations and Evangelical churches of New Hampshire met in the twenty-first annual convention in the Middle street Baptist church, Portsmouth, Thursday, Sept. 20th, 1888, convening for the initial or welcome service at seven o'clock P. M., with John S. Rand as president of the evening. After a half hour spent in song under the lead of C. J. Jackson, musical director of the state executive committee, aided and ably assisted by Geo. C. Stebbins of Brooklyn, N. Y., the Scriptures were read by Rev. O. S. Baketel; prayer offered by Rev. W. A. McGinley; hymn read by Rev. J. A. Hainer,—when a most cordial welcome was extended the delegates by Rev. W. H. Alden, D. D., to which Allen Taylor, state secretary, responded in behalf of the delegates, and associations and churches of New Hampshire; following which Rev. J. Z. Armstrong, Ph. D., of Nashua, addressed the convention, taking as his theme "The stuff men are made of."

Friday morning, after the customary service of devotion, the convention permanently organized by selecting the following officers:

President, Gen. Howard L. Potter, Concord;

Vice Presidents, Walter B. Abbott, Concord; Hon. H. W. Gilman, Nashua; Dr. S. C. Sawyer, Littleton; T. G. Hill, Dover; Rev. A. B. Peabody, Candia; Rev. H. E. Allen, Auburn;

Secretary, Elbridge W. Fox, Milton Mills;

1st Asst. Secretary, O. S. Worden, Dartmouth college;

2d Asst. Secretary, Harry Hutchinson, Dartmouth college;

3d Asst. Secretary, R. C. Bartlett, Milford;

Treasurer, Allen Taylor, Concord;

Auditor, C. H. Thorndike, Concord.

With the following standing committees:

On Business, W. H. Symonds, Keene, chairman;

On Credentials, A. T. Stratton, Dover, chairman;

On Association, Rev. Robert Ford, Centre Harbor, chairman;

On Ex. Com.'s Report, Rev. E. Owen, Meredith, chairman;

On Resolutions, C. S. Parker, Concord, chairman;

On Devotional Meetings, R. F. True, Nashua, chairman.

During the sessions of Friday and Saturday the following questions were ably, interestingly and profitably discussed: "How can we derive more benefit from the week of prayer?" "State work;" "The responsibility of members of Y. M. C. Associations in reference to church work;" "The opportunities of America's young men;" "Town Associations without general secretaries;" "Work of the international committee;" "How can the church reach the masses through the Y. M. C. A.?" "Advantages of Y. M. C. A.'s in colleges and academies; How can they be made more efficient?" "City Associations with general secretaries; their peculiar work."

The International committee was represented by H. F. Williams, railroad secretary, and P. A. Wieting, office secretary, of New York; Maine Association was represented by E. A. Lawrence, state secretary; New Hampshire Associations having general secretaries were represented by Secretaries Abbott of Concord, True of Nashua, Symonds of Keene and Stratton of Dover, while the familiar voices of Shaw and Russell of Massachusetts and Dillingham of Connecticut, were often heard in the deliberations of the convention. George C. Stebbins of Brooklyn, N. Y., added interest to the various sessions with his sweet voice in song.

The several pulpits of the city were the afternoon and evening in the North church; the latter being the closing service of the series was largely attended, and marked by special interest and fervor.

Great gratitude is due from the delegates to John S. Rand, chairman of the entertainment committee, for the very complete and satisfactory arrangements made for their entertainment during the entire convention.

It is hoped that one of the results of this convention will be the organization of a local Association.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Mr. John Greenough, who owned and had for some years lived on a farm on the bay side in Newington, drove to this city Saturday afternoon, arriving shortly before six o'clock, hitched his team on Fleet street, and started to cross the street, but dropped dead in the middle of the driveway. Mr. Greenough was for some years station agent of the Eastern railroad at Lynn, Mass., but about twelve years ago bought the farm in Newington on which he resided at the time of his death. He is very highly spoken of by his neighbors and others who knew him well, as a first-class man and good citizen in every respect. He leaves a son and daughter. His body was taken to Newington on Saturday night by Mr. Joseph Hoyt, whose farm adjoins that of Mr. Greenough.

DEMOCRATIC SENATORIAL CONVENTION.

The democratic senatorial convention of the 24th district, comprising wards one, two and four of this city, was held in the common council room on Saturday evening at eight o'clock.

The full number of delegates, fourteen, were present.

John Conlon was chosen chairman, and Charles E. Rand secretary.

James Sanborn, delegate from ward four, presented a letter from David Urch in which that gentleman withdrew his name as a candidate for the nomination. A ballot was taken, with the following result:

Whole number of votes	14
Necessary for a choice	8
David Urch had	2
William Conn	12

And Mr. Conn was declared the nominee of the convention. The nomination was made unanimous, and the convention adjourned without day.

The nominee invited the members of the convention to the Rockingham house, where a banquet was served.

AID FOR JACKSONVILLE.

The action of the mayor in calling a meeting of citizens to take measures to raise funds for the relief of Jacksonville, is to be commended. The senate of the United States has passed a bill giving $100,000 to this end. We trust no fear of reducing the surplus will cause the house of representatives to hesitate in their approval of the measure, or induce the president to veto it. We presume the may or will have outlined a plan for obtaining relief, and present it to the meeting this evening. There is not time to await a church contribution. The only feasible way would seem to be to invite subscriptions to be made at the city treasurer's office, and have a box where small sums could be dropped in. There are many who would like to contribute their mite but do not care to put their names to a subscription paper, and prefer to give what their means or inclination may suggest without knowledge of the left hand.

POLICE EFFICIENCY DEMANDED.

Mr. Editor: I wish by this communication to call the attention of our city authorities to the fact that on account of our increase of population, as well as of our daily increase of groggeries and therefore of loafers, which facts they entirely ignore, that our police force should in some way be made a more efficient force. If you will walk up Congress street between the hours of six and seven P. M., you will find that not the curbstone alone but the entire sidewalk, especially between Congress block and a point beyond Vaughan street, is blockaded by scores, nay, hundreds of boys and young men, and some older ones, using the worst language so that all may hear, and at times almost entirely stopping your progress. If the mayor or city marshal would stop there during that hour for a few evenings, it might put a stop to this nuisance,—for not only citizens, but our merchants doing business near this locality, will say that it is a nuisance of nuisances. Let an officer be detailed for that locality during that time, and let him attend to his duty, say all reputable people who unfortunately for themselves have to pass along there in the evening.

I am informed also that no officer is expected, or has a beat, beyond, Bridge street, after the night duty commences at seven o'clock, or in fact at any time, day or night, except that the officer on the Middle street or some other near beat, is ordered to pass up or down Islington street once or twice during his tour of duty. Perhaps the cry of "murder" might bring an officer; but it does not generally, for only a few weeks since our efficient sheriff had to come forth and straighten out some roughs.

Our gardens are at the mercy of the hoodlums. Not a week since I saw one sitting in the brightness of an electric light on a citizen's fence, while a confederate picked the fruit, and this too at seven P. M. What have we done that we should not be protected? I have yet to learn that our citizens ever complained of the taxes imposed for our efficient police, —except our democratic friends, for politicians did. I have yet to learn that they have. Now let us have more officers, if the duty is too arduous for the present force. The territory is about the same as under republican rule the same (or a less) number of officers guarded well. Let us have an officer on Islington street who will in a slight degree protect us,—one who will see to it that the occupants of houses will not be compelled to wet down their steps o'nights to keep the loafers off them, and their vile language at a distance. I hope that these lines, written in no unfriendly spirit, will bring good results. The remissness complained of has been going on long enough. If the authorities do not choose to stop it, why, there will be fun sometime.

THE JAPANESE VILLAGE.

To-night, and all of this week the grand attraction at Franklin theatre will be the Japanese Village. It presents a thousand curiosities relating to that Asiatic empire, which are artistic, beautiful, and intensely interesting. The hall is made instructive as well as ornamental. It is seldom that so wonderful an exhibition is presented. It will be open to the public every day and evening this week, under the direction of Mr. Rufus Somerby, whom most of our citizens will remember as a Portsmouth boy. See advertisement. Only ten cents admission.

MUSIC HALL.

"Hearts of Oak" arouses and maintains the interest of an audience because its characters are human, and appear as men and women, not as actors, upon the stage. There are many improbabilities in the plot, it is true; but these are forgotten because of the natural manner in which the details are worked out, the frequent touches of nature which excite the sympathies of the spectators, and make them feel that they are witnessing a real life drama, instead of an acted play. At Music hall next Wednesday evening.

Pears' is the purest and best Soap made.

The weather the past week was of the most inferior quality, light rains alternating with heavy ones nearly all the time excepting on Wednesday, when it held up long enough for the firemen to parade. It was the week of the harvest moon, according to the almanacs, and possibly that moon was around; her presence could not be authoritatively denied, at all events, as the heavens were not to be seen. Of what use a harvest moon could be, with nothing but water to harvest, is not apparent.

There was only one load of hay on the Parade last Saturday forenoon.

The republican senatorial convention for the Newmarket (22d) district, which comprises Durham, Epping, Greenland, Newcastle, Newington, Newmarket, North Hampton, Rye, South Newmarket, Stratham, and ward three in this city, was held at the town hall in Newmarket on Tuesday afternoon of last week. Timothy Murray of Newmarket was chosen chairman, and Mr. Hanson of South Newmarket secretary. Daniel Lynch of South Newmarket was unanimously nominated by acclamation for senator.

"Did n't know 't was Loaded"

May do for a stupid boy's excuse; but what can be said for the parent who sees his child languishing daily and fails to recognize the want of a tonic and blood-purifier? Formerly, a course of bitters, or sulphur and molasses, was the rule in well-regulated families; but now all intelligent households keep Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which is at once pleasant to the taste, and the most searching and effective blood medicine ever discovered.

Nathan S. Cleveland, 27 E. Canton st., Boston, writes: "My daughter, now 21 years old, was in perfect health until a year ago when she began to complain of fatigue, headache, debility, dizziness, indigestion, and loss of appetite. I concluded that all her complaints originated in impure blood, and induced her to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine soon restored her blood-making organs to healthy action, and in due time reestablished her former health. I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla a most valuable remedy for the lassitude and debility incident to spring time."

J. Castright, Brooklyn Power Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "As a Spring Medicine, I find a splendid substitute for the old-time compounds in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, with a few doses of Ayer's Pills. After their use, I feel fresher and stronger to go through the summer."

A Cup of Sanford's Ginger.

SANFORD'S GINGER, compounded of Imported Ginger, Choice Aromatics, and the best of French Brandy, is a most grateful stimulant to the stomach, speedily promoting digestion and assimilation of food, and hence fortifies the system against prostrating influences and summer ills.

It instantly relieves cramps and pains, speedily checks all forms of summer ills, prevents indigestion, destroys disease germs in water drunk, restores the circulation and digestion when suspended by a chill,—a frequent cause of stomach troubles,—breaks up colds and fevers, and wards off malarial, contagious and epidemic influences.

Never travel without SANFORD'S GINGER.

Avoid cheap and dangerous imitations.

Be Sure

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me theirs would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other.

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." MRS. ELLA A. GOFF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

FREEZING TO DEATH.

A Night's Experience in the Lumber Regions of Maine.

"In February, 1840," said Capt. R. L. Zeby, of Uniontown, "I had an interest in some lumber way up in the Piscataquis region, and I had to go up there and see how things were getting along. It was a long journey, but the sleighing was like glass, and I had one of the best horses that ever stood inside the thills. On my second day out the thermometer stood at 20 degs. below, and was inclined to go lower. I knew I would reach one of those queer little villages common to the Maine backwoods early in the evening. There I intended to stay all night, and drive on next morning to the house of the agent of the lumber property, twelve miles further along. I reached the village and found that there was no tavern there.

"This, of course, upset my plans. So I ate supper in the village and started on, intending to proceed to the agent's the same night. It was a starlight night, but the air was filled with that peculiar frozen mist frequently noticeable on very cold nights. As we neared the river this haze became denser, until finally it was with difficulty I could see anything ahead of me. It was like passing through a storm of scaly ice. Suddenly, as I was thinking that we must be almost on the margin of the river, there came a crackling sound, a loud splash of water, and the next second my horse was floundering about in water, which also covered the sleigh, the robes and myself up to my waist.

"The water splashed about soon drenched the rest of me, and in less time than I can tell it I was coated with a rapidly thickening armor of ice. I guess my noble beast must have floundered at least a minute in that hole before he knew exactly what had happened. When the situation did come to him he became quiet, threw his fore feet up, and lodged them both in the ice with a concerted blow like a trip hammer. The ice was thick, but beneath that blow an immense cake was broken off and was carried down in under the edge of the ice below. The horse swam onward, dragging the sleigh with it through the rapidly freezing slush. Once more he pounded the ice ahead of him with his powerful fore feet, and again the ice yielded.

"During all this time I was shouting for help. I might, at the first break, have turned and leaped back to shore, but had not collected myself in time. It was now too late, and even if it had not been I was so stiffened by the casing of ice that I couldn't have moved to save myself from death. The horse kept on, and, strange as the story seems, broke a channel for fifty feet across that river, and drew the sleigh out safely on the other side. And he didn't tarry when he got there, but started off at the top of his speed toward our destination. He soon struck the road and away we went. I knew that although one danger was escaped, a greater was before us, and I urged the horse on with my voice. My robes and clothing had frozen so solid that if I had been encased in iron I could not have been more motionless. My horse was a jet black, but his icy coating made him stand out, even in that frozen mist, like a specter horse. I could not move even my hands. We were not yet half way to the agent's house when I found myself growing drowsy. I could no longer use my voice. The clatter of the horses' hoofs and the creaking of the runners on the ice sounded to me like thunder claps and weird, hideous cries. I knew that I was freezing, but I labored hard to rouse my will and fight with it against my fate. The stars looked like great coals of fire, although before they could be seen but dimly through the peculiar haze. The trees, with their branches covered with snow, took on the shapes of gigantic ghosts. Still I preserved all my powers of reasoning. Finally I felt myself growing deliciously warm. A languor, such as De Quincy might have described, with attending visions of loveliness, took possession of me. I heard the most delightful music. Still I made one mental effort to shake off this fatal spell, and that was all.

"I don't know how far I was from the agent's house when I froze to death, but the next thing I remembered I was suffering such tortures as a victim of the rack might feel. He never felt worse. Suddenly, at my feet, the pricking of a million needles assaulted my flesh. Torturing me at that spot a moment, until I writhed in agony, it dashed quickly up my leg, stopped an instant, as if gloating in my misery, and then crawled with that awful pain slowly upward, until it seemed that tiny jets of the fiercest flame were being blown into my body, heart and brain. The intensity of this agony was not constant. If it had been I would have died again in a short time. It came in waves, so to speak. Each wave was a little less furious than its predecessor, until at last the storm was passed, and I found myself a weak, speechless, limp and helpless mortal, lying on a robe before the fireplace of my friend, the agent. He had brought me back to life.

"When I was strong enough to hear it, he told me that he was awakened in the night by the peculiar and loud neighing of a horse. He looked out of the window and saw a sight that startled him—a ghostly horse and sleigh and driver in the road before his door. He recovered himself and went down. Then he discovered that the driver was dead. He quickly carried the driver into the house, laid him on the floor before the fireplace, and recognized me. Knowing that even if I was not beyond all aid, nothing could be done for me until the robe and clothing were thawed, he made the fire blaze and hurried to the rescue of the faithful and intelligent horse that had reasoned with itself that it must stop at the first house it came to on that terrible night, and that life and death depended on it. By the time the horse was cared for I was in shape to be resuscitated in case any such thing could be done. I was stripped and rubbed briskly with snow and snow water for more than an hour before I gave any evidence that I might be called back. Then another hour was spent in the same treatment, when a spoonful of brandy was poured down my throat. After that the circulation was started, and my agony began. That suffering lasted for an hour, and—well, I can say this; Freeze to death if you want. You'll like it. But don't let anybody fetch you to again."—New York Sun.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party; they serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

Money Made Keeping Hens.

Hundreds of farmers who never kept an account, would kill every "pesky hen" on the farm, if it was not for the "women folks." The women intuitively know that the hens do not "eat their heads off every six months," but properly kept pay better than any other farm animals.

This is true. A record, simple to keep, so it would be used and show the facts in detail, would prove that every hen paid a profit. They could be made to pay, from one to three dollars each. Mr. James L. Burgess, Nashua, N. H., reported to the Nashua Telegraph, that his wife made a clean net profit last year, of $36.59 for eggs alone, from only sixteen hens. He thinks her success was largely due to using Sheridan's Condition Powder, a much advertised preparation to make hens lay.

Do your hens pay like that? Do you want to learn how to make them pay better? Are you in delicate health, and want to commence poultry raising, for the sake of open air employment? If so, get some reliable advice how to do it. An enlarged and much improved Poultry Raising Guide has just been printed. It contains practical information and many new features, which every person who keeps hens should have; such as records and accounts for each month of the year. It also contains a long series of very valuable articles, by A. F. Hunter, "how to make money with a few hens." Of him the Lowell, Mass., Journal says: "the most sensible poultry literature we have read, we under the name A. F. Hunter. He evidently knows what he is talking about." These two features alone are worth ten times the cost of the book, which the publishers, I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom house street, Boston, Mass., send postpaid, for only 25 cents in stamps. Send to Johnson & Co. for testimonial circular free.

Didn't Want a Girl.

Last summer my wife's health was all run down, and she wanted me to hire a girl to the work. In a little while I found one I thought would suit her, when to my surprise she said I need not hire any one, as she felt much better, and thought another bottle of Sulpher Bitters would cure her. Donald Grey, 41 Worcester square, Boston.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

"I cannot praise Hood's Sarsaparilla half enough," says a mother whose son, almost blind with scrofula, was cured by this medicine.

An extensive domestic market for the surplus produce of the soil is of the first consequence. It is, of all things, that which most effectually conduces to a flourishing state of agriculture.—Alexander Hamilton.

When symptoms of malaria appear, in any form, take Ayer's Ague Cure. It will prevent a development of the germs of disease, and eradicate them from the system. A cure is warranted in every instance.

We must now place our manufactures by the side of the agriculturist. * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

It is certain that the arguments which President Cleveland urges are those which Cobden used to employ forty-five years ago, and which any free trader could employ now.—London Times.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

Remarked to a friend the other day that she knew Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough promptly when other cough remedies had no effect whatever. So to prove this and convince you of its merit, any druggist will give you a sample bottle free. Large size 50c. and $1.

Mobile Prizes. How—Where—When,

Mr. Frank McKeon, a clever gentleman, of McKeon & Menken, who operate a restaurant, said that it was a fact that he and Mr. Boyle held one-twentieth of ticket No. 38,460, the second capital prize of $10,000 in the last drawing of The Louisiana State Lottery. "The prize came in good time, as I needed the money badly, as you know I have had plenty of bad luck. We were burned out last fall. Another misfortune was losing $300 in a recent bank failure." The Southern Express Company collected it for Messrs. McKeon and Boyle.—Mobile (Ala.) Register, July 15th.

She Tried and Knows.

A leading chemist of New York says: "No plasters of such merit as the Ath-lo-pho-ros Plasters have ever before been produced." They are a novelty because they are not made simply to sell cheap, they are the best that science, skill and money can produce, and will do what is claimed for them. For sprains, aches, weakness, lameness, etc., they are unequaled.

Fulton St., Sandusky, O. Nov. 21, '87.

The Athlophoros Plaster acted like magic. It is the best I ever tried and I have used many kinds. Our druggist said "plasters are all about the same" but I don't think so now. I sprained my arm and shoulder in July, and it has been painful since, but it does not pain me at all now. Mrs. WILLIS MAURER.

Eat With Comfort and Be Happy.

It is by no means uncertain, but on the contrary, a well ascertained fact, that upon the well being of man's stomach depends that modicum of happiness which is vouchsafed to him in this world. Dyspepsia, the foe of all others to the stomach's tranquility, and most to be dreaded, is a complaint to the preliminary relief and eventual cure of which Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is specially adapted. It enables those who use it with a reasonable degree of persistence to eat with relish, because it imparts a healthful appetite; to digest with ease, because it strengthens the stomach; and to assimilate the food which is eaten and digested, thus benefitting health, promoting flesh and sustaining the exercise of the physical and mental faculties. It, moreover, facilities the secretion of healthy bile, actuates without discomfort the habit of body, and tends, when taken upon retiring, to produce healthy slumber. Malaria is conquered by it.

Congress have certainly, and no without success, directed their attention to the encouragement of manufactures. The object is of too much consequence not to insure a continuance of their efforts in every way which shall appear eligible.—George Washington.

It Won't Bake Brea.—In other words, Hood's Sarsaparilla will not do impossibilities. Its proprietors tell plainly what it has done, submit proofs from sources of unquestioned reliability, and ask you frankly if you are suffering from any disease or affection caused or promoted by impure blood or low state of the system, to try Hood's Sarsaparilla The experience of others is sufficient assurance that you will not be disappointed in the result.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

If you would have a desirable head of hair, use Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer, the most wonderful discovery of modern times for the hair and scalp.

The issue of Protection is incalculably stronger and greater than any man, as it concerns the prosperity of the present and of the generations yet to come.—James G. Blaine.

When the system is debilitated by disease it should be strengthened and renewed with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine invariably proves itself worthy of all that can be said in its favor. Sold by druggists and dealer in medicines. Price $1. Six bottles, $5.

Senator Sawyer of Wisconsin says he is too old to be a candidate for re-election to the national senate.

Could not Keep

Shop without them. I consider your Sulpher Bitters a remarkable blood purifier. I know of several people, whose cases were considered hopeless, that have been cured by your medicine. The sale of Sulpher Bitters is so large here that I could not keep shop without them. E. S. Yates, Pharmacist, 99 Essex street, Lawrence, Mass.

The only time England can use a Celt is when he emigrates to America, and votes for free trade. — London Times.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

ADAMSON'S BOTANIC COUGH BALSAM

More than twenty years ago Adamson's Botanic Balsam was introduced generally throughout New England as a remedy for Coughs, Colds and Pulmonary complaints. Since its introduction it has constantly won its way into public favor, until now it is the universal decision that ADAMSON'S BOTANIC BALSAM is the best remedy for curing Coughs, Colds and Asthma.

NEW YORK FASHION LETTER.

FALL AND WINTER MATERIALS—MILLINERY—PLAIN DRESS GOODS—CLOAKS AND WRAPS.

Important features in summer materials have been retained in winter goods. Borderings are conspicuous, and show elaborations that are the outcome of experience and continued play of fancy. Silken threads are brought in with fine effect upon borders of wool fabrics, and in tones of the same color or in contrasts more or less brilliant, give perpetual variety. Metal threads play the same part with bolder result, throwing oftentimes the yellow lustre of gilt, the purer rays of silver, or in Oriental mixtures harmonize with a leading idea of the time, that of Persian designs. Borders of Oriental pattern are indeed most noticeable. Both wide and narrow, they appear in endless diversity, while not unfrequently the surface of fine wool goods is covered by palm leaves of various sizes. Plaids are also a feature, and together with stripes and borders, constitute the three most prominent thoughts in dress goods. This is made evident in four costumes furnished to Harper's Bazar for illustration by Lord & Taylor. One is a combination of plaid and plain goods; a second is bordered, and the two remaining show stripes. They appear in the number dated September 15th, and go far to show new ways of making.

MILLINERY.

New hats and bonnets are of felt or velvet, shapes being chiefly longer capotes or long turbans, with a complement of broad-brimmed hats for more occasional wear by young ladies. Plumage replaces flowers, and ribbon, both silk and velvet, the gauzy fabrics of the warm season. Edges are plain with finish of cords or lines, and velvet ribbon shows a satin band on either border. In ribbon, the placing together of different weavings forms stripes of the same unique character as that which prevails in dress goods, though not to the exclusion of some fancy patterns, such as large or small dottings on plain surfaces or united with stripes. Blackbirds are a queer novelty, while more familiar birds become novel by the new way of placing, which is head backwards, as if flying off. Entire turbans are made of feathers, and little birds form coronets. Trimmings are only moderate in height, and are often put on so as to turn from back to front. Ostrich tips and feathers are stylish, and soft bands of ostrich down attached to broad-brimmed hats, will replace the lace scarfs brought around the neck. Among

PLAIN GOODS.

Cashmere, Henrietta cloth, either entirely of wool or with such high silk finish as to be called satine Henrietta, serge, rough twill and camel's hair are conspicuous. Most of these materials appear at times in fancy patterns, as where stripes and bars of diverse weaving but identical color traverse plain surfaces, or bourette figures give inequality. In this way the demand for solid color is met on one hand, and fancy design presented on the other. A minority, however, exhibit contrast in color, set forth especially in ombre or shaded stripes. Buffalo cloth shows an almost shaggy surface with plain contrasting border, while extremely stylish varieties display contrasting stripes and bars. They are very bold, and therefore adapted only to the tall and slender. Reps, twills and armure patterns are most fashionable in silks, the latter with small diaper designs, and brocades appear in triangles, crescents, points, etc., or in palm leaf and tapestry outlines. Ombre or shaded silks are stylish, while the new idea of alternating weaves finds frequent representation. Marked novelties appear in

CLOAKS AND WRAPS.

The nun's cloak, covering the figure completely, full and with a hood, is especially suited to light weight material. The peasant's cloak is on the same order, quite full and gathered about the neck, while other long cloaks are provided with yokes to which fullness is plaited or gathered. Yokes are really a leading feature, and appear also on short wraps, where they merge at times into vests. All this is very different from the Newmarket and Raglan shapes, which though passable as yet, are passing away.

LUCY CARTER.

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

When our manufactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C. Calhoun.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

LOOKING AFTER LOST CARS.

A Product of Railroading by Which Track is Kept of Rolling Stock.

Car chasers are among the most important employes of the great trunk lines of railroads. The title exactly describes their business. On some railroads they are called traveling car agents. The department head who employs them is also called variously the car agent, the car accountant or the superintendent of rolling stock. These officials have as many as a dozen assistants on some of the great roads, nine or ten being clerks at $30 or $40 a month, and the rest being chasers, who travel all over the country on free passes hunting up missing cars, and who receive $120 or $100 a month and expenses.

Great railroads have immense numbers of cars. The Central railroad of New Jersey has about 35,000 of all sorts; the Pennsylvania railroad, 60,000 or 70,000. These cars are at the present moment in every state in the Union. They go wherever the freight with which they are loaded is billed to, and thus are scattered from Winnipeg to Mexico and Los Angeles to Bangor. A most minute and thorough system, obtaining on all railroads except the very smallest, records every movement of every car. The system operates at all junction points, where the agents record the ownership and number of every car that passes from their road to a connecting line, and immediately notify the roads whose cars are thus in motion, as well as the car accountant of their own road. These notifications are made by postal card. In each general office car account books are kept, and the movements of the company's own cars are recorded from day to day. Whenever a loaded car is emptied on a foreign road that road uses it to carry a load of freight back in the direction of the road to which the car belongs. It pays at the rate of seven-eighths cents a mile for this use of its neighbor's property in this way, and if it should happen that there was no freight to be shipped in that direction within a reasonably short time the empty car is sent along and mileage is paid on it as if it were laden.

It is when a number of cars are lost sight of that a traveling agent is sent out. Sometimes it happens that the cars are on little branch roads idle and overlooked, sometimes they have fallen into the hands of a company that is short of cars and full of business, and is using every foreign car it can get, and sometimes other equally simple causes delay it. If it is in use by a company short of cars, that company pays mileage on it, until it sometimes happens that a car is worn out and paid for before it is returned, or else it is never returned at all. If a car chaser demands the return of his company's cars, they are sent home, but often others are seized and put to use when his back is turned and he is traveling elsewhere. If a car is smashed up in a railroad accident it is either rebuilt, a new one is made, or the price of the car is paid to the owners by the company on whose track the smash up occurred.

Every contingency is provided for in the system that has grown up among the great roads. Recently the master car builders of the country agreed on a set of schedule of prices for every conceivable damage to cars, and the result is going to be that the rolling stock of all the roads will grow more and more uniform in style and quality, since it is agreed that only serviceable parts shall be put on cars that need mending, no matter how expensive and fanciful those parts may have been originally.—New York Sun.

Trick of a Lizard.

"There are some curious cases among the California geckos," said a Los Angeles county naturalist. "Hear is one dead that is called the leaf tailed gecko. You see the tail bulges out soon after leaving the body and assumes a leaf of arrow shape, hence the name of the animal. Now when the little creature is chased you will see it dodge around a limb and hold up the curious leaf like tail. That is all that you can see, and so naturally would think it a part of the tree itself.

"But this lizard has a more remarkable method of escape yet. We will imagine that you have tried to pluck the leaf. The animal drops clumsily to the ground and darts away among the rocks, where it attracts the attention of some of the hawks that are prowling around. Immediately a chase ensues; the bird gains and is finally about to pounce upon its prey, when all at once two lizards appear, one making off while the other dances up and down into the air and along the ground in a very mysterious way, so that the astonished bird stops and looks. In the meantime the original lizard escapes; the other, that really is the tail, soon becomes quiescent. You see the gecko has the faculty of throwing off his tail when hard pressed, and while the pursuer's attention is drawn to the squirming member the animal itself escapes." "But it loses its tail," suggested the reporter. "Only for a time. They can reproduce this organ, and, curiously enough, sometimes two tails are produced instead of one."—San Francisco Call.

How Savages Fight Sharks.

The greatest danger to be feared in the presence of a shark is the paralysis of fear. Sharks unless very hungry will not attack a man while in motion. They swim around with longing eyes waiting for one moment when their victims shall remain quiet, and then make their onslaught. On the coast of Africa the natives fight sharks fearlessly. They enter the ocean naked, having first oiled their bodies in order that they may slide through the water easily. Their only weapon is a stout stick about two feet in length sharpened at both ends. The water is so clear that they can see for hundreds of feet around them. When a shark swims toward them they wait until the moment he turns on his back, and as he opens his jaws to seize them they thrust the stick crosswise into his mouth and swim off. The shark's mouth being held open by the stick, he is soon drowned, when the natives tow him ashore and feast upon his flesh.—New York Mail and Express.

Let us pray that the dead may find rest and the living strength to fight their battle to the end.—Christian Reid.

An Increasing Business.

Some idea of the growth and present magnitude of Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb's excursion business may be gained from the fact that in ten months ending July 28th of the present year the firm paid Pullman's Palace Car company $140,000. This sum was for sleeping cars and dining cars exclusively, and was independent of the passage money which went to the railroad companies, and also of a considerable amount that was paid to the Wagner Sleeping Car company for cars run over certain eastern lines. The firm has made contracts for the coming year whereby all its California and Mexico excursions are to have the advantage of vestibuled trains and a complete dining car service. Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb, by the way, were the first to run a vestibuled train across the continent or into Mexico, and also the first to establish a dining car service between the east and California or across our southern border.

Naval Intelligence

Lieut. Comdr. W. A. Morgan is ordered to duty in charge of the nitre depot at Malden, Mass., relieving Comdr. George W. Wingate, ordered to command the storeship Monongahela on Oct. 15th.

Capt. Allen Reed is detached from command of the Richmond, and placed on waiting orders.

Passed Asst. Engr. Ralph Aston is ordered to examination for promotion.

The president has sent the following nominations to the senate: Assistant naval constructors to be naval constructors—John F. Hanscom of Massachusetts, John B. Hoover of Pennsylvania, Joseph Feaster of Pennsylvania, Richard Gatewood of Virgina, and Francis T. Bowles of Massachusetts.

Rear-Admiral Chandler, commanding the Asiatic station, reports to the navy department, under date of Kobe, Japan, Aug. 27th, that the Brooklyn sailed from Nagasaki for New York by way of Honolulu and Cape Horn. The Essex sailed from Yokohama Aug. 17th for Chemulpo, Corea, as a relief of the Juniata, which has been at the latter port since the 25th of June. The Juniata was to sail from Chemulpo Aug. 29th for Nagasaki, and then proceed to New York by way of Suez. The Palos was at Nagasaki and the Monocacy at Yokohama. The flagship Marion was to sail in a few days for a northern cruise. The general health of the squadron was excellent.

Rear-Admiral Kimberly, commanding the Pacific station, has sent word to the commander of the United States steamer Nipsic at Callao to proceed at once to Samoa for the protection of American interests.

The Country Wants Him.

New Hampshire is a republican state, and there is not the slightest doubt concerning her electoral vote, neither is there any question of the redemption of the first congressional district, in which the reverend Blatherskite McKinney was elected by accident two years ago. A republican governor will be elected, also a republican legislature. And that legislature will be charged with the important duty of electing a United States senator for a term of six years, to succeed Hon. William E. Chandler, whose term will expire on the 4th of March next.

Now, New Hampshire has a good many politicians to the square acre, and there are procably a score or more who have their eyes upon the vacant senatorship. It seems, incredible, however, that one of them should fancy himself as well fitted for the place as Mr. Chandler, for certainly no one else thinks so, either in New Hampshire or the entire United States. Mr. Chandler is by far the ablest man that New Hampshire has sent to either branch of Congress for thirty years. He is a broad-minded, shrewd, industrious and alert. As a debater he is quick to discover the weak spots in his opponent's armor, and he always has the courage to puncture them. A few years ago there were democrats who presumed to assail Mr. Chandler, but President Arthur gave him the opportunity that put them to silence. Since his administration of the navy department no man has dared to question his integrity, rail at his administrative capacity or deride his judgment. Since he has entered the senate, few men on the other side have had the courage to "lock horns" with him. There is to-day no abler debater in the senate, or one more abundantly able to take care of himself, his position or his record.

These are some of the reasons why the republican state convention has decided that he is a national man, who measures his duty by the nation's demands. He stands not for New Hompshire alone, but for Pennsylvania, for Mississippi, for Nebraska and California — for the east, the south and the west, for the workman and the capitalist, for the manufacturer, the merchant and the laborer, for the sailor on the sea and the toiler in the mine. And everywhere it is conceded that in sending him to the senate New Hampshire honored herself and the nation. The people of the state should see to it, in selecting representatives, that they are reliable and uncompromising "Chandler men." The issue is only next in importance to that of the presidency. With the senate as close as it is certain to be during the next two years, every republican should be a man of brains, of convictions, of courage and of unswerving fidelity to the party and its principles. Such a man is William E. Chandler.—Kingston, (N. Y.) Freeman.

"Voluntary contributions" are solicited from the letter-carriers and other employes of the Jersey City post-office. At first it was decided that each employee should contribute $5, without regard to the amount of his salary, but that was afterward changed to one per cent of each man's salary. It was then discovered that the amount realized by this plan would not be sufficient, and the assessment has been finally fixed at $10 each.

There comes confirmation of large republican gains from all parts of Illinois. At Alton, in one factory, there is a gain of sixty. At Springfield, the home of Abraham Lincoln, and also the home of General Palmer, democratic candidate for governor, there has been a gain of 150. At many other points in Illinois, many have left the old party of free trade and united with those who believe in protection to American industry. Many former prohibitionists will vote for General Harrison.

The schooner E. A. Creed, Raymond master, took to the Isles of Shoals on Monday a load of building sand to be used in the construction of the new summer cottages now being constructed on Appledore Island.

The steamer Oceanic will make another excursion to Great Bay this afternoon, leaving her wharf at the north end at two o'clock. To-morrow (Wednesday) afternoon at two o'clock she will make a run to the Shoals, landing at Star island —the last trip of the year. Fare for each round trip, fifty cents.

It is rumored that a Belva Lockwood presidential campaign club is to be organized at Kittery Foreside, with Mr. Ed. Goodsoe as president.

The Sanford correspondent of the Biddeford Journal says: "D. Thurston, a deaf mute of Sanford, it is said had a leg broken here on election day; as yet we have been unable to ascertain how it happened, there are so many rumors. One story is he was brought in and kept in an intoxicated condition at a certain democratic residence to prevent his going to the polls to cast a republican vote, and in his effort to get away his leg was broken. Probably the truth of the matter will be ferreted out."

Charles E. Allen, who was the democratic candidate for Congress in the second district of Maine at the last election, is a native of Sanford, and represented the republicans of that town in the Maine legislature a few years ago. He voted for Blaine. For the past two years he has written many columns for the free trade journals, and has sailed over to democracy, where he has encountered his first political defeat.

Says the New York World: "The family of E. Winslow Williams, the late cotton king and president of the Yantic woollen mills of Norwich, Conn., to-day received a check for $21,000 from the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York. This is the first payment on the policies taken out by Mr. Williams, which aggregate $100,000." On this policy Mr. Williams had paid $4,541.35 in net premiums.

Clara Barton has given $1,000 out of her own pocket to the yellow fever sufferers. As president of the American Association of the Red Cross, she has been appealed to by the Jacksonville board of health to establish a headquarters there, and she has given the necessary orders to the organization throughout the country to come to the aid of the stricken city.

An Old Ladies' home has just been opened in Richmond, Ind., through use of a legacy left by Margaret Smith for that purpose, and a society of women has been formed to aid the home and collect sufficient additional funds to put it on a permanent basis.

The Woman Suffrage Club of Topeka, Kansas, has a membership of about fifty ladies, and is growing in size and interest. It has been discussing such subjects as chattel mortgages, municipal laws, the judicial system of Kansas, taxes, and Kansas laws in regard to women.

Two daughters of Warden Brush, of Sing Sing penitentiary, New York, are both expert stenographers, and the warden largely depends on them for assistance with his correspondence. They recently passed, with a very high average, the state civil service examination for stenographers.

Mrs. Laura C. Holloway was originally a Tennessee girl. Her parents lost their property during the war, but Mrs. Holloway, by her books and her newspaper work, kept them in great comfort until the end of their lives. She has also supported and educated her eight brothers and sisters, and her son.

The Philadelphia statistics show that there is not a trade or profession pursued in that city which is not more or less followed by women.

The Boston Journal of Saturday, the 22d inst., in its review of the mackerel fishery says: "The landings of the New England fleet for the week foot up 2038 barrels against 2507 barrels for the previous week, and 9959 barrels for the corresponding week last year. The total catch to date is only 25,511 barrels, against 56,919 barrels in 1887, 58,557 barrels in 1886, 258,900 barrels in 1885, and 319,698 barrels in 1884. It will be seen that this season's catch so far is not half as large as the two preceding years, and a mere trifle compared with the catches of 1885 and 1884. In fact, the present catch is the smallest for a great many years."

The fishing schooner Mary Moran, of Boston, McIntosh master, took fifty barrels of mackerel between the Isles of Shoals and this port on Wednesday of last week, and then put into the lower harbor, whence she sailed for Portland when the weather became favorable.

A number of mackerel seining schooners, or schooners which were anxious to seine mackerel if the fish could only be found, went to sea from the lower harbor on Sunday, but returned without having found anything but foul weather and a heavy sea.

It is reported on Water street that a brig bound from the West Indies to Portland was seen ashore on York ledge one day last week by a fishing vessel.

The Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York on the 7th inst. sent a check for $2000 to Jacksonville, Fla., in aid of the yellow fever sufferers.

Pearline
Washing Compound

Invented by James Pyle, New York, 1876,
Introduced to the Public, 1877.

An article to take the place of soap. One which makes clothing, paint, woodwork, in fact anything perfectly clean, with less rubbing, and in less time than anything yet discovered, and which is withal absolutely harmless. Above is a diagram of the comparative growth of sales during the last ten years—mark the yearly increase and especially that of 1888, which represents only the first six months of the year. To-day PEARLINE is used in over one million families, from Maine to California. This wonderful growth in the face of many imitations, which are damaging to clothing and paint, and make people regard an honest article with suspicion, is marvelous and can be due alone to merit.

A fair trial, which will cost but a few pennies, will make a convert of the most skeptical. See that you get the genuine article, which alone will give satisfaction. Every package bears the name of "JAMES PYLE, New York."

THE WEATHER.

For New England to-day:—

Fair weather, stationary temperature, easterly winds.

AN OLD LANDMARK DISAPPEARS.

The reader of Mr. Aldrich's stories of the Bad Boy, will recall the ice-cream adventure, when the youthful coming poet got badly "left" in an ice-cream saloon, while the other boys jumped from the window after a second round of the delectable ices, leaving Tom Bailey standing in a state of financial embarrassment at the appearance of the proprietor with the bill!

This episode occurred at "Dunyon's confectionery establishment," as it was called, in the large building at the corner of High and Ladd streets, now being demolished to give place to a new structure. The two establishments in that part of the town before such places of resort were denominated "Ice-cream saloons," were Dunyon's and Peduzzi's; the latter noted for its nice confectionery, cream cakes and maccaroons, and visited by the older heads for a drink of the famous French cordials. Dunyon's was the place for small beer, and molasses candy in small sticks with "gibraltar" shaped heads. Peduzzi's was at the corner of Congress and High streets, and had a back room, as did Dunyon's. The rooms in the latter establishment were reached by a flight of circular-shaped stairs. The place of exit of the festive youths was on High street, and we saw one day the past summer the publisher of the Atlantic Monthly surveying the windows through which the Portsmouth boys of that period vaulted to the sidewalk, when their confiding comrade "stood treat," and his associates with one accord concluded to "stand not upon the order of going, but go at once."

Alas! this landmark of sweet old times, this reminder of spruce beer and ice-cream of two prices, for large and small, and of many other palatable compounds, is rapidly disappearing. In the days of its great prosperity the Portsmouth boys were not as flush with pocket money as is the boy of to-day. There were no daily newspapers sold on our streets, no douceurs to be obtained by holding horses for summer seaside visitors, who come to town driving their own turnouts. Indeed, boys worked and were seldom paid for their services. In many a well ordered family there were boys at that date, now men prominent in business circles, not a few of whom began life with a proper discipline, and were obliged to saw the wood needed for the family use before they could pass their Wednesday and Saturday afternoons in the pastimes of the period. Fish consisted in going on the river, frequently in a boat borrowed from some vessel, when some of the fellows knew the captain or mate, or perhaps the boys ranged along the wharves, boarded the vessels, and went aloft on the ships which were laid up in ordinary between the times of their arrival from Europe and their departure for the south in the fall of the year. These were the men who soon afterward went to sea before the mast, and later on became mates and masters of our ships, in those days when we had a fine fleet of ships in port and merchants grew rich by commerce.

All this is changed, and why should not "Dunyon's" change too! Even the molasses candy of to-day has not the flavor of the article made from the pure West India import which came direct from the Havana and was rolled out upon our wharves, to the infinite delight of the youthful tasters, who so assiduously and faithfully sampled nearly every cask of the sweet and attractive fluid. But the boy of to-day devotes his energies to games of tennis and base ball. He goes about clad in the habiliments of the athlete, and would scorn the pursuit of pleasures in which his ancestors in their youthful days indulged. The world moves. People may enjoy themselves, or fancy they do, better than did we who were boys so long ago that we don't mention it. But there was a healthy zest in the fun of the boys in this town, many years ago. It was down High street that we saw drawn the coach the burning of which on the morning of one fourth of July is so graphically described by Aldrich. It seemed an extravagant mode of celebrating the national birthday, but it was a good sale for his loss after the fun was over.

THE JAPANESE VILLAGE.

Franklin hall was filled on Monday evening, when the first exhibition of the Japanese Village was given; and of the many hundreds who attended, there was not one who was not more than pleased, as well as agreeably disappointed, at the excellence of the entertainment afforded. The hall was very prettily dressed, and around it were booths in which Japanese workmen, experts in their several branches, were busily engaged in their regular occupations — pottery making, painting, embroidering, making of jewelry, porcelain and fans, and bamboo working; and it was stated that a wax worker would arrive this Tuesday morning. The bamboo worker is from Osaka; all the others are from Tokio, or "Tokyo," as the intelligent interpreter, Hiasha, says the name should be spelled. A Japanese lady presents to every lady visitor a cup of genuine Japanese tea; and in addition to the Oriental attractions, which are alone sufficient to entertain one for many hours, there are stage entertainments each hour, consisting of remarkable sleight-of-hand and mesmeric performances by Prof. Fredericks and his subject, Miss Cornell, and excellent vocal and instrumental music by the Sanford Girls' orcoestra. The exhibition is one to instruct and deeply interest adults, and delight the children.

For the rest of the week there will be two receptions daily, from one o'clock to five and from seven to ten P. M. The entertainment is a school as well as a place of amusement, and merits the most generous patronage.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT.

Mr. John S. Rand, as chairman of the entertainment committee, wishes to tender thanks to the various committees and all who so heartily co-operated and generously entertained the delegates of the Y. M. C. A. Cconvention; to the ladies, for the very admirable manner in which the collation was served; and to all others who in any way contributed to the success of the convention.

SUBSCRIPTION BOOK OPENED.

At the citizens' meeting in the common council rooms on Monday evening, called by Mayor Hodgdon to take action toward rendering aid to the fever-stricken people of Jacksonville, Florida, the mayor was directed to provide a book for the recording of subscriptions for that purpose, the same to be placed in charge of the city treasurer, who is authorized to receive contributions. All who desire to aid in relieving the terrible distress caused by the yellow fever, the harrowing details of which now fill the papers from day to day, can now find the subscription book at the city treasurer's office in the city building, and be assured that their contributions will be promptly fowarded to the centres of suffering. No urging should be needed to secure a generous and speedy response on the part of our people to the appeal of the Jacksonville sufferers for help.

POLICE COURT---BATCHELDER J.

MONDAY, Sept. 24th.

Thomas Riley, Daniel Doherty and James Keenan, for drunkenness, were each assessed $9.90, entitling the lot to a residence at Brentwood for about a month.

PERSONAL.

Miss Florence A. Webb, of Portland, Me., formerly a resident of this city, and a graduate of the Portsmouth High school, class of '86, is visiting friends in this city.

Mr. Ralph H. Sweetser left this city on Monday for Boston to commence his studies at the Institute of Technology, he having passed the examination on the previous week. He has a large number of friends in this city who wish him success in his studies. He is a graduate of the Portsmouth high school, class of '88.

Everett Townsend of Providence, R. I., formerly of this city, arrived here Saturday morning for a brief visit.

E. P. Kimball, Esq., arrived home last Friday evening from a trip to Pennsylvania.

Mrs. John Day, of Northwood, is visiting friends in this city.

Miss Nellie Newell, of Pleasant street, is visiting relatives in Northwood.

Miss Alice Norton, of Whidden street, is visiting in Boston.

Mrs. Anna Hartwell of New York is visiting her sister, Mrs. Harriet Rowe, on South street.

J. L. O. Coleman and family arrived home last week after an absence of over a month from the city.

Capt. J. Albert Sanborn, who has been during the summer in North Carolina, engaged in making an inspection and practical test of the value of a gold mine, owned by parties in Pennsylvania, arrived home on Saturday evening of last week.

Mr. Porter R. Emery, of Kittery Point, has gone to Rochester, N. H., to work on a building there, and will move his family to that town for the winter.

We received on Monday a brief call from Rev. Wm. A. Rand, pastor of the attendance on the state convention of Young Men's Christian associations, and went home on Monday afternoon. Mr. Rand is a veteran of the 16th Reg't N. H. Vols., and showed us several photographs of the regimental headquarters at Weirs, one of them representing about ninety survivors of the regiment, with their wives, standing in front of the building, while a lady standing on a balcony is engaged in hoisting the stars and stripes to the top of the flagstaff which surmounts it. This lady is one of the "captures" of the regiment, of which the old "boys" are quite proud. During the war she was a little rebel in Louisiana, but at a later date a member of the regiment, now resident in Washington, went down there and effected a reconciliation, and brought her north in his company; and the union flag she is shown in the picture as being engaged in hoisting, was her gift to the regimental veteran association.

All the campaign companies from this city and vicinity, as well as from other sections of the state, and from Portsmouth, N. H., will go to Biddeford and help the local democracy exult ever the setback the Blainetiies of the state got in their reduced plurality at the late election.—Portland Argus.

The Biddeford democracy, like the democracy of all the rest of Maine, must need a good deal of "help" to enable them to "exult" over the returns of the late election; but "all the campaign companies" of this city would not lengthen out their helping column much, as we have no such companies yet, of either party.

There are none so blind as those who won't see. The Boston Herald, a revenue reform after-the-democratic style paper, sees nothing to encourage Maine republicans in the result of the late election.—Kennebunk Star.

Well, what of it? What encouragement do the Maine republicans need, anyway? They took everything there was in their state at the late election; do they want the earth?

The Ladies' Relief Corps, No. 1, auxiliary to Storer Post, G. A. R., will give a "Harvest supper" in Grand Army hall on Daniel street this (Tuesday) evening, from 6:00 to 9:30 o'clock, to which all are invited. Admission twenty cents, including supper. Let there be a good attendance, as the proceeds are destined for a good purpose. The suppers and entertainments given by this society have always been most successful.

A young American eagle is on exhibition at Michael J. Ryan's place on Water street. The bird was captured off Thatcher's island by one of the crew of a coal steamer which arrived at this port on Saturday, having been blown off the land by the gale of Friday, and settled in the steamer's rigging for a rest that night. The bird eats beef with evident relish, and is now quite gentle, but when age comes on he may develope the same qualities as the nation of which he is the emblem, and show an uncomfortable readiness to engage in a row.

The steamer Oceanic was on Wednesday evening of last week obliged by the weather to postpone an advertised ocean excursion, to Friday evening, and on Friday weather was cool and threatening, an excursion was made to Great bay with about seventy-five passengers.

John A. Brown of this city, one of the old time stage drivers, and at one time commissary general of New Hampshire, died on Monday, the 24th inst., at the age of eighty years.

Mr. Edward E. Shapleigh of North Kittery is teaching the fall term of school at York village.

It is reported that the training-ship Portsmouth, undergoing repairs at this navy yard, is to be fitted with double topsail yards—an innovation in men-of-war, though used to great advantage in merchant ships for thirty years or more. The Jamestown is also to have double topsail yards.

"Did n't know 't was Loaded"

May do for a stupid boy's excuse; but what can be said for the parent who sees his child languishing daily and fails to recognize the want of a tonic and blood-purifier? Formerly, a course of bitters, or sulphur and molasses, was the rule in well-regulated families; but now all intelligent households keep Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which is at once pleasant to the taste, and the most searching and effective blood medicine ever discovered.

Nathan S. Cleveland, 27 E. Canton st., Boston, writes: "My daughter, now 21 years old, was in perfect health until a year ago when she began to complain of fatigue, headache, debility, dizziness, indigestion, and loss of appetite. I concluded that all her complaints originated in impure blood, and induced her to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine soon restored her blood-making organs to healthy action, and in due time restablished her former health. I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla a most valuable remedy for the lassitude and debility incident to spring time."

J. Castright, Brooklyn Power Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "As a Spring Medicine, I find a splendid substitute for the old-time compounds in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, with a few doses of Ayer's Pills. After their use, I feel fresher and stronger to go through the summer."

THE Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Cocheco Manufacturing Company for the choice of officers and for such other business as may legally come before said meeting, will be holden at the Company's Counting Room in Dover, on Wednesday, the 26th, at 12 o'clock M.

By order of the Directors.

JOHN HOLLAND,
Clerk of the Proprietors.

DOVER, Sept. 10th, 1888.

Among the various organs of our system, none perform a more essential part than the Liver and Kidneys, and so many people are afflicted with diseases of these organs, causing the Blood to become impure, that it is our first duty to assist them in their work. This is done in a thorough manner by Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, which is purely Vegetable, and is worthy of a fair trial.

Be Sure

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other.

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." MRS. ELLA A. GOFF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

The Wonderful "Toddy Palm."

"When I was down in Washington the other day," remarked a western politician at the St. James, "they showed me a wonderful Indian palm in the botanical gardens. They call it the caryota ureus, and it cuts a bigger figure in the world as an intoxicant than all the distilleries of the United States. Just in proportion as the followers of Brahma and Buddha in India are far more numerous than the Christian population of the United States, in the same proportion does that palm tree surpass all our appliances for making an intoxicant. It is a beautiful tree, with a trunk something over a foot in diameter, grows to the height of about sixty feet, and is surmounted by an elegant crown of gracefully curved leaves. The flower spikes are ten or twelve feet long, and issue from the trunk at the base of the leaves, hanging down like a horse's tail. They are not produced till the tree has arrived at its full period of growth, and the manner in which the numerous spikes succeed each other is rather singular. The first spike issues from the top of the tree, and after it has done flowering another comes out below it, and so on, a flower spike being produced from the angle of each leaf stalk, or from the circular scar left by leaves that have fallen away from the trunk, until the process of flowering reaches the ground, when the tree is exhausted and dies.

"The English in India gave it the name of toddy palm because they traced a kinship between their old home toddy and the juice of the tree. The natives work it in this fashion: When the spikes are in the bud they cut them off, and the sap that would have flowed into the bud is caught by them in a gourd and used as a liquor. It's very powerful and produces a fine crop of delirium tremens in India. They expect this oriental distillery to flower some time this fall. Yes, it's the only toddy palm in this country."—New York Evening Sun.

Pure Drinking Water.

Many cities have adopted, or are now introducing, artificial filtration, and it is to be hoped that some terrible epidemic visitation will not be necessary to impress our authorities with the necessity for some action on their part. Pending such action, the following general directions, if given publicly and insisted upon, may be the means of saving many lives. Drink no water that has not been previously boiled. Do not put ice into the water unless it is known to be pure, for the ice may contain as many disease germs as the water. The water should only be allowed to come to a boil when it should be removed from the fire, for otherwise you will expel the oxygen, which gives it an unpleasant taste. After boiling it should be placed in a stone jar and covered over; when sufficiently cool it should be decanted into bottles and then put on ice. It is best to boil sufficient water each morning to last during the day. If possible to avoid it, do not use water that has come from a tank on top of the house, which is often a very hot bed of disease; far better to go to the basement or yard, if you cannot otherwise get a direct flow from the main.

If you have one of the many filtering water coolers that are on sale at every housefurnishing store, throw it away, but before doing so break it to pieces that some other unfortunate does not get hold of it. Such devices, unless provision is made for the entire removal and washing of all the filtering material and unless such operation is carried out every day, are filthy incubators for the propagation of bacteria.—Cor. New York Tribune.

The Use of Snakes.

Persons who dislike snakes continually ask: "What is the use of them?" That they are not without use will, I hope, appear in the course of this work, were it necessary to preach that all things have their use. But in one habit that offended Lord Bacon, namely, of "going on their belly," lies one of their greatest uses, because that, together with their internal formation and external covering, enables them to penetrate where no larger carnivorous animal could venture, into dark and noisome morasses, bog jungles, swamps, amid the vegetation of the tropics, where swarms of the lesser reptiles, on which so many of them feed, wouth otherwise outbalance the harmony of nature, die and produce pestilence. Wondrously and exquisitely constructed for their habit, they are able to exist where the higher animals could not, and while they help to clear those inaccessible places of the lesser vermin, they themselves supply food for a number of smaller mammalia, which, with many carnivorous birds, devour vast numbers of young snakes. The hedgehog, weasel, ichneumon, rat, peccary, hog, goat, and an immense number of birds keep snakes within due limits, while the latter perform their part among the grain devouring and herbivorous creatures. Thus beautifully is the balance of nature maintained.—New Orleans Picayune.

Disagreeable Paris Hotels.

Another disagreeable thing about Paris is that many of the hotels are at least fifty years behind the times. The damp wind enters through numberless cracks in the ill fitting windows and doors; the fireplaces are the kind which waste nine-tenths of the heat; there are no bathrooms, no arrangements for hot and cold water, no proper plumbing, no gas, no carpets except in the middle of the waxed floors, no call bells, speaking tubes, telephones, and a thousand other things which have long been thought a necessity in America, and even in London. Why, with all its magnificence, the Hotel Continental and others equally luxurious, has no other means of lighting the bedrooms except by candles, and to make an elaborate toilet by the aid of one of these flaring, smoking, grease dispersing utiquities is not the easiest performance in the world.—Mrs. Frank Leslie's Letter.

A Debt of Gratitude.

Gratitude that takes the form of dollars and cents is generally well liked by the recipient. If so, Private Heath, of the Fifth cavalry, should feel repaid for a gallant deed he did eleven years ago in the Sioux war. In that campaign he rescued the captain of his company, who was wounded, from falling into the hands of the Indians, at the great risk of his own life. Now Capt. Price is looking him up to give him a deed to a Kansas farm worth $9,000.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

"For twenty years I have suffered with a severe bronchial cough, never lying down without a severe attack of the same. After much pursuasion, I was induced to try Adamson's Balsam, and its good effects for six months are certainly marvellous. Please use this truthful testimony for the advantage of all sufferers like myself.

Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of our American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

Money Made Keeping Hens.

Hundreds of farmers who never kept an account, would kill every "pesky hen" on the farm, if it was not for the "women folks." The women intuitively know that the hens do not "eat their meals off every six months," but properly kept pay better than any other farm animals.

This is true. A record, simple to keep, so it would be used and show the facts in detail, would prove that every hen paid a profit. They could be made to pay, from one to three dollars each. Mr. James L. Burgess, Nashua, N. H., reported to the Nashua Telegraph, that his wife made a clean net profit last year, of $36.59 for eggs alone, from only sixteen hens. He thinks her success was largely due to using Sheridan's Condition Powder, a much advertised preparation to make hens lay.

Do your hens pay like that? Do you want to learn how to make them pay better? Are you in delicate health, and want to commence poultry raising, for the sake of open air employment? If so, get some reliable advice how to do it. An enlarged and much improved Poultry Raising Guide has just been printed. It contains practical information and many new features, which every person who keeps hens should have; such as records and accounts for each month of the year. It also contains a long series of very valuable articles, by A. F. Hunter, "how to make money with a few hens." Of him the Lowell, Mass., Journal says: "the most sensib poultry literature we have read, we under the name A F. Hunter. He evidently knows what he is talking about." These two features alone are worth ten times the cost of the book, which the publishers, I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom house street, Boston, Mass., send postpaid, for only 25 cents in stamps. Send to Johnson & Co. for testimonial circular free.

A Justice of the Peace says.

Hon. John Nealey, justice of the peace and ex-member of the House of Representatives from Meredith, N. H., was for twelve years a terrible sufferer with rheumatism. He says: "I cannot obtain any medicine which does me so much good as your Sulpher Bitters, and I think it is the best medicine made.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

"I cannot paise Hood's Sarsaparilla half enough," says a mother whose son, almost blind with scrofula, was cured by this medicine.

An extensive domestic market for the surplus produce of the soil is of the first consequence. It is, of all things, that which most effectually conduces to a flourishing state of agriculture.—Alexander Hamilton.

When symptoms of malaria appear, in any form, take Ayer's Ague Cure. It will prevent a development of the germs of disease, and eradicate them from the system. A cure is warranted in every instance.

We must now place our manufactures by the side of the agriculturist. * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

It is certain that the arguments which President Cleveland urges are those which Cobden used to employ forty-five years ago, and which any free trader could employ now.—London Times.

OH! MY HEAD.

The pain from Neuralgia and its companion disease Rheumatism is excruciating. Thousands who could be quickly cured are needlessly suffering. Ath-lo-pho-ros will do for others what it did for the following parties:

Williamsport, Ind., Oct. 5, 1887.

Having been afflicted with neuralgia for the past four years, and trying almost everything, but in vain, I finally heard of Athlophoros. After taking one bottle I found it to be helping me, and after taking four bottles of Athlophoros and one of Pills, I found that I was entirely well. I think the medicine is positively a cure.—GRANCEY B. REDDICK.

Mt. Carmel (Ill.), Dec. 26, 1887.

I have used Athlophoros in my family and find it to be the greatest medicine for neuralgia in existence and having had its fangs fastened upon me for the past 8 years I know whereof I speak. MRS. JULIA CHILTON.

Miss Edith M. Thomas, the poet, is to become one of the editors of St. Nicholas.

More than 1,700 young women are enrolled, or trying to be enrolled, as pupils in the Normal college in New York.

Fenimore Cooper's only daughter still lives at the novelist's home at Cooperstown, on Otsego lake, New York.

Princess Eugene of Sweden has sacrified her family jewels to build a hospital for cripples upon an island off the coast.

The Empress of Japan is rapidly becoming one of the best-informed women of her time. She is a diligent student of German, Russian, French and Italian.

The directors of the Western Pennsylvania Medical college in Pittsburg, Pa., have declared against the admission of women as students, and refused the applications of six young women.

Miss Middy Morgan, the famous cattle reporter and expert, who occupies a position unique among women journalists, has an article in the American Agriculturist for September on the care of convalescent animals.

It Won't Bake Brea.—In other words, Hood's Sarsaparilla will not do impossibilities. Its proprietors tell plainly what it has done, submit proofs from sources of unquestioned reliability, and ask you frankly if you are suffering from any disease or affection caused or promoted by impure blood or low state of the system, to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. The experience of others is sufficient assurance that you will not be disappointed in the result.

Mrs. Humphrey Ward, author of "Robert Elsmere," is writing another novel.

If you would have a desirable head of hair, use Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer, the most wonderful discovery of modern times for the hair and scalp.

The issue of Protection is lacaiculably stronger and greater than any man, as it concerns the prosperity of the present and of the generations yet to come.—James G. Blaine.

When the system is debilitated by disease it should be strengthened and renewed with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine invariably proves itself worthy of all that can be said in its favor. Sold by druggists and dealer in medicines. Price $1. Six bottles, $5.

Senator Sawyer of Wisconsin says he is too old to be a candidate for re-election to the national senate.

SINGING ITSELF.

I asked a wee maid with winsome way
How she sang her songs through the livelong day,
Are they woodland echoes that come at call?
Are they fairy footsteps that 'round you fall?
Did you borrow or steal each happy note
From some feathered songster's bursting throat?
Do you make them out of the flowerets gay?
Or weave in the sunbeam's golden ray?
"Oh, I cannot tell," said the merry elf,
"I cannot help it, it sings itself."

There's a song in my heart whose gay notes ring
Louder than woodland songsters sing,
Grander than those which have found a tongue,
Sweeter than any my lips have sung,
Brighter than sunbeams or flowerets gay,
This song that sings through the livelong day.
It never ceases, through storms or ill
Of one sweet joy will it carol still.
I will borrow your phrase, my merry elf,
For this song in my heart that sings itself.
